ESTEP AND CANNON CLASH ON BEER

Today

Gin and Beer.
Wonderful Aphanobionts.
Too Cheap Money Is Bad.
To Get Out, Or In, Think.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WOMEN "DRYS" in Washington, led by Mrs. Peabody, tell Congress that drunkenness, because of beer, was worse in old days than now. Says Mrs. Peabody:

"Ninety per cent of drunkenness before prohibition was beer drunkenness."

Prohibition ladies are sincere, in every way admirable, but they are mistaken. They don't drink beer, never did probably, and could not know as much as any bartender would know.

He could inform them that whisky and gin cause drunkenness, crime and murder. After a murder the police find a whisky bottle, not a beer bottle.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who will soon live in the White House and would like to see prohibition a success, says it has taught young girls how to drink gin. That is not an improvement on beer.

OUR ANCESTORS, killing mammoths and other big animals, probably thought those would always be man's most dangerous enemies. Now we know that our real enemies, germs of cholera, smallpox, infantile paralysis, etc., are too small to be seen with the naked eye.

Furthermore, Prof. Sinitsin, learned Russian biologist, says the aphanobiont, a new hard word, meaning "invisible life," are the foundation of all conscious existence.

THESE UNITS of "invisible life" travel from planet to planet, and exist throughout all space, but men will never see them, for they are infinitely smaller than the smallest wave lengths of visible light, which mark the limits of our sight.

More than a hundred kinds of virus that cause our worst diseases must also remain invisible, forever.

"FOREVER" IS a big word. AT PRESENT we can see nothing smaller, in the microscope or otherwise, scientifically, than an object the length of four hundred milli-microns, or one twenty-five millionth part of one inch.

In spite of prediction you may be sure that, as primitive man wiped out the mammoth so much bigger than himself, so scientific man will actually see, by some process of chemistry and physics, the friendly aphanobionts, and eliminate our virus enemies.

YOUR GOVERNMENT, wishing to borrow two hundred and fifty million dollars for one year, offered only ¾ to 1 per cent interest. The offering was over-subscribed sixteen times.

Uncle Sam was actually offered four thousand millions at ¾ of 1 per cent interest. Some bidders asked for more of the bonds than they expected or wanted, to make sure of getting enough. Nevertheless the offer is gigantic. Some, foolishly, imagine that it is a good sign.

IT IS THE worst possible sign, showing that hundreds and thousands of millions are held idle in this country, owners afraid to invest in ways that would create labor, promote prosperity and pay a good return. It is preferred to keep money tied up at lowest interest rates.

There are more than twenty thousand millions tied up in government bonds, in which taxpayers pay in interest nearly a billion annually.

Government should call in ten billions of bonds, issuing in their place good American money paying no interest, saving the taxpayers four hundred million dollars a year and not increasing government indebtedness, therefore not weakening its credit, since it would owe ten billions in currency instead of ten billions in interest-bearing bonds.

By the time those that now hoard the bonds had finished investing their ten billions, you would see business begin to move upward.

TWO LONG-TERM prisoners sawed through iron bars, escaped from the "escape-proof" section of Sing Sing Prison, and everybody wonders how they could do it.

There is no wonder about it. The prisoners thought and planned for their escape, and thought of NOTHING ELSE. The jailers thought of many other things, only occasionally thinking of the two prisoners.

If you want to accomplish anything, keep your mind on THAT thing. It is a good rule, whether you plan to get out of a prison or into a hall of fame.

THE LUSITANIA, sunk by a German submarine during the war, has been located on the floor of the ocean off the Irish coast. Divers plan to go down after what is worth getting, namely, from seven to ten million dollars worth of gold, in the ship's strong room. Wonderful is gold, and its hold on men.

Divers will find the machinery rusted and worthless, they will find bones of men and women picked bare long ago by fishes, not worth collecting. The gold when they get to it will be as good as ever and still good 1,000 years hence, when the war and the Lusitania will be forgotten.

ON SATURDAY night thick snow fell in New York. On Sunday night it began to thaw. Early yesterday morning, on every other block along Fifth avenue, you saw men flooding the pavements with powerful streams of water, washing the East End Store Wrecked by Blast

GAS UNDER SIDEWALK BLAMED

4 Escape From Debris In Market; Mother, Children Periled

An explosion ripped out the front of the Kroger market at 5512 Walnut street, dazed store employes and a customer, and jarred occupants of a second floor apartment from their beds today.

Fire Capt. John Maroney, of No. 28 Engine Company, was injured in a fall on entering the store to fight a small fire that followed the blast, and was removed for medical attention.

Chemical fumes from the store's refrigerating system hampered firemen. Battalion Chief John Zollinger said the explosion apparently was caused by an accumulation of gas under the sidewalk in front of the store.

Herman J. Nimpse, store manager, was burned slightly on the face, but was able to assist Miss Helen Halick, 20, of 422 Yew way, Braddock, out of the wreckage. Miss Halick was unhurt. Harry Holtzer, butcher, said the force of the blast lifted him about two feet, but he escaped injury.

The only customer was Henry Fisher, 65. He was helped out of the debris by Frank Hoffman, of 3835 California avenue, whose automobile, parked nearby, was damaged when the explosion smashed the windows.

The blast threw Mrs. Leonard Williams and her children, Marjorie Belle, 4, and Jimmy, 1, from their beds in an apartment on the second floor. Other apartments in the building were occupied by Mrs. Kathleen Purcell and Mrs. Beulah Loadman, both of whom were unhurt.

Plaster was knocked from the walls and merchandise in the store was scattered into the street. Battalion Chief Zollinger estimated the damage at $3,500.

DR. W. J. HOLLAND DIES AT 84

Death early today ended the distinguished career of Dr. William Jacob Holland, ScD., DD., LL.D., L.H.D., director emeritus of Carnegie Museum. He was 84.

The end came at his residence at 5545 Forbes street where for two weeks he had waged a stubborn fight against the effects of a stroke suffered November 28, after a business trip to New York. He had suffered two strokes earlier in the year, one in February and the second in March.

The world-famous zoologist, paleontologist, author, artist, educator and clergyman died at 2:40 a. m., a few hours after he had lapsed into unconsciousness. Members of the family were at the bedside.

Although funeral arrangements have not been completed, it was

P. S. C. Probe Aided by Schnader

HARRISBURG, Dec. 13.—(INS.)—Attorney General William A. Schnader today came to the defense of the Senate utility investigating committee, virtually on trial for its life in Dauphin County Court.

Schnader took the floor in combat against an injunction temporarily restraining expenditure of the committee's funds and insisted that the appropriation to finance the probe was legal.

Agreeing upon continuance of four other restraining orders, the litigants completed the hearing on the appropriation injunction and court en banc promised an early decision.

The resolution creating the committee, the Attorney General said, was adopted as an executive function of the Senate and it required a report to the 1933 Senate.

HELLER, CO-ED TO MARRY

They're keeping a choice spot open on the All-America matrimonial team for Warren (Piny) Heller, Pitt's great halfback.

The secret came out today. On the Pitt campus an attractive, unaffected co-ed pulled the calfskin glove off her left hand and set off her third finger, the better for her sorority sisters to examine an impressive diamond solitaire.

The girl is Irene Malindzak, 20, of New Philadelphia, O. Both she and Heller are seniors. They met in a classroom last year. If you ask Irene when she and the retiring, likeable Heller plan to march up the altar she laughs:

"Don't you know there's a depression."

So the date is indefinite, possibly next summer. But one thing isn't indefinite. And that's Irene's opinion of the young man:

"So far as I'm concerned Pitt's a one-man team. I haven't missed a game. He (synonym for Warren) gave me a book of rules so I wouldn't have to ask him so many questions. No, I haven't read it. Oh, do me a favor: Be sure to mention the sorority. It's Alpha Delta Pi. If you don't they'll never forgive me . . . My! how news travels."

Mellon Will Return Here for Christmas

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Following his custom of many years, United States Ambassador Mellon will spend Christmas this year at his home in Pittsburgh.

He will sail Thursday on the Liner Manhattan and will return to London aboard the Majestic on January 4. He will visit President Hoover in Washington. Mrs. David Bruce, his daughter, and her husband, will remain here for Christmas.

Guy Soon to Face Charge Of Killing Wanderwell

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 13.—(INS.)—After a conference with District Attorney Buron Fitts at Los Angeles, deputy district attorneys here announced a formal murder complaint would be filed today against William J. (Curley) Guy in connection with the shooting to death of Capt. Walter Wanderwell, sea rover and world-famed adventurer, in a darkened cabin on his yacht Carma the night of December 5.

Fitts authorized issuance of the murder complaint.

Edward Delarm, only Indian transport pilot in the world, also a noted adventurer in strange lands, was held in Long Beach Jail as a material witness.

Delarm maintained Guy was at the Delarm home in Glendale, 30 miles from here, the night of the mysterious murder, but investigators claimed to have found discrepancies in the "alibi story."

The body of Wanderwell lay today in an ocean grave. The schooner yacht on which the adventurer was slain put to sea yesterday carrying his widow and his band of followers. The burial took place as a water taxi carrying newspapermen trailed behind the Carma.

The third chapter of Aloha Wanderwell's own story appears on Page 22.

COUNCILMEN EXPECT PAY CUT PLEA

Citizens' Committee May Ask Drastic Cost Slashes

As the time drew near today for Allegheny County, Pittsburgh and various municipalities to fix the 1933 tax levy, public clamor for a reduction rose to new heights with these developments:

1—Drastic payroll cuts are expected in special citizens tax committee scheduled to reach City Council today.

2—City Council is urged to appoint board of directors of prominent citizens to control affairs at City Home and Hospital at Mayview.

3—John S. Herron, president of Council, warns department heads that Council's own budget figures will be used unless needs are pared to bone.

4—Stormy meeting in Brookline ends in demand for general tax reduction and salary cuts for public employes.

5—Duquesne Council holds star chamber session on budget as representatives of Taxpayers' League demanding tax cut cool heels three hours in antechamber.

6—Wilkinsburg Council and Board of Education are warned of threatened taxpayers' strike unless levies are cut.

Horizontal cuts in salaries and wages in the city payroll are generally expected in the report of the special citizens' tax committee which, it is believed, will reach City Council late today.

According to gossip at City Hall, these cuts are so heavy that Council may not approve them in their entirety. The cuts are to range from 15 to 25 per cent, according to reports.

It is rumored the committee will contend the payroll reductions are absolutely necessary if the city tax millage is to be reduced. Nothing official has come from the committee itself. The utmost secrecy has shrouded its movements since it set to work more than a month ago.

NEW REVENUE IGNORED

Apparently, however, the original purpose of the committee, that of seeking more sources of revenue, has been almost lost sight of in its studies.

While awaiting the report of the citizens' committee Council heard a recommendation by Thomas Liggett that a board of directors should be named to hold

IMPEACHING OF HOOVER REJECTED

McFadden's Charges Spurned in House, 361 to 8

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The House today rejected a resolution impeaching President Hoover for "high crimes and misdemeanors" without debate. The impeachment charges were made by Representative Louis T. McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania.

Immediately after McFadden, rising to his constitutional privilege, impeached the President, and his resolution was read, Representative Edward Pou (Dem.), of North Carolina, moved to lay the resolution on the table.

The motion was carried by the vote of 361 to 8.

The eight dissenters were:

Black (Dem.), of New York; Blanton (Dem.), of Texas; Griffin (Dem.), of New York; Hancock (Dem.), of North Carolina; McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania; Patman (Dem.), of Texas; Romjue (Dem.), of Missouri, and Sweeney (Dem.), of Ohio.

Intense feeling was shown during the voting. When Blanton cast the first "no" vote he was "booed" and when McFadden supported his resolution one Republican hissed. Republicans applauded when the vote was announced.

M'FADDEN'S CHARGES

McFadden, in his resolution, charged the President with violating the Constitution and laws in negotiations over European war debts, treatment of the "bonus army," and appointment of Gov. Eugene Meyer of the Federal Reserve Board.

The bold step of McFadden, who has long opposed President Hoover's international policies and charged that he sought to cancel war debts, took the House by surprise.

While the resolution was being read Republican Leader Snell, of New York, rushed into conference with Democratic members seeking a way to properly end the attack on the President.

While the house laid the resolution on the table, and thus rejected McFadden's request for an investigation of the impeachment charges by the House Judiciary Committee, the resolution could be revived by a majority vote. This, however, is unlikely.

It will lie on the table indefinitely unless other action is taken.

Pou's motion to lay on the table was the signal for an outburst of applause from the Republican side.

CONGRESS VETERAN

Representative McFadden, who in private life is a banker and farm operrator, represents the Fifteenth District of Pennsylvania, and is serving his eighteenth year in Congress. In the November election he had the united indorsement of Republican, Democratic and Prohibition parties.

He held the chairmanship of the Banking and Currency Committee for several years and has been rated one of the foremost authorities in the House on banking, currency and fiscal affairs.

McFadden strongly opposed the Hoover moratorium at the outset, charging that it constituted the opening wedge to debt cancellation, and for this he blamed "connivance" between President Hoover and powerful international banking groups.

MRS. PEARLE A. MANN

DIVORCE TRIAL JUDGE'S FIRST

The divorce suit of Pearle A. Mann, 6380 Penn avenue, married at 15 and deserted on her wedding day, was the first case tried by youthful Judge Ralph H. Smith as he sat in Common Pleas Court today.

The 34-year-old jurist was sworn in yesterday and mounted the bench this morning to hear the wife relate that she married Adolph Mann, of Millvale, August 29, 1929, ate dinner with him that evening, and has not seen him since.

The testimony was brief. The only other witness was Mrs. Mann's sister. Judge Smith asked:

"Where did your husband go?"

Said the wife:

"I don't know. It is all a puzzle to me."

She said they were married in Allegheny County despite her youth and that her husband at the time was 23. Inquiries among relatives and friends failed to disclose his whereabouts, she said.

Snowstorm Again Blankets District

A snowfall which began at noon again blanketed Pittsburgh district streets today, making driving dangerous and causing additional hardships among the destitute.

The snowfall was reported general over Western Pennsylvania, but forecasters reported the possibility of the flurries turning to rain tonight. The temperature, 27 at noon, was expected to drop slightly.

Pittsburgher Wins Rhodes Scholarship

A telegram notifying him that he had been awarded a Rhodes scholarship, which entitles him to two years at Oxford University and another year at any other European university he may select, came to Ivan A. Getting, 20, of 149 North Craig street, today. Getting is now a student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

PITTSBURGH RUM EVIL CHARGES DISPUTED

Nation's Leading Drys Warn of War on Any Law Change

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—In a hectic session, during which liquor evils of the Pittsburgh district figured conspicuously, the House Ways and Means Committee today listened to a vigorous defense of prohibition by an array of dry leaders headed by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

So tense did the hearing in the crowded, smoke-filled room become that a woman spectator, identified as a Mrs. Yocke, of Wheeling, W. Va., a strong dry advocate, fainted and had to be taken outside and revived.

ATTACKED BY CANNON

Bishop Cannon, Jr., attacked the proposal to legalize beer and light wines as "a blow at every legitimate industry in the country," and served notice of a dry fight on every form of prohibition change.

Other dry leaders who attacked the bill were Deets Pickett, of the Methodist board of temperance, South and North; Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the W. C. T. U., and Canon William Chase, of the International Reform Federation.

Congressman Harry Estep (Rep.), of Pittsburgh, took the lead in the vigorous cross-examination to which the dry leaders were subjected by committee members.

At one time he interrupted Bishop Cannon to quiz the cleric regarding the 1920 Homestead, Pa., liquor scandals which he had mentioned.

Estep said Homestead never had had such scandals before prohibition days. Cannon replied:

"Reports show that speakeasy

'FINNEY' WILLS $30,000 ESTATE

An estate valued at $30,000 was left in trust for his mother, a sister and her children by John J. Finn, newsboy for more than 40 years, in his will filed for probate today.

Finn, known to many at his stand in front of the postoffice as "Finney," was the city's best known newsie. He died December 2. The will stipulated his estate be placed in trust with the Commonwealth Trust Company. The income to go to his mother, Mary Finn, and his sister, Nettie McGall, while they live, and then the estate goes to the latter's children, William and Catherine McGall.

French Deputies Balk at Debt Payment; Consider Repudiation

BULLETIN.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—The Belgian cabinet voted today to refuse payment of the $2,125,000 debt installment due the United States this week, then submitted its resignation.

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT
International News Service.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—With the "deadline" only 48 hours away, France today rejected America's demand for unconditional payment of the war debt and once again gave consideration to repudiation of the installment due on December 15.

Premier Herriot went before the Chamber of Deputies to ask permission to pay the installment with reservations, warning that the Lausanne treaty would be scrapped unless war debts are revised, but the finance committee turned down his compromise and went to work on a resolution demanding postponement of the payment until revision has actually taken place.

In the Chamber, the Republican administration in the United States was once again subjected to a barrage of hostile criticism for disturbing European equilibrium by the reparations moratorium.

Taking up where Premier Herriot had left off yesterday, Louis Marin, fiery leader of the Nationalists, launched an intensive attack upon President Hoover. He said:

"Who overthrew the entire structure of international debts? It was Herbert Hoover."

"If we pay the United States, the French taxpayer will be obliged to support the entire burden of European debts.

"Contracts should be respected but those who destroyed contracts should not be permit-

PENNINGTON'S 'DRYS' ACCUSED OF INCITING RIOTS IN N. J.

SENATOR KEAN DENOUNCES RAIDERS

'Charges Far-Fetched,' Says Administrator As Inquiry Looms

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Senator Kean, of New Jersey, said he had sent to the Attorney General charges that prohibition agents working under John D. Pennington, administrator for Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, had incited riots in New Jersey.

The Senator last night said:

"During the campaign I wrote the Attorney General and charged Pennington's agents with inciting riot.

'PROPERTY DESTROYED'

"These agents destroyed personal property in many parts of New Jersey on unwarranted raids, and the persons whom they wronged threatened violence in retaliation. That's pretty near a riot.

"I understand that Pennington was in Washington today and expressed fear for his job. I understand he talked with Senator Reed of Pennsylvania.

"If Pennington wants a senatorial committee to investigate his activities in New Jersey, I'm willing."

Kean for some time has expressed the opinion that New Jersey should be divorced from the Pennsylvania - Delaware-New Jersey enforcement district which Pennington heads.

MAY ASK PROBE

A friend of Pennington said the administrator knew his removal from the top of the unit which he served in New Jersey was sought. The same friend said Pennington had no intention of resigning and that the administrator had talked of asking for a congressional investigation of Jersey bootlegging.

Senator Barbour, of New Jersey, said last night he also had heard Pennington was in Washington yesterday and that there were reports of attempts to have him removed from office.

'CHARGES FAR-FETCHED'

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, when questioned last night about charges made in Washington by United States Senator Kean that his men had incited riots in New Jersey, said:

"Senator Kean's charges are extremely far-fetched."

Pennington declined to be quoted further, but said he had been in Washington during the day.

WALL ST. PROBE TO BE RESUMED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—The Senate Banking Committee today ordered a resumption of the inquiry into the stock market and appointed a sub-committee to conduct hearings.

It is to be headed by Senator Norbeck (Rep.), South Dakota, and includes Glass, Virginia, and Fletcher, Florida, Democrats; and Couzens, Michigan, and Townsend, Delaware, Republicans.

The committee discussed investigation of the Insull collapse, and there were indications this would be studied first. Norbeck expects the hearings to be started before the Christmas recess.

Churchman Pleads For 'He-Man' Books

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—A plea for more "he-man" literature of the type of "Dick Turpin" or "Ivanhoe," with heroes who fight for the right, was voiced by the Rev. Dr. John H. Willey, president of the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States at the organization's annual meeting yesterday.

Modern fiction, said Dr. Willey, is one evidence of the "crumbling foundations" which the Alliance has striven to prevent.

consumption is far less now than saloon consumption of pre-prohibition days."

He said his reports did not include figures.

Estep then recalled that Pittsburgh schools in these "prohibition days" required children to purchase milk, while in saloon days this was not the case. He cited this as one of the reasons for the increased consumption of milk which Cannon had cited as one of the benefits of prohibition.

CHALLENGES PICKETT

A short time before, Estep had clashed with Pickett, who told the committee that "the liquor interests, like the old French regime of France, have learned nothing and forgotten nothing." He charged that liquor interests are attempting to "exploit boys and girls" and corrupt government officials, political conventions and newspapers with lavish sums of money. Estep said:

"You say the brewers are spending big sums to obtain beer. I recall evidence that the Anti-Saloon League spent large sums of money. What is the difference?"

Pickett replied:

"There is a marked difference in the way the money was used."

Estep asserted he had not been approached by a brewer, but that he had received letters from many former prohibition advocates saying the Eighteenth Amendment had failed.

DEMANDS PROOF

He demanded that Pickett give proof of his charge that brewers resort to bribery. Pickett said:

"A leopard cannot change his spots."

"Well it certainly has, if no such effort is being made to influence members of Congress now."

In his tirade against what he referered to as "the liquor interets," Pickett asserted:

"They want liquor back; they want it on every corner; they want to advertise it over the radio, in the newspapers, and with flaming electric signs; they want no federal control whatever, so that they can extend their traffic to the uttermost limits of the land."

"They are planning to expand their trade by exploiting the boys and girl, particularly the girls, as they never were exploited before.

'COST ON WORKERS'

During his testimony, Bishop Cannon, star witness for the drys, asserted:

"The mad rush of certain groups to hasten beer legislation reminds one of Nero fiddling while Rome burned.

"The beer bill would simply sell the soul of the nation to secure a dubious prospect of tax revenue. The saloon and the speakeasies would exist as in pre-prohibition days.

"The cost of beer would fall upon the workers of the nation and lessen the sale of boots, shoes, milk and other products.

"The cost would not fall on the white collar class. Certainly the society cocktail drinking group would not turn to beer."

During his discussion Cannon said that the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, "stood like a rock" for prohibition.

TERMS SELF FANATIC

Representative Treadway recalled that women and many others now have the privilege of the ballot who were not eligible to vote 15 years ago and asked Cannon if it was his opinion that they should be allowed to render their decision now. Cannon said:

"They have a right to demand that privilege. Though I am a fanatic, I am opposed to a devilish traffic and if I were a member of Congress I would place my conscience above the wish of my constituents regardless of consequences."

Canon Chase said:

"Any amendment of the Volstead act will not only be a nullification but will also bring about the return of the saloon. If you help enact this bill, you will promote nullification and increase lawlessness.

"President Hoover and Ambassador Mellon have commented upon the remarkable public quiet and freedom from violence and riots in America during this great depression.

"We have experienced less violence and crime than any other nation."

Mrs. Boole predicted that passage of a beer bill would restore 90 per cent or more of pre-prohibition days' liquor traffic.

GARNER URGES SPEED

Meanwhile, Speaker Garner indicated today the House may begin consideration of the beer bill by Tuesday of next week.

As the beer hearings conclude tomorrow morning, the committee should be able, he said, to complete the draft of the measure by the end of this week, introduce the measure Monday and begin its consideration the next day.

As it is a revenue measure, the Speaker said, it has a privileged status and may be called up ahead of other legislation. He indicated it would be open to amendment on the floor.

Senate Repeal Work Delayed; No Quorum

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—The Senate Judiciary Subcommittee, named to consider all prohibition repeal legislation, postponed its scheduled opening meeting today because of lack of a quorum and will try to meet tomorrow.

Two members of the committee of five—Senators Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, and Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, had to attend the Foreign Relations Committee hearing on the St. Lawrence waterway. Senator Hebert (Rep.), of Rhode Island, a third member, was out of the city.

CLOCK SPIDER TAKES NAP

AKRON, O., Dec 13.—(Universal.)—Observers speculated today whether Akron's famous house spider had abandoned its long battle to enslave with a fine-spun web the hands of the tin alarm clock on whose face it is imprisoned, or had merely fallen asleep at the switch after the clock ran down.

At any rate, the hairy little arachnid missed its big chance to score victory after its opponent grew motionless because some one forgot to wind it. The spider was found asleep under a tiny web canopy on its twenty-second day in the clock. It only stirred sleepily at attempts to rouse it for news reel camera men.

Dr. W. C. Kraatz, head of the biology department at Akron University, reports discovery on the clock face of what may be egg clusters.

Humane society officials ordered the spider released within a week or so. Dr. Kraatz says no cruelty is involved. He thinks the spider is existing on stored up food tissues and would probably hibernate if released.

Autoist Settles For Tags With 300 Pennies

Cashier James McClymonds, of Traffic Court, is "pennywise" today because a conscientious motorist paid for two parking violations with 300 pennies at opening of the court. This is the first time a tag has been paid in this manner, according to McClymonds.

They were issued to W. E. Bailey, 185 Noble avenue, Crafton. The man's only comment as he poured the pennies from a black bag was:

"I was going to the bank."

Billings Wants Parole, Would Like to Marry

FOLSOM PRISON, Cal., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Warren K. Billings, serving a life sentence in Folsom Prison for the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day parade bombing, denied yesterday he would seek an ordinary parole, but said he would seek a 20-day "release" upon condition that he return voluntarily to the penitentiary after he had visited his aged mother in Brooklyn, N. Y.

When told what Billings suggested, Gov. James Rolph, Jr., said he would discuss the matter with the parole board. He was noncommittal concerning his reaction to the suggestion.

Billings said he would not apply, but would accept an ordinary parole if he could name the conditions of the release. He said he wanted to marry, go into business for himself and write a book on his experiences.

Billings said he wanted the release to visit his mother, if such a privilege were possible, under the condition that he take himself back to the prison gates when his liberty period was ended.

Britain, in New Note, Seeks Reconsideration

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(INS.)—The British government reiterated its demand that the United States accept conditional payment of the December 15 war debt instalment, in a new note made public today.

The note, made public while the British cabinet was in session, was the latest development in the lightning diplomacy that has characterized the American-British war debt negotiations since Sunday.

It stated in no uncertain terms that the British government had reached its decision to pay with reservations after "mature consideration." The text of the brief communication, delivered to Secretary of State Stimson last night before the cabinet had a chance to approve it, follows:

"In reply to the United States government's note of December 11, His Majesty's government desires to emphasize that the purpose of their note of even date was to state clearly their own position in regard to payment on December 15 and to explain the circumstances under which they had decided to make the payment.

"It was not, of course, the intention of their note to touch on any matters affecting the constitutional position of the United States government.

"Their note should be read, therefore, as relating to their own position, which they have taken after mature consideration.

"They are prepared to make payment on the 15th of December in the light of the considerations set out in their note of the 11th of December, and they must reserve the right to recur to these considerations in examination of the whole question, to which the United States government has agreed.

"They would again emphasize the importance of entering upon that examination without loss of time."

U. S. May Not Reply To New British Note

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—The United States will send no reply to the latest note from Great Britain on the war debts.

After repeated conferences today between President Hoover, Secretary Stimson and Secretary Mills, the impression in informed quarters was distinctly that the United States and Great Britain now understand each other's position.

No reason is seen in official circles for the United States to reject the payment expected from Great Britain on Thursday.

TRUNK SLAYER TO FIGHT ON

FLORENCE, Ariz., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, Arizona's trunk murderess, called her husband and attorneys into conference here today at the state prison to lay plans to prevent her execution which the State Supreme Court has set for February 17.

Mrs. Judd's only hope for immediate delay in yesterday's court's order is a formal petition to that body for a rehearing of the arguments presented when the new trial was sought. Arthur C. Verge of Los Angeles, one of the condemned woman's attorneys, said the application for a rehearing would be filed immediately.

Three other possible avenues of escape from the death penalty also were open. She may appeal to the state board of pardons and parole; she may obtain a sanity hearing before a Pinal County jury, but only at the request of the warden of the state prison; or she may appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

SLAG COMBINE ADMITTED

The existence of a slag combine to bring high prices for county purchased slag was admitted today by J. E. Cashion, president of the Cashion Slag Company, of Donora, who offered to bid after County Supplies Director Ray Sprigle told the Commissioners no bids answered his advertisement for 50,000 tons of slag.

Cashion declared he was no longer connected with the combine and said he would bid if the county re-worded their specifications which ask for "no more than 500,000 tons." Sprigle was asked to learn the county's exact need, and to advertise accordingly.

Rockefeller Heir Sued for $100,000

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—The praecipe of a suit for $100,000 damages was filed yesterday against Edwin D. Krenn, real estate operator and heir to five-twelfths of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick's fortune, on behalf of Robert Somerville, art show owner.

Attorney George J. Dreiske said declaration of the suit would charge malicious prosecution in connection with an embezzlement charge against Somerville two years ago. Somerville was charged with misappropriating a check allegedly delivered to him by Krenn for another firm.

Honor Maj. Hay At Vet Luncheon

A luncheon in honor of the eighty-eighth birthday of Maj. A. B. Hay, assistant district attorney of Allegheny County and oldest member of the Allegheny County Bar Association, was given in the Nixon Restaurant today by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Maj. Baird-Atwood Post, No. 285, of which he is a member. Hay has been a member of the Allegheny County Bar for 66 years and is a Civil War veteran.

RADIO SINGER DIVORCED

Harold E. Heimert, of 5860 Solway street, didn't dream that the lure of ambition would draw his ship of matrimony on the rocks when he married Delphine M. Heimert in 1917.

But that's just what happened, and Judge Samuel H. Gardner sympathized with Heimert sufficiently to grant him a divorce yesterday when Heimert said that his wife's ambitions for a musical career drew her from their Squirrel Hill home to Los Angeles, Cal.

Before leaving Pittsburgh and her husband in July, 1929, Mrs. Heimert did some radio and concert work here. The call of the footlights drew her first to New York and then to California, Heimert testified.

Other testimony with which Heimert substantiated his charge of cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities, included allegation that Mrs. Heimert allowed their 12-year-old daughter to "run wild," that Mrs. Heimert's conversational abilities were limited.

Men Reject Rail Pay Cut Extension

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Railway brotherhood delegates rejected today the proposal of the railroad managements that the deadline next January 31 for termination of the present temporary 10 per cent wage reduction of rail employes be extended indefinitely.

Alexander F. Whitney, chairman of the employes' representatives at the joint wage scale conference, presented the answer of the brotherhoods to the executives at the opening of today's joint session.

He made clear that labor would not accept any indefinite extension of the present wages, but would be willing to discuss an extension if a definite termination were fixed.

Wood, Grid Star, Shows Players Ignore Crowds

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 13.—(INS.)—The medical world today surveyed the latest accomplishment of Barry Wood, whose performance on the football field for Harvard gained him all-America recognition, and whose excellence in scholarship brought him Phi Beta Kappa honors.

While playing football, hockey and baseball, Wood, now a medical student at Johns Hopkins University, used himself as a laboratory experiment, the results of which he compiled into a thesis, proclaimed by scientists as one of the most original works of research ever completed by an undergraduate at Harvard.

The thesis, according to word reaching Harvard, has been published by the Bietsphysiologie, internationally known scientific publication, and has attracted wide attention in European medical circles.

During the 1931 football season, when Wood was captain of the Crimson team, he conducted blood tests upon himself and many of his teammates before and after the football games and scrimmages.

One of the principal results of the survey set forth by Wood was that the number of white corpuscles in the blood increased 300-fold during a regulation football game

The study also revealed that the blood pressure of an athlete is no greater playing an important game before a big crowd of spectators than when engaging in a scrimmage on an empty practice field.

HUNT GANGLAND FOR KILLER OF BANDMASTER

Eviction of Girl Friend Of Politician Linked In Mystery Murder

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—The theory that Edwin O. Schildhauer may have been the victim of underworld vengeance today dominated the efforts of investigators striving to solve the mystery surrounding the kidnaping and murder of the young high school bandmaster.

Authorities scanned police and federal records to determine the location of a beer parlor reportedly raided on information supplied by the 28-year-old music master. According to this latest evidence, Schildhauer had caused the raid after some of the members of the Austin High School band had reported for practice in an inebriated condition.

This incident, police believed, might have stirred up the wrath of gangland against the handsome bandmaster.

EVICTION OF GIRL

Another possible source of underworld anger was seen in information to the effect that Schildhauer had once caused the eviction of a girl tenant from the apartment building where he made his home with his beautiful wife. According to this report, the apartment from which the girl was evicted was maintained by a political figure allied with gangsters.

To permit time for the investigation of this new evidence the coroner's inquest into Schildhauer's death was continued until December 28 after the dark-haired widow had testified, repeating the story of how she had seen her husband seized and carried off in an automobile to his death by two men.

TEACHER TELLS STORY

Another development in the baffling case was disclosure of the "mystery girl's" identity as Miss Mary Denvir, 28, formerly a teacher at the school where Schildhauer was employed.

Miss Denvir told police that on one occasion Mrs. Schildhauer had telephoned her and warned her "to quit going around with her husband." The girl said she sought the advice of Principal Wright of Austin High School. She said:

"Mr. Wright asked me if I would be willing to repeat it all in the presence of Mr. Schildhaur and I said I would. So Mr. Schildhauer was brought in and I did repeat it. He then said that his wife had called up two or three other women and threatened them as she had me.

"Up to that time I never had even spoken to Mr. Schildhauer; I had never gone out with him of course."

TREATY TO BA MELLON GRANT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—The State Department agreed today to a reservation on the St. Lawrence waterway treaty, if necessary to prevent granting a permanent right to the Aluminum Company of America for diversion of water for power.

Assistant Secretary James G. Rogers told the Senate foreign relations sub-committee considering the treaty, he had no objections to a reservation demanded by Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the New York Power Authority, to prevent the Aluminum company from obtaining a permanent grant of the right to divert water for its power project at Messena.

Rogers contended, however, that there was nothing in the treaty which affected the Aluminum company's right to the water, as testified earlier in the day by Walsh.

Walsh had testified that under present terms of the treaty the government would spend more than a million dollars for the construction of works in connection with the diversion of water to the Aluminum company plant.

Reed Offers Bill To Get Vets Jobs

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, has introduced, on request, a bill to make it the duty of the veterans' administration to find "suitable and gainful occupations" for disabled veterans.

CROWD HEARS DARROW, MUSMANNO DEBATE ON SOUL

JUDGE DISPUTES 'ASH-CAN' END OF ALL LIFE

'Forget It, Die Happy,' Argues Aged Agnostic In Charity 'Show'

Clarence Darrow, veteran criminal lawyer and agnostic, and Judge M. A. Musmanno, of the Allegheny County Court, swapped verbal punches in 100 minutes of debate to no decision on the age-old question of immortality of man, in Carnegie Music Hall, last night.

An audience of 1,600 heard the 75-year-old Darrow, expound his belief that the soul is non-existent—in his words, "when you're dead, you're dead"—and the young Allegheny County jurist argue that all life and nature is convincing evidence that there is life after death.

Judge Elder W. Marshall, of Common Pleas Court, presided.

The proceeds of the ticket sale will be distributed as Christmas charity by the two afternoon newspapers.

GOOD HUMOR

The speakers thrust and parried their oral barbs humorously, Musmanno telling his audience he hoped to convince his opponent so that he would throw off "this moody, pessimistic theory," which he described as the only shortcoming in his otherwise "shining armor."

Musmanno said:

"Why expect ocular proof that man lives again? We do not ask ocular proof of everything in our everyday life. All the probabilities that there is life after death, an intelligence outside our physical selves, are on our side."

23-CENT SLUMP

He pointed out that science had found several years ago that the human body consisted of certain matter, the monetary value of which, at that time, was reckoned at 98 cents, and added:

"On account of the depression, and the fall in prices, we therefore might figure the physical value of ourselves at the present at about 75 cents."

He refused to believe, the jurist said, that with death, men are "thrown into the ash-can of time."

Musmanno asserted man's sense of consciousness is no older with age than it is in his youth, and later in the debate, produced writings of Darrow, which, he said, disclosed his opponent's recognition of that fact. He also used these writings to argue Darrow himself had recognized a power beyond his physical self.

'IMMORTALITY DREAM'

The sharp-tongued Darrow said Musmanno had not and could not prove that man possesses a soul, and defied him to define it. He said:

"Immortality is a dream, buoyed up by the will to believe. In a couple of generations we will quit believing in immortality and will live better and die happy."

He asserted:

"Nobody believes in immortality—they only talk about it. Man thinks; an ape doesn't, says my opponent. Even Bryan knew better than that. Man came from an ape. Lots of them show it. The human race still could stand a great deal of improvement.

"Did you ever see a Christian who wanted to die? I never did. Nobody sticks any closer to the doctor than a Christian. Therefore, their conduct belies their talk in every instance. They know life is full of pain, rheumatism, gout, that the windows stick, but still they want to live."

'KIND OF HASH'

Replying later, Musmanno said:

"Darrow says we're a kind of anthropoidal hash. I speak of consciousness of the spirit, the soul, not that of the physical body."

The judge dealt at length on the physical suffering endured by Christian martyrs; pointed to the beautiful works of men inspired, he said, by a power outside their physical selves, and asserted that while he had to prove he was right, Darrow had only to parry his arguments.

To Darrow's caustic statement that the subject was not one for intelligent people to discuss, Musmanno replied:

"Yet he comes all the way from Chicago to discuss it."

Mexican Officials Bar Edna Ferber

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 13.—(Universal.)—Edna Ferber, American novelist and magazine writer, was barred from Mexico yesterday in a ruling handed down by the Department of Immigration.

The department acted on the complaint of the Mexican Hotel Association, which declared Miss Ferber, in an article, had referred slightingly to Mexico.

DARROW BACKS WOMAN KILLER

Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer, said here last night that it is unlikely Mrs. Beatrice Ferguson Snipes, an expectant mother, would be put to death in the electric chair in South Carolina for the killing of a highway policeman. She is under sentence to die April 7. She is to give birth to a child early in January.

Darrow said he believed appeals in her behalf will result in commutation of the sentence in view of her condition at the time the crime was committed. He said:

"At such a time, a woman should not be held wholly accountable."

Darrow, whose fame as a humanitarian has brought many requests for his legal services in such cases, said he had not been asked to espouse the cause of Mrs. Snipes, and probably would not be asked to do so. He described as "poppycock" assertions that, because of her condition, a jury of the woman's peers could not be found to try her.

GAMBLES LIFE FOR 'LIGHTNING' CANCER CURE

2,500,000-Volt Bolt Shot Through Man Trembling in Fear

By CHARLES FLICK
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1932, International News Service, Inc.)

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—A charge of 2,500,000 volts of electricity were shot through a human body in a Berlin laboratory today in one of the most sensational experiments in the history of science.

The man who voluntarily subjected himself to this amazing experiment was near death with cancer, described as a "hopeless case." Scientists believe now his life has been saved as a result of today's electrical experiment.

The two German scientists who conducted the experiment, Prof. Ludwig Halberstaedter, chief of the Berlin Radium Institute, and Dr. Stephen Beck, of the Berlin Institute of Cancer Research, declared they believed they had at last found a cure for cancer.

GREATEST VOLTAGE

The electric charge, the greatest X-ray voltage ever created by man, was declared to be the equivalent of over 100 tons of radium in the cancer treatment.

The experiment was carried out in the same laboratory where Drs. Fritz Lange and Arno Brasch have been splitting atoms. Using the same apparatus invented by these two scientists for studying the atom, Prof. Halberstaedter and Dr. Beck decided to make the first step into a new and untrodden field in a test with the human body.

The patient, Heinrich Wanke, a farmhand, 55, was conducted to a chair on an elevated platform in a little cabin. Before him was a plate on which he laid his diseased arm.

Meanwhile, the air was being pumped out of the cathodic tube, creating an absolute vacuum within it. Drs. Brasch and Lange adjusted the apparatus, while nurses quieted the patient.

TREMBLES IN FEAR

Then curtains were let down on three sides of the cabin, while the fourth was left open. In front of this was a huge steel wall containing a thick plate-glass window.

Inside sat the patient, wild-eyed and trembling. He had been told the experiment would mean instant death or probable cure.

Then Lange and Brasch gave the signal to begin. Vast condensers, submerged in oil, began to crackle, and sparks jumped from one side of the room to another. The laboratory suddenly was darkened, resembling a big death chamber. Then came a terrific crash.

In one-ten thousandth of a second, with a speed only 1.3 per cent less than that of light, the man-made thunderbolt of 2,500,000 volts shot through the patient.

The experiment was repeated four times, each time a different angle of the cancer growth being exposed to the deadly beam of electrons emanating from the cathodic tube. The entire treatment lasted 10 minutes.

After the experiment Dr. Beck said that the method "still was in the experimental stage."

The experiment was carried out in strict secrecy, owing to the possibility that the patient might have been killed.

KAISER'S MAD VISITOR SENT TO GERMANY

Armed Man Captured In Castle at Doorn Denies Aim to Kill

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Franz Hillmklott, who eluded the guards and made his way into the exile home of former Kaiser Wilhelm at Doorn yesterday, was put across the frontier into Germany this afternoon.

The police, considering him to be mentally deficient, decided not to prosecute him.

He was discovered crouching yesterday in the so-called turret room of the castle, adjoining the ex-Kaiser's study. He was armed with a long dagger and a revolver.

Police said he slipped into the grounds behind an automobile and succeeded in entering the vestibule of the castle last Sunday. He asked a servant to direct him to the Kaiser.

He appeared to be unbalanced and was refused admittance. He said in fluent German that he would call again.

When caught yesterday, police said, he refused to give any information other than that he had no

The intruder said he had a letter from Adolf Hitler which he wanted to give the former Kaiser, but the police have refused to say whether they found such a letter.

SOCIETY KIDNAP PLOT FOILED

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—What detectives described as a "plot to kidnap and murder" 19-year-old Bernice Dearden, daughter of Robert R. Dearden, socially prominent Philadelphia publisher, apparently was frustrated last night by county detectives.

For hours investigators lay in wait for the sender of two threatening letters to the Deardens' home in suburban Oak Lane, demanding the publisher leave $5,000 in an envelope near Fairmount Park.

They finally arrested James Sallee, 21, a former resident in the neighborhood of the Dearden home, after detectives said he appeared and picked up a dummy package cached at a spot mentioned in one of the letters.

Howard N. Cunningham, in charge, fired several shots into the air. He declared Sallee dropped the letter and submitted to arrest.

Chief of County Detectives Connolly said later Sallee admitted sending letters to Dearden.

GIRL VANISHES, FEAR KIDNAPING

A fictitious telephone call today led the parents of Naomi Ewart, 16-year-old Liberty Junior High School basketball star, to fear their daughter, missing since last week, has been kidnaped.

The girl left her home at 540 South Graham street last Thursday. Her sister, Anna Mae, talked with her at noon. She has not been seen since.

When she failed to return home, the mother became alarmed. At 11 o'clock a telephone call supposed to be from a girl friend in Glenshaw said that Naomi would be late returning as she was rehearsing for a school play.

When she failed to return Friday the mother, Mrs. Gertrude Ewart, began a search. The telephone call proved fictitious.

The police and Missing Persons Bureau were asked to search for the girl today. She is described as being five feet two inches tall, weighing 95 pounds, with brown eyes and hair. She wore a red dress, brown coat with fur collar, and black shoes.

Two Women Saw Way Out of Cells

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 13.—(INS.)—Edna Murray and Irene McCann, two of the state's most "hard-boiled" women prisoners, escaped from the prison farm a mile east of here today by sawing their way out of cells designated for incorrigibles.

It is the third escape for the Murray woman and the second for Mrs. McCann.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure areas are centered over the plateau section and Kansas and Oklahoma, with diminishing pressure, while lows are centered over Manitoba, Eastern Tennessee and Western North Carolina and in the Far Southwest. These low pressure areas and the tendency to falling pressure over the country is causing much cloudiness and large areas of rain or snow. The principal rain area is over the Gulf states and over Virginia and North Carolina, while it is snowing over Indiana and Kentucky and over the northwestern states. It is colder than yesterday over the states east of the Mississippi, while over the West temperatures are rising. Relatively low pressure will dominate the weather over this section during the next few days, and we may expect mostly cloudy weather with some light rain or snow. There will be no extremely cold weather.

AMY RESUMES FLIGHT

LAGOS, Nigeria, Africa, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Amy Johnson, British flier who seeks a new Cape Town-to-London record, today left Duala, Cameroons, at 9 a. m., local time (3 p. m. E. S. T.), according to an unconfirmed report received here.

No news had been received of her progress since she passed over Loanda yesterday morning heading for Duala.

Last night the airwoman was unreported for many hours after she was overdue from Benguella Angola.

Woman's Store Holds Day for 'Men Only'

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Men only!

The management of a woman's store said that last night and meant it.

Except for female clerks, all women in the store were compelled to get out and stay out.

The idea was to make it possible for a man to buy unmentionables for his wife or sweetheart without incurring the risk of having the lady herself step up behind him and start chuckling.

Deb's Divorced Cowboy Happy Back on Range

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 13.—(INS.)—The lively songs of the Chisholm Trail are sweeter than the muffled "blues" of an elite jazz orchestra for the "Cowboy Artist of Santa Ritas" who scoffed at millions.

And so Paul Showalter, curley-haired, young and handsome, was back today in his old haunts of the Arizona range. Only a few months ago he was divorced, after a week's honeymoon, by Caroline Crittenden, one of the richest and most beautiful of Pittsburgh debutantes. Now he is back leading the life he loves. He said:

"I like the outdoors—it means everything to me. I couldn't live cooped up in a big city.

"A bed roll, a rainproof slicker, and a good horse are all that this cowboy wants—that's real life and real living."

Showalter is more than an ordinary cowpuncher. His talents enclose many fields.

He is best known for his paintings. Since arriving in the Southwest he has taken up brush and pallet to paint in rich oils the beauties of the desert land. His works are widely purchased.

MILK SHOWER FOILS HOLDUP

North Side police today were searching for an armed thug whom Charles Carr, manager of a chain store at 722 Tripoli street, routed when he demanded the contents of the cash register last night.

Carr, Elizabeth Huff, 20, of 839 Suismon street, a clerk, and Conrad Pfeiffer, of 832 Spring Garden avenue, a customer, were ordered to throw up their hands by the gunman. Instead of complying, Carr seized a bottle of milk from the counter and hurled it at the armed man, striking him in the shoulder. Splashed by the milk, he fled without loot.

Two automobile bandits escaped with $18 after holding up E. T. Parreck and W. F. McGoorty, attendants in a Gulf gasoline station at Kelly street and Lang avenue, last night.

Ex-Pittsburgher Made Rear Admiral

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Samuel Wood Bryant, former Pittsburgher, has been advanced to the rank of rear admiral in the list of promotions of naval officers announced by President Hoover today. Bryant has an exceptional active service record, having served in the Spanish-American War while a cadet, and having been awarded the Navy Cross in the World War. He lived on the South Side, Pittsburgh, and attended Pittsburgh Academy.

CONTROL BOARD URGED FOR MAYVIEW

authority at Mayview. Liggett, who recently made a tour of inspection of the institution, found no fault with its operation, but averred:

"There is just one thing lacking. Mrs. Rauh is president of the board of directors and Dr. Hammers is vice president. If you get a list of outstanding citizens and have the board meet once a week perhaps, it would be a good thing."

Liggett informed Council the the city institution is feeding patients on 50 cents a day and spoke highly of the management. He also pointed out that the Mayview coal mine is in good condition, giving the cost of operation for the past year as $1.30 a ton.

DOCTORS VOLUNTEER

A possible solution of the need for more physicians in Mrs. Rauh's department to attend charity cases was offered Council by Dr. Henry J. Benz, chief of the school doctors in the Department of Public Health, who said his staff of 30 would voluntarily make between 80 and 90 charity calls a day. Mrs. Rauh previously had asked Council for additional doctors in her department.

It is now believed that the tax rate may be set tomorrow. Council is pledged to set the tax rate by Thursday.

Councilman Robert Garland recommended to Council today the payroll of the North Side Library be reduced to conform with reductions voluntarily made by Samuel Harden Church in the Pittsburgh Carnegie Library.

President of Council John S. Herron gave the first public indication that Council has a complete program for reducing the $25,000,000 budget when he told the Better Traffic Committee to reduce its estimate of $219,443. He said:

Questions from Councilman P. J. McArdle brought out from John M. Rice, of the committee, that the number of officers stationed at corners where lights are in operation is determined by the Department of Public Safety. McArdle suggested the committee make a study of the need for police on controlled corners and was told this would be done.

Officials of Stationary Engineers' Local Union No. 95 were in Council to protest against the proposed replacement of 21 second assistant engineers in the Bureau of Water with nine laborers.

The city's investment in machinery at the pumping stations would be jeopardized if the second assistants are laid off, according to Charles Miller, business agent of the union.

A committee from the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association will confer with the budget committee of City Council at 10 a. m. tomorrow and present information and suggestions towards economy in the automobile and maintenance problems of the city garages, W. N. Owings, secretary of the association, said today.

Taxpayers' Strike Looms In Wilkinsburg

Threatening a taxpayers' strike unles further tax reductions are effected, the Wilkinsburg Taxpayers' Association, whose members say they pay nearly two-thirds of the borough taxes, delivered an ultimatum last night to Borough Council.

Couched in peremptory terms, a letter asking reduction of 1½ mills was presented by a committee headed by Robert Hutchison, president of the association; Rex H. Newton and Charles Sager.

A similar ultimatum demanding two mills be lopped from the school tax levy was handed to the school board last Saturday.

Unless further reductions are granted, the letter said, members of the association would withhold payment of any further taxes to the regular tax collector and, instead, would deposit them in escrow with a trust company.

Councilmen received the message without comment and referred it to the finance committee for a report at the next semimonthly meeting.

Duquesne Councilmen Ignore Petitioners.

While a committee from the Duquesne Taxpayers' Association, representing 2,500 city property holders, cooled their heels in the City Council chambers last night, Mayor James Crawford and the four members of Council, in an adjoining room, went into the 1933 budget and millage-setting session.

Emerging from the room shortly after 10 o'clock, and seeing the committee, Crawford asked why they were waiting. Told they wanted to learn outcome of the taxpayers' plea for a reduced millage, he said:

"You are welcome to wait. We probably won't be through here until after midnight."

He offered no explanation of the executive session and returned to the committee room.

McKeesport Abolishes $1 School Poll Tax

Abolition of the annual $1 school poll tax was voted last night by the McKeesport School Board because it has proven too expensive to collect.

Edgar M. Mack, newly elected president of the board, said that of the total $15,000 assessed, not more than $5,000 is collected and the board has no recourse.

Brookline Tax Rally Hears School Heads

High cost of city government was attacked, ways of tax cutting were argued and Dr. A. L. Lewin and Philip Murray, school directors, upheld the 1933 school budget at a protest meeting last night of the Brookline Board of Trade.

Dr. Lewin's address came after W. M. McMann, chairman of the board's tax committee, read a report which charged the cost of city government had increased while commodity prices had decreased. The report noted that the school board had failed to reduce taxes.

Dr. Lewin declared Pittsburgh schools had climbed from twenty-ninth place in 1911 to first place at present.

Closing Asphalt Plants Will Be Opposed

The plan of Supplies Director Ray Sprigle to close the five county asphalt plants next year will meet opposition in budget sessions to get under way January 10. In his 1933 estimate for the asphalt division, Sprigle asks only $24,182, a decrease of $234,284.90 from this year's appropriation. He sought funds only for maintenance and watchmen.

Commissioner W. D. Mansfield today opposed closing the plants.

Indications are the Commissioners will have to slash the budget by more than $2,500,000, if expenditures stay within the income.

County Asks Rule On $1,000 to Kline

The County Commissioners today sought to determine whether the county must pay Mayor Charles H. Kline the $1,000 a year provided for him as a member of the county prison board. An act of the Legislature of 1861 authorizes the county to pay this amount because the mayor is the board magistrate. County Solicitor J. P. Fife was asked for an opinion whether payment is mandatory.

County Controller Robert G. Woodside said the Mayor had collected the money every year except the amount appropriated for 1932.

Two Drivers Held In Fatal Collision

INDIANA, Pa., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Charged with involuntary manslaughter in connection with the collision of a bus and a truck near Blairsville, in which Elio Parpovich, 45, of Pittsburgh, was killed, drivers of both vehicles were held in jail today.

The prisoners, F. J. Kirby, 29, of Pittsburgh, who operated the coach, and Nickolas Mudrich, 20, also of Pittsburgh, driver of the truck, said they might post bail late today.

Police Investigate Death of Brakeman

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 13.—Police are investigating the death of William M. Wadsworth, 49, Derry brakeman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, who, fatally hurt, was discovered by trainmen lying on the tank of the engine. It is believed he may have been injured in a battle with tresspassers.

Bowlers Protest Changing Green For Tennis

"To bowl or not to bowl" is the newest question before City Council.

Council's action last week in ordering Public Works Director Edward G. Lang to change Pittsburgh's one and only bowling green in Schenley Park to tennis courts brought protest today from the Schenley Pioneer, Lawn Bowling Club.

Council was reminded that bowling greens are "an old Scottish custom" when the club's letter pointed out its members had spent considerable money for bowling equipment that couldn't possibly be used on a tennis court. Lang was ordered to confer with the club's members before making any changes on the greens.

announced the services at the home and interment will be private—a time-honored tradition of the Holland family.

RECEIVED MANY HONORS

One of the most distinguished of the world's scholars, Dr. Holland has received honors from educational and scientific societies, honors from rulers of Europe, and the acclaim of his neighbors.

The method of filtration, its plant and system in Pittsburgh was the result of a study he made after visiting Europe and studying their systems. His recommendation aided in checking typhoid fever, then prevalent here.

He came here first as pastor of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church in 1874, after being educated at Moravian and Amherst Colleges and Princeton Theological Seminary. He was interested in languages, taught Latin and Greek, and understood Hebrew and most of the modern languages. He was interested in butterflies, moths, and other biological and botanical pursuits.

Dr. Holland visited Africa and Japan in the last century, and became, in 1891, chancellor of the Western University of Pennsylvania, now Pitt. Later headed Carnegie Museum, became a Carnegie Institute trustee, head of the Carnegie Hero Fund commission and trustee of the Carnegie Corporation.

DECORATED BY RULERS

When Andrew Carnegie became interested in prehistoric American life, Dr. Holland obtained John B. Hatcher, leading paleontologist, to conduct research, out of which came the skeleton of the colossal dinosaur, world-famous diplodocus Carnegie, replicas of which were installed in nine of the natural museums of Europe and America.

To nearly every leading European power, and within the last decade, Mexico, replicas of this mighty dinosaur were presented in the Carnegie name by Dr. Holland. Honored in return, the German Kaiser, President Fallieres of France, Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria, King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, the Czar of Russia, Alfonso of Spain, and the King of Belgium decorated him. From 1918 to 1922 he was Belgian consul for Western Pennsylvania.

Besides exploring for new species, writing scientific booklets and volumes on other topics, Dr. Holland was a painter. He illustrated books, and painted landscapes during his vacations or trips afield. He headed many scientific societies, and was awarded honorary degrees by a number of universities.

W. U. P. GROWTH

As chancellor of W. U. P., Dr. Holland guided its development, establishing electrical and mining engineering departments and medicine, law, dentistry and pharmacy schools.

He was also trustee of the Pennsylvania College for Women, Washington and Jefferson College and the Western Theological Seminary.

Dr. Holland was born August 16, 1848, in Bethany, near Mandeville, Jamaica, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Francis Raymond Holland, Moravian missionaries from Salem, N. C. Later, his father returned to take a pastorate in Salem, now Winston-Salem. During the Civil War the family returned to his mother's home city, Bethlehem, Pa. He finished Moravian College in 1867, and at the time of his death was its oldest alumnus and trustee.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Carrie T. Moorhead Holland, with whom on January 23, 1929, he observed his golden wedding anniversary, and two sons, Moorhead B. Holland, vice president of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, and Francis Raymond Holland, artist, of New York.

School Girls Hurt By Skidding Auto

SHARON, Pa., Dec. 13.—Two girls, Sheakleyville High School sophomores, were injured, one seriously, when struck by an automobile which skidded on a hill while they were walking home from school. Frieda McMasters, 15, is in Spencer Hospital, Meadville, with a broken collarbone and back injuries, while Dorothy Schofield, suffered head injuries.

The machine was owned by Mrs. Mary Berryhill, of North East, Pa., formerly of Pittsburgh.

Cab Driver Slain In Taxi Warfare

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—One taxicab driver was shot to death, another was reported missing and three men were arrested as a result of what police said was a flaring up of the Eastbay "taxi war" today.

The slain driver Alfred K. Scarborough, 28, was found dead on the seat of his cab at a Richmond street intersection. The missing driver was Raymond K. Walker, whose cab, the front seat spattered with blood, was found abandoned.

The streams of water were as big around as a man's arm, very powerful.

New York City owns its own water supply, that comes from the Catskill Mountains through the nozzle of the big hose by the power of gravitation. How much do you suppose it would cost New York if that water were supplied by private ownership instead of public ownership?

OLD PRESIDENT VON HINDENBURG, Germany's powerful man, eighty-five years of age, is ordered by doctors to take a rest, and stop going to late parties, and "drink very little beer and almost no wine."

It will amaze prohibitionists that Von Hindenburg could bear the brunt of the great war in his old age, and carry the load of the German government for so long, in spite of the fact that he drinks beer and light German wines instead of drinking nourishing ice water, with hot buckwheat cakes and mince pie to give him strength.

FRATS HELD DRINKING CLUBS

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(INS.)—Fraternities on the Columbia University campus counted their troubles today and considered them plenty.

First, the brotherhood of the brotherhoods as regards rushing flopped when the Psi Upsilon Chapter withdrew from a group acting under common rules for rushing and pledging, charging the rest of the chapters were doing a little double crossing in snaring likely freshmen.

Then came Sudduth Hart, alumni advisor to the Phi Gamma Delta Chapter with a declaration in the Spectator, undergraduate paper, that fraternity houses at Columbia are "little else than drinking clubs and houses of immorality."

Dean Herbert Hawkes today asked for proof and threatened to take stringent measures if any basis for the charges is found.

And the brothers, denying such a basis existed, looked hurt at Hart and tried to figure out a new pledging pact that would hold.

Miners Re-elect Lewis and Murray

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—John L. Lewis, Springfield, Ill., as unopposed for re-election as president of the United Mine Workers of America when members of the union balloted today on international officers.

Philip Murray, Pittsburgh, vice president and Thomas Kennedy, Hazleton, Pa., secretary-treasurer, also had no opposition and the three will serve for two more years.

JOY RIDER STEALS TROLLEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(INS.)—There's never a dull moment for young ladies dating Fred Krause, 24.

Krause, according to Brooklyn police, is an ingenious and entertaining chap.

He and a girl companion (still according to police) were walking near Prospect Park in Brooklyn when they noticed an unoccupied street car. Krause asked the girl:

"Wanta go for a ride?"

She did. Gallantly Krause escorted her into the car, saw her seated and manned the controls. Down Prospect Park west sailed the car, frantically pursued by Motorman Harry Feeney, who had been inhaling a cup of coffee after his run, and Patrolman Henry Holland, who commandeered a taxi to give chase.

The pair caught up with Krause when he halted the car for a traffic light.

A New Merchandising Idea

Again, Donahoe's are FIRST in the entire United States with a NEW turkey merchandising idea—

And The Cause Of It Is:

Our turkey shippers have huge droves of live turkeys on hand—this year they have raised the largest crop ever.

They are face to face with a real problem—they must dispose of as many of these turkeys as possible during the Christmas holidays.

Our turkey shippers have appealed to us how best to dispose of these turkeys.

We told them—the one outstanding thing which will sell all the turkeys you have is a low price NOW! You have 15,000 head of live turkeys to sell; sell them now at a price that will surely move them out; don't hold out until next week hoping to get more money for them. Sell us (Donahoe's) 15,000 head of turkeys today, for delivery next week, at a LOW price, and we will immediately begin to take orders up to 15,000 head.

They sold—we bought—now it's YOUR turn to buy at the LOWEST price you've EVER bought the finest turkeys in the land—and we guarantee that if the price goes lower—YOU get the benefit of the price decline. If the market goes up, you are money ahead.

A Deposit of 50c Required On Every Turkey Ordered

You'll want one of Donahoe's Fifth Avenue Turkeys DeLuxe for Christmas, so place your order NOW—a deposit of 50c is required—and you are guaranteed against an increase in price. By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor

Well, fans, let's hope this original Cipher No. 24 will give you lots of enjoyment. It was handed in by Samuel Williams, Jr.

The Cipher Editor thinks it will stick quite a few of you, but it may seem easy to some. Although there are plenty of numbers in it, you won't find any waltz numbers. And cracks like that ruin appetites for ciphers like this.

"Bogie" stumbled and fell quite a few times in reaching for his headache pills, until he began to see light after 50 minutes of hard thinking. He set your time limit right there.

Cipher No. 23 was easy. To get the answer you used the reverse alphabet. "A" was No. 26 and "Z," "1." Decoded, it gave you:

EARLY TO BED AND EARLY TO RISE MAKES A MAN HEALTHY, WEALTHY AND WISE.

STEEL PROCESS TOPIC AT MEET

A process of making steel tubes, by which, it is claimed, an actual grain growth of the steel at the joints is obtained, will be discussed tonight by A. N. Otis at a joint meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

The new process of forming tubes from cold rolled strip is made possible by electric heat, according to Otis, industrial engineer of the General Electric Company. The strips first are copper plated and then wrapped on a mandrel. The tube is then passed through an electric furnace and submitted to a heat of 2,200 degrees Fahrenheit. The furnaces operate in an artificial atmosphere of hydrogen at a low pressure equivalent to about two inches of water. Otis claims this method provides low cost, high quality tubes.

Goodwill Industries Sees Toy 'Famine'

Although a small army of men and women is busy daily at the Goodwill Industries, Liberty avenue and Twenty-eighth street, repairing toys, one of the expert toy repairmen declares there is a "toy famine" this year. Dr. A. G. Curry, director of Goodwill, reported unless "there is a windfall" hundreds of poor youngsters will be without even a 10-cent toy Christmas morning.

Can You Tell the Difference?

One of the two half-sections above is a high-priced Kashan rug. The other is a Karastan, the finest American-made Oriental reproduction. Can you tell the original from the duplicate?

THERE are no other rugs like them! As different from the ordinary "American Oriental" rug as a diamond is from a crystal bauble!

A revolutionary rug that reproduces the art of the Orient with such fidelity that experts hesitate to distinguish between the priceless original and its inexpensive reproduction.

A special patented machine had to be invented and built to weave these twins of real Oriental rugs.

The same fine wools as in Oriental rugs, the same dyes are used and in the weaving no detail of the original is overlooked, even to the irregularities which add to the charm of the hand-woven product.

See these new rugs, feel them—walk on them. They will entirely change your conception of American Oriental rugs, for they are "twins" of real Orientals—at a fraction of the cost.

Seibel Discusses Theater Tonight

George Seibel, dramatic and literary critic of the Sun-Telegraph, discusses news and personalities of the theater during his weekly "Plays and Players" broadcast from the studios of WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

A quarter-hour of comedy with Uncle Bob and Betty as they read the Sun-Telegraph "funnies" is scheduled on WCAE at 6 tonight.

Speaking from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms, Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, flashes the latest news to WCAE and WJAS listeners at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m., and 6:30 p. m.

Greatest News Stories Broadcast

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(INS.)—J. V. Connolly, president of International News Service, Universal Service and King Features Syndicate, will make a radio address over the Columbia broadcasting system tomorrow afternoon on the subject, "The Most Important Stories of This Year and Next."

He will broadcast from the studios of WABC in New York, beginning at 4:45 p. m. The speech will be carried over a network of 52 stations, including WJAS, Pittsburgh. It will be short-waved to foreign countries and televised by station W2XAB.

The address will mark the second anniversary of the "going to press" program in which newspaper notables are heard every week.

Mr. Connolly enlisted the aid of the famous editor, Arthur Brisbane, in selecting the stories and events of this year likely to be of greatest importance when viewed from an historical perspective. Mr. Brisbane passed on the question to the more than 12,000,000 persons who read his "Today" column.

Letters from all parts of the country poured in to Mr. Connolly as a result. From these communications he prepared a concensus of them as the basis of his radio address.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter Of the Sun-Telegraph-Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello Ladies and Gentlemen:

First, thanks for all those kind cards and nice letters. Spent yesterday morning reading them. Makes it almost seem worthwhile to get sick.

Here's a note from John M. Bickell, Jr., of Carnegie, who answered Stella's mathematical brain twister, published here last week. You make it look easy, John. From now on you're the Globe Trotter's Einstein.

John Kasofsky says he worked Stella's problem in about 40 seconds with the following result: One house was worth $12,000, the other $8,000. He lost $2,400 on the first and gained $1,600 on the second, his total loss being $800. Remember the problem? A man sells two houses for $9,600 each, loses 20 per cent on one and gains 20 per cent on the other, the total loss being $800.

And having forwarded his answer, Mr. Kasofsky submits one for Stella:

A farmer bought 100 head of stock for $100, paying $5 per cow, $1.50 per sheep and 50 cents per hog. How many of each did he get?

And so the newest gadget for bridge is the table which electrically shuffles and deals the cards. Nothing left for the poor dummy to do now but argue.

Dear Mr. O'Connor, Youngstown—Our sports editor says that Southern California clearly stated its position when it announced Pitt as its choice. It said that with several teams in line for the bid, it was forced to the decision that Pitt, having played the hardest schedule and coming through undefeated, was the team it should invite. Pressure from Michigan and Colgate alumni to force the game probably had a boomerang effect against their chances and then you must remember that when U. S. C. wished to play Northwestern a few years ago Michigan led the Big Ten warfare against the post-season battle. U. S. C. remembered the Michigan attitude, and when the Wolverines were in line for the bid this year, the Trojans disciplined Michigan by ignoring the Big Ten champions in extending the invitation.

CHALIAPIN -:- Noted Russian Basso Returns -:- ON THE AIR

Julian Huxley Broadcasts Tonight

Making his first microphone appearance since his return to this country after an absence of four years, Feodor Chaliapin, the tall, genial Russian basso, is presented as guest artist with Joseph Bonime's Symphony Orchestra during the Five Star Theater broadcast over CBS-WJAS tonight from 10 to 10:30. Chaliapin has chosen an aria from Mozart's opera, "Don Juan," and a group of three songs: "The Two Grenadiers," by Schumann; "Pleasant Chat," by Meyer-Helmund, and Malashkin's "Russian Romance" as his solos.

Chaliapin

From 11 to 11:30 p. m. the same facilities bring the Columbia Symphony concert, featuring John Corigliano, young Italian-American violinist who recently returned from a recital tour with Chaliapin, as soloist.

The Abbey Theater Irish Players, of Dublin, headed by Arthur Shields, who has played the title role in "White-headed Boy" more than 1,000 times; May Craig, F. J. McCormick and Maureen Delaney come to the KQV microphone tonight at 7:45 during the weekly Nixon Backstage Review. The program, listed for 15 minutes, is presented direct from the wings of the Nixon Theater, where the group is offering a repertoire of brilliant Irish plays this week.

Program Pointers

Julian Huxley, famed scientist of King's College, London, tells what the scientific world of 2050 will be like, predicting many sensational changes within the next century, and gives his opinion of Communism, religion and of the scientific world in general when he speaks over an NBC-WJZ network, including KDKA, at 9:30 tonight. Among British thinkers and men of science, Huxley holds a unique and distinguished position. He is a descendant of T. H. Huxley, Victorian apostle of evolution, and of Dr. Arnold, of Rugby. Aldous Huxley, English novelist, is a younger brother.

Prof. Huxley

"The Airplane Dynamiters," a thrilling story of the part played by government agents in frustrating the daring plot of a group of agitators, is the Magic Carpet dramatization on WCAE at 10. Jack Denny's orchestra provides the music.

Oskar Shumsky, 15-year-old violinist, is heard as soloist with the Curtis Symphony Orchestra over CBS-WJAS today from 4:15 to 5. The young prodigy recently has been heard over the same facilities as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra, under Stokowski, and the New York Philharmonica-Symphony, under Ernest Schelling.

Another old-fashioned songfest made up of songs written between 1892 and 1916 is the Sanderson-Crumit offering on WCAE at 8.

Dr. Luther Gulick, of the Institute of Public Administration; Prof. Harley L. Lutz, of Princeton University, and Dr. Russell Forbes, of the National Municipal League, discuss the topic, "Reforming Financial Methods," during "You and Your Government" on KDKA at 8.

Man Captured, Held In Bad Check Case

SHARON, Pa., Dec. 13.—F. M. Clark, of Jamestown, N. Y., was arrested at Greenville by Constable George Griffith, and held for court under $500 bail when arraigned before Alderman Hayes T. Brooks on charges of forgery and issuing bad checks. Ed. Porter, gasoline station proprietor, who cashed one of the checks, accompanied Constable Griffith to Greenville in a search for the man, and located him in a restaurant there.

Vanished W. & J. Student Sought

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 13.—Police and Washington and Jefferson authorities have been asked to aid a search for James George Hull, 20, freshman at the college and son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hull, of Venice, near Canonsburg, who has been missing since last Thursday.

Hull is 6 feet, weighs 145 pounds, has brown hair and wore blue trousers, a blue striped coat and a brown turtle-necked sweater.

Girl Coaster Killed As Sled Hits Pole

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 13.—Genevieve McCollum, 13, daughter of Rufus McCollum, of Lincoln Hill, was fatally injured last night while coasting on an abandoned section of the old National Pike.

She lost control of her sled and crashed into a telephone pole. She died before an ambulance reached the hospital.

Listening In—Art of Being Funny Serious Business For Jack Benny

Although Jack Benny is one of the funniest individuals on stage and radio, he's a most serious person in real life, and seems to be continually steeped in worries . . . When he works with his collaborators on his radio scripts, he wears his blue dressing gown and paces up and down his living room floor. With his grayish hair mussed, he looks more like a banker struggling with problems of finance than a funny man reaching for gags . . . His name always has caused him worry. First it was Ben Benny, and everybody got him all confused with a chap called Ben Bernie. So he changed it to Jack Benny—and now he's always getting mixed up with Jack Denny . . . and when it's not Denny it's Goodman Ace—because their voices are so much alike.

Mr. Benny

About "Mary," Jack Benny's Mrs. . . . She and the stage were total strangers until her marriage six years ago. Jack, trying to find something to keep her time occupied, gave her a bit in his act, and she took to the footlights as an operatic soprano takes to high notes. For his first 13 weeks on the air last spring, Jack performed without "Mary," but she became microphone-struck, pleaded for a chance on the air and clicked. Her real name is Sadie.

John Erskine rises to remark that there are two subjects which our presidents never mention in their annual messages to Congress—beauty and advice on love.

The bugle call on the Death Valley Days programs commemorates the signal once relayed from covered wagon to covered wagon in the early morning as the pioneers trekked westward across the plains.

A curious statistician figures out that the Magic Carpet drama scripts average 4,700 words each—enough to keep Floyd Gibbons talking at a 235-word-a-minute clip for 20 minutes without a station announcement.

Ann Harding, Leslie Howard and Neil Hamilton are listed to appear as Rudy Vallee's guest stars Thursday night.

One of Ben Bernie's men received a bundle the other day. It was the wrapping from a box of fruit cake sent by a fair young radio fan . . . Instead of the cake, though, was a card from the Ol' Maestro reading:

"Fo'give me, fo'give me. Opened and eaten by mistake."

Col. Stoopnagle is in Florida . . . basking on the sands and so on . . . and Budd is visiting his parents in Indiana. They'll be back on the air at the end of the month in a new series.

Angelo Patri, who's been facing a bedside microphone for the last month, is back in the studios—but still taking it easy.

COAL OFFERED, FATHER COX NEEDS 'GAS'

Father Cox had a gratifying offer from Frank Pirrung, representing a group of miners working on the South Side—at 245 Mountain street, Sixteenth Ward—of all the coal he can use for the needy if he will furnish the trucks to haul it. This mine is within the city limits and the coal can be hauled easily, but Father Cox has no funds to buy gasoline. It seems that he gets liberal donations of food and clothing, but cash donations are scarce. He has scores of families on his list who urgently need fuel and will appreciate special donations of cash or gasoline or trucks for this purpose. He has one large truck and one small truck available for hauling this coal.

In the meantime he has the "Coxtown" problem on his hands—a matter of more than 60 families that have "dug in" in shacks for the winter. The recent storm has made their conditions more acute. It is the first winter at "Coxtown" and far from the Utopia that the "father of the jobless" expects to make this community "when" times get better.

In the meantime the Sun-Telegraph subscription drive for the Father Cox unemployment relief fund is meeting with gratifying results. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page gives to Father Cox a liberal cash commission.

World War Veteran Takes Burgess Oath

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 13.—William E. Fields, World War veteran, decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross, today was sworn in as Burgess of South Brownsville. By a 5 to 4 vote, Council named him to succeed Burgess William L. Craft, fatally shot November 26.

OBITUARY

Richards Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jennie H. Richards, wife of the late George W. Richards, Sr., who died in the Homeopathic Hospital Sunday, will be held in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Radph S. Davis, 1772 Barr avenue, Crafton, with whom she made her home. She was born in Pittsburgh, the daughter of John W. and Mary Taylor, pioneer Pittsburgh residents. Her husband, for many years a tipstaff in Allegheny County courts, died four years ago. Besides Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Richards leaves three sons, John T., James E. and George W. Richards, Jr.; a brother, John W. Taylor, and 11 grandchildren.

Elizabeth A. Etzel

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Etzel, 70, died yesterday at her home, 1129 Greenfield avenue. Funeral services will be held at the Beinhauer funeral home, 2630 West Liberty avenue, at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Mrs. Etzel was born in Beaver County. She was a member of the German Evangelical Protestant Church, Joppa Chapter, O. E. S.; Syria Ladies' Club, the Oriental Shrine and the Mothers of Democracy. Besides her husband, George Etzel, she leaves three sons, Edward H., Elmer A. and William C. Etzel, and six daughters, Mrs. N. P. Bailey, Mrs. H. L. Dixon, Mrs. George W. Vetter, Mrs. Donald F. Gearhart, Elizabeth and Louise Etzel, and two sisters.

Mrs. Hugh E. Gority.

Funeral services for Mrs. Honora Gority, 52, who died in her home, 210 Brighton road, North Side, yesterday, will be held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. J. DeMuth, 930 Davis avenue, Thursday. Besides her daughter, Mrs. Gority leaves her husband, Hugh E.; four brothers, Abraham, William P., Edward P. and Francis A. Flinn, and three sisters, Mrs. P. W. Zieg, Mrs. M. A. Mulroy and Mrs. John L. Gadd. Requiem mass will be said at Assumption Church, Bellevue. Interment will be made in the North Side Catholic Cemetery.

Mrs. Victoria Miller.

Mrs. Victoria Miller died early today at her home, 3800 Perrysville avenue. Funeral services will be held Friday morning, at the home, with solemn requiem high mass at the Church of the Nativity, Franklin road. Mrs. Miller leaves her husband, George Miller, four sons, Clement J., Francis J., William A. and Vincent L. Miller; two daughters, Mrs. Mildred M. Hendrickson and Miss Angela Miller, and six grandchildren.

Bingham Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Irma S. Bingham, 26, will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles S. Williams, 2252 Almont street, Carrick. She was a member of Carrick Chapter No. 231, O. E. S. She leaves a son, her father, W. F. Simendinger; a sister and four brothers.

Cohill Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anne Van Buskirk Cohill, 75, who died Sunday, were held this afternoon at her late residence, 500 Walnut road, Ben Avon. Mrs. Cohill was born in Bloomsburg, Pa. She was a member of the Ben Avon Presbyterian Church. She leaves two sons, Maurice B., of Ben Avon, and Thomas H., of Morris Plains, N. Y.

PAIR ON BOND IN SHOOTING

Constable H. C. (Dudley) Quinn, 34, of Imperial, and Ralph Alloway, 32, Imperial garageman, today were under $1,000 bond each in the shooting of Foldy Puskar, a North Fayette Township constable, in an Imperial district roadhouse Saturday night.

Puskar was wounded in the legs. He is in the Mercy Hospital.

Quinn was quoted as telling Assistant Chief County Detective James McGinley he fired at the floor when threatened by Puskar and his friends. Quinn said an argument arose, according to McGinley, and he left the roadhouse to get aid. He deputized Alloway and returned to arrest Puskar and another man, he related. Surrounded by a crowd in the roadhouse, Quinn fired at the floor, he told McGinley.

Advertising Expert Shoots, Kills Self

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Howard J. Cunningham, 41, widely known advertising executive, shot and killed himself last night. His wife and members of his firm, the Green, Fulton & Cunningham Co., said they could give no reason for the suicide.

Ex-Congressman Dies in New Castle

Brownsvilles Move For Consolidation

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 13.—Councils of Brownsville and South Brownsville last night were given ordinances for the consolidation of the century-old municipalities. A vote will be taken May 2, next, if the ordinances are adopted.

TASTE BAD, BUT WATER'S PURE

Pittsburgh's water is safe to drink, despite many complaints regarding its taste, it was announced today by the Bureau of Water.

The bureau explains that heavy rainfall in November carried the taste of dried vegetation, particularly leaves, into the streams.

Analyses in all parts of the city show the bacterial condition of the water excellent, the bureau announces.

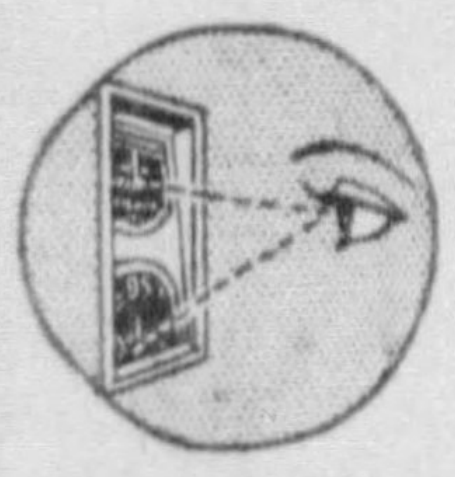
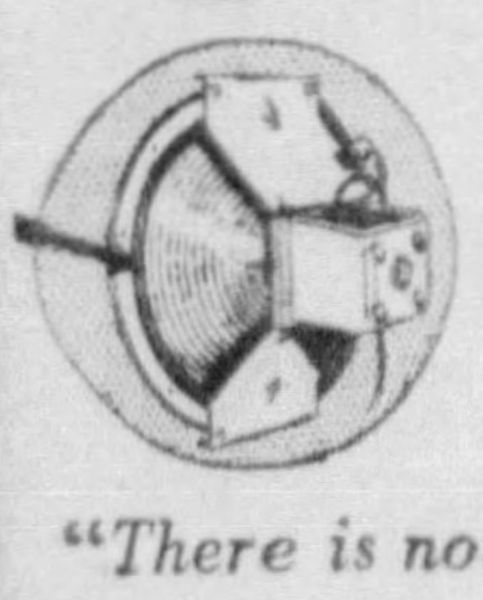
What a Radio MUST have to give SATISFACTION

No. 39
Stromberg-Carlson
$195



METER FOR VISUAL TUNING. In a receiver with Automatic Volume Control, visual tuning is necessary. A highly sensitive, accurate meter such as is used in all Stromberg-Carlsons is the best guide to the exact point for finest tone.



SPEAKER CONE WITH "EDGE SUSPENSION" OF ORGAN BELLOWS LEATHER. This type of edge suspension is costly, but has longer life and is more capable of correctly absorbing the vibrations at the edge of the cone than any other material, thus safeguarding the famous Stromberg-Carlson tone.

"There is nothing finer than a Stromberg-Carlson"

IT MUST look—worthy of the rest of your home. It must sound—perfect, beyond criticism. It must last—year after year. It must confer distinction—upon your home—because of the esteem its name commands.

Where can you find all these vital requirements of a radio set other than in a Stromberg-Carlson?

There are no radio cabinets more beautiful. No radio tone, admittedly, is more faultless. There is no other make of radio where every model since 1924 has served its owner so long and satisfactorily. And—no name in radio more promptly discourages comparison than Stromberg-Carlson.

Woman Reader Says a Golf Widow Is Lucky

Are you a golf widow?

Olga was, and it made her plenty peeved; so she came crashing into this department to tell us that she was abused and picked on, and to ask us what to do.

Here's Linda, with plenty of ideas about what ails her.

Do you agree with Linda, or don't you? Do you think Olga is an Abused Wife, or do you think she's lucky?

Dear Miss Robinson:

Please, may I say a word to Olga, the Golf Widow?

I wonder if you realize, Olga, just how lucky you are? I don't think you do. But the truth is that men, being the queer things they are, either must have some sort of a hobby to play with, or else they must laugh and play with other ladies. And I'd rather be a golf widow than a grass widow!

I've been married for 10 years to a man who is very athletic and, unfortunately, I can't be. The first four years he chased tennis balls persistently. The only time I ever saw much of him was when I went down to the courts and watched him cavort around. Every day after work, and all day Sunday, he was there.

Then, because of his health, he was forced to give that up. Next came the Fishing Fever. He fished early and late. He dragged fish poles into the house and I even found fishhooks in the bed. But I don't seem to remember having many fish to eat. If I wanted to refresh my memory as to what he looked like, I had to hunt him up and watch him fish.

IS CONTENTED

And then, my dear, he took up golf. He spends every evening till dark on the links, and most of his Sundays. Once in a while he wakes up to the fact that he has a wife, and gives me a treat by staying home part of Sunday. Besides that, he has work that keeps him busy two or three evenings a week, and lodge, and so forth. So I'm lucky to spend two or three hours a week with him. But here's the point.

He is too busy to chase blondes! And I'd rather have a man who thinks I'm the only woman in the world for him, who brags to his friends about what a grand cook I am, who always boasts that his wife is the best dancer in the world and looks the nicest, than to have a husband who stayed home most of the time but always had an eye out for another woman. We don't get a chance to grow tired of each other.

I've always been alone a lot. I was raised alone, so I can find plenty of things to keep me occupied. I may not be wildly happy, but I am contented. I look around and notice that, of all my friends, those who have stayed together through the years are the ones whose husbands have a hobby horse to ride.

COULD BE WORSE

So consider yourself lucky, Olga. You are lucky that he only spends two days a week away from you. Most men do worse than that. Suppose he got the boating craze? You'd have something to fuss about then. Supposing he insisted on going on Wild Parties?

Whenever I begin to get disgusted with the situation, I think of those things, and I start being thankful that I have a Golf Fiend for a husband, instead of some of the things my friends have! Better be a Golf Widow than some other kind!

I know how you feel, but unless you can find a way to change men you're out of luck weeping about it. Try changing yourself. Be a good sport, and be thankful for what you have.

LINDA.

You're a good sport, Linda, and there is lots of truth in what you say. But at the same time I can't see, personally, why any wife should be called on to have all the good sportsmanship—or why any man should spend all his time amusing himself and ignore the wife he married.

Nor do men necessarily chase after Wild Women if they can't—or don't care to spend all their time fishing or batting a ball somewhere.

That's my answer to Linda, Stranger. What's yours?

Do you think the big boy will go haywire if he can't put in all his time riding a hobby?

Is a man being fair to his wife if he spends all his time on himself, and leaves her to amuse herself alone?

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Household Hints

Combine left-over rice with the less tender cuts of meat in making stews.

Add a few bread crumbs to the milk in making omelets. This will insure a puffy omelet.

Frequently the oven will not accommodate two pie pans at once without one pie overlapping the other a bit and spoiling a bit of the edge on each pie. If your oven is like this, elevate one pie just a little by putting a small, light tin plate on the rack and placing the pie plate on it to bake.

Girls Profit by Parents' Bad Examples, Says Fay King

DOESN'T YOUR WIFE EVER GET JEALOUS?
MOTHER, YOU ARE TOO FRIVOLOUS AND FATHER IS TOO GAY!
OUR MARRIAGE MUST NOT BE LIKE THEIRS
FAY KING

By FAY KING

A young man is attracted to a certain charming girl and finds her quite his ideal.

He would like to marry her, but he hesitates to propose, wondering if it would be wise to make her his wife.

She has a frivolous mother who gads about to cocktail teas and carries on affairs with dubious young men she meets at afternoon bridge parties.

Her father is quite gay and indiscreet in his attentions to pretty young things he meets here and there.

The daughter is not unaware of these matters.

Will she make a good wife? I think so. She has probably profited from their example, and her marriage will NOT be like theirs.

She won't want her marriage to be at all like that.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Early Care of Disease Is Essential

Dr. Copeland

Not so long ago I visited a hospital devoted to the care of patients afflicted with consumption. There were over a thousand patients at this institution, all suffering from tuberculosis. The length of the waiting list for admission was amazing.

There is no doubt that many of those patients would not be in need of such treatment if they had taken better care of their health. A careful analysis shows that neglect of the early symptoms, or long time neglect of the health, has much to do with acquiring or prolonging tuberculosis. Though cough and loss of weight have been observed for a long time, the diagnosis of tuberculosis may not be made until it has reached the incurable stage. No doctor is consulted and the disease progresses till it is difficult of cure.

This is really too bad. Not only is it fatal to the victim himself, but the afflicted person becomes a menace to the community in which he resides.

Pulmonary consumption, or tuberculosis, has been known to mankind for centuries. It was recognized by the ancients over two thousand years ago. The advanced form of the disease has always been familiar. It is only within recent years that the early stages of the disease are recognized.

With the discovery of the causative agent, the "tubercle bacillus", made 50 years ago by Koch, the diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis were revolutionized. Our knowledge was widened further by the introduction of special tests and X-ray examinations. The modern physician is able to recognize the disease in its early stages. This is a matter of great importance, because the early diagnosis of tuberculosis brings with it the possibility of complete cure. It is when the disease is neglected and permitted to reach an advanced stage, that cure is difficult.

Tremendous strides have been made in the medical and surgical treatment of tuberculosis. Diet, fresh air, sunlight and abundant rest, continue to be the most important factors in the general treatment.

In surgery, new fields have been opened and our knowledge of what to do in this disease has been rapidly advanced. In the last decade, surgical procedures have completely revolutionized the treatment in certain types of pulmonary tuberculosis.

Heart of a Wife -:- -:-

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Father Summons Fingerprint Expert

Into the white face of Rose, the frightened maid of Mrs. Barnes, there came a faint color. Her eyes brightened and her trembling ceased. My father's words and manner evidently had freed her from the fear that she would be suspected of some share in the kidnaping of Marion and Carolyn.

"It was all this way, sir," she began. "We were all ready to make some excuse for keeping here any strange boy coming into the kitchen, but this one with the groceries has been coming here for years, and he lives in the town with his folks. We all know him."

"He just came in, put the basket down, passed the time of day as he always does, and then went away. It was when we started to take the things out that we found that note. We didn't touch anything more; just ran to Lucy and asked her to tell Mrs. Barnes about it right away."

My father was inspecting the basket carefully, without touching it. I was on fire to know what the note contained, but I knew his reason for his inspection when he took a magnifying glass from his pocket and with its aid went over every inch of exposed surface of the basket and its contents, including the note, which was pinned under the edge of the paper that wrapped a head of lettuce.

TO CALL EXPERT

"I am afraid you will have to duplicate this order of groceries," he told Mrs. Barnes. "But first, will you get hold of your grocer and ask him to send that boy of his back here at once. Remember," with a reassuring look at Rose, "we do not suspect him at all, but he may be able to tell us who had a chance to touch this basket before it reached the kitchen.

"Better still, Mrs. Barnes, will you ask your grocer to come back here with the boy, and not to tell anyone in his store where he is going. Can you manage that without anyone in the store overhearing your telephone conversation?"

"Yes," Mrs. Barnes answered promptly. "The telephone is in the office, partitioned off from the rest of the store, and the grocer's daughter invariably answers it. We have a booth here. I'll go into that and talk. Will you need Rose any longer?"

"No. I am sure she has told me all she knows," my father said, smiling at the girl, and Rose, visibly reassured, followed her mistress from the room. As soon as she had gone, my father explained his reason for keeping the basket of vegetables.

"As far as I can see, the person who tampered with this basket wore gloves," he said. "At least I can find no trace of finger prints. But I am taking no chances. I'll have my man go to an outside booth pay phone and talk to a finger-print man I know. He'll come down here under any pretext you like. How would radio repair man do?

PHOTOGRAPH NOTE

"Perfect," Dr. Barnes commented.

"He can be here inside of two hours," my father went on. "He lives in Newark. In the meantime, no one must touch anything in this basket."

"Not even the notes?" I asked, unable longer to keep down my longing to see that message, which I was sure contained some news of the missing girls. "But of course Lillian ought to see it before any of us."

"Have you a room in which the light is nearly as good as out-of-doors?" My father turned to Dr. Barnes.

"In the art department, yes."

"Can you arrange to have it deserted for 10 minutes, not longer?"

"Certainly."

"Did I understand that you do not wish the Underwoods and the Brixtons to be in evidence here at the school for fear of arousing the suspicions of the pupils?"

"Yes."

"Then, my dear," he turned to me, "you will have to see this note before Lillian does. I cannot permit it to leave here, but using the utmost care in touching it, I will photograph it. Where is the nearest photographer that you can trust?"

"Right here," and Dr. Barnes pointed to himself, smiling. "One of my hobbies is photoplay, and I think you will find my darkroom adequate. I will have the artroom cleared right away. Look over this camera. I have used it repeatedly to photograph pages of books. It works beautifully."

"Then I am going to ask you to take the photograph," my father said, and Dr. Barnes walked out of the room with the air of a man having received an accolade. It is an absurd attitude I have noticed in anyone having a pet hobby. I knew that Dr. Barnes subconsciously valued his skill in amateur photography above his masterly guidance of the school under his charge.

It was less than five minutes before we three, Dr. Barnes, my father and I, were in the artroom, my father holding the note gingerly by one corner—he had taken infinite pains in unpinning it from the paper wrapping the lettuce—while Dr. Barnes adjusted his camera.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Unusual Penalty

When the "Father of Contract," as Mr. Harold S. Vanderbilt is familiarly known to lovers of the game, suffers a penalty of 1000 points, not vulnerable, it is reasonably apparent that there has been something peculiar about the bidding. His ability to draw inferences is considered unexcelled, and his skill as a player needs no encomium. However, when playing against that old-time master strategist, Mr. Sidney S. Lenz, in a benefit Bridge for the New York Infirmary for Women and Children recently, Mr. Vanderbilt had that unusual experience on the hand below:

North—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.
Mr. Harold S. Vanderbilt

♠ 9 7 2
♡ A K 9 6 5 3
◇ 8
♣ K 8 5

Mr. Sidney S. Lenz

West		East
♠ J 5 3 ♡ 8 7 4 ◇ A Q 10 4 ♣ 10 4 3	North West East South	♠ A K Q 10 ♡ Q 2 ◇ K 9 6 5 ♣ A Q 7

♠ 8 6 4
♡ J 10
◇ J 7 3 2
♣ J 9 6 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	2 ♠ (1)	Pass	3 ♠ (2)
4 ♡ (3)	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
5 ♡ (4)	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—A rather unusual use of the Jump Overcall, although Mr. Lenz has a very strong hand with 4 honor-tricks, if the value of the heart Queen is included.

2—A correct Raise—much better than bidding three diamonds.

3—Possibly a justifiable sacrifice against a vulnerable game.

4—Not as bad as it looks. Mr. Vanderbilt reasons that the Jump bid in spades shows a long suit. Mr. Lentz's partner has raised the spade bid, hence probably indicating length in that suit as well. It seems quite probable that the losses on the hand can be limited to less than the value of a game.

The result of the hand was a defeat of 5 tricks for a penalty of 1,000 points, not vulnerable.

Mr. Vanderbilt was greatly amazed when the Dummy went down, disclosing three spades, and the first 3 tricks were won by Mr. Lenz. A shift was then made to diamonds, and all that Mr. Vanderbilt was able to collect on his hand was the 6 trump tricks.

The hand at this table was overbid. It was played at a nine-table Duplicate game, in which the recognized masters of Bridge of New York were gathered, the players being the members of Mr. Vanderbilt's Committee of Experts for the affair mentioned above. Quite a number of the East and West players failed to reach game on the hand, although following correct principles of bidding. This was not particularly difficult. The proper bidding of the hand was as follows:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Double	Pass	2 ◇
2 ♡	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

The fine points in the bidding of this hand are, first, East's Double, and second, his bid of two spades after his partner had responded to his Takeout Double with the bid of two diamonds. Now when West is again confronted with a decision, he knows that his partner knows that he does not hold four spades; otherwise that would be his correct response to the Double, rather than diamonds. He also knows that he holds a hand containing trick-taking potentialities, while East, up to this time, has had no information that his hand is other than a blank, containing possibly four diamonds to the 6-spot. Hence, the Raise to three spades is clearly indicated, and after East gains the assurance that the trump strength is not massed against him, his bid for game is assured.

TODAY'S QUESTION

North opened with a bid of two clubs, to which South responded with a bid of two notrump. North then bid three hearts. What should South have bid with the following hand?

♠ 8 ♡ Q J 10 9 8 4 ◇ 8 6 5 3 ♣ Q 2

Answer: Five hearts—a Slam try. The hand contains a great deal more strength than the Opening bidder can infer from a Raise to four hearts.

OIL PRODUCER HONORED AT 93

A birthday cake, large enough to hold 93 candles, graced the party for Charles Mise, South Fayette Township, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. I. O'Brien, Noblestown road, today.

Mise, who is the same age as John D. Rockefeller, Sr., also made his money in oil. He has lived in Fayette Township 78 years. Starting as a farmer, he has seen the community change from an agricultural to an industrial district.

He "struck it rich" when oil was found in the McDonald field in the early 90's, but remained active in farming.

Mise's present paramount ambition is, he says, to see the Eighteenth Amendment repealed.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Gertie, a 14-foot reticulated python in the London zoo, has gladdened her keepers by laying 30-odd eggs. Rarer still, if Gertie stays with them until they're hatched, she'll be the first python in the zoo to do so.

COURT REFUSES WIFE DIVORCE

Holding she was as much to blame for their troubles as her husband, Judge Sylvester J. Snee has refused Mrs. H. Yolando Zilk, 60, of 604 Industry street, a divorce from Peter Zilk, 61, a carpenter of Curtin street. They were married August 13, 1892. The husband contested his wife's suit.

Judge Snee declared the wife's demeanor on the stand convinced him she was hard to get along with, but he directed that the husband pay the costs of the action. Mrs. Zilk said her husband called her names. She charging cruel and barbarous treatment.

Zilk testified his wife nagged him and persisted so until he placed four properties in her name, valued at $24,000.

Divorce suits were filed by Fred W. Winner against Ann Winner and by Freda Schmidt against Edwin J. Schmidt.

ART PRIZE WON BY SILVETTE

David Silvette, former Pittsburgh painter, has been awerded the $1,000 Corcoran art prize, according to announcement today.

Silvette's prize-winning picture, of an old Virginia native, is hanging in the Corcoran Galleries in Washington. The exhibit is by the leading American painters and consequently Silvette's victory was considered notable for a man in his early twenties.

Silvette, living in Richmond, has won awards in exhibits there and in other cities.

Here's the Way to Control Those Miserable Colds So Prevalent Here Now

With Flu Increasing In Many Sections, Authorities Urge Extra Precaution Against Colds

WHILE there is no immediate cause for alarm over reports of Flu, health authorities urge everyone to take special precautions against the spread of colds just now. Colds tend to pull down body resistance and pave the way for Flu and other serious ills. Don't take chances. Avoid all colds possible. Treat every cold promptly. For greatest safety and protection follow Vicks Plan for better Control-of-Colds. Briefly the Plan is this:

TO PREVENT MANY COLDS: At that first feeling of stuffiness or nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze—Nature's usual warning that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, the new aid in preventing colds. Vicks Drops aid Nature in throwing off the infection that threatens. They prevent development of many colds.

TO END A COLD SOONER: If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, vigorous measures are necessary. Rest as much as possible, preferably in bed. Take a mild laxative—eat lightly—drink plenty of water. At bed-time apply Vicks VapoRub. Its direct double action—continuing through the night—brings quicker relief. During the day use the convenient Vicks Nose Drops every few hours as needed. They add to comfort—help shorten the cold.

Follow Vicks Plan for Better CONTROL of Colds

'CASEY' JONES' SUCCESSOR QUITS CAB

MEMPHIS, Dec. 13.—(AP.) — The engineer who took Casey Jones' train to the end of its run and then got his job after Casey made that "farewell trip to the Promised Land" has quit railroading.

He is H. A, (Dad) Norton and was a "hoghead"—roundhouse vernacular for engineer—for 49 years before the Illinois Central retired him. He is 72 now and took a fast train on the Memphis-Canton (Miss.) run—the Casey Jones run—for 32 years.

Everybody on the line knows him. He's the engineer whose train was stolen by bandits in 1914. A wildcat jumped into his cab once from a low tree and a Negro fireman shot the beast.

RECALL LAST RUN

Dad was a young man when Casey Jones became the crack hoghead of the I. C. Jones' real name was John Luther Jones. They called him Casey after Cayce, Ky., where he once worked.

The caller called Casey before dawn the morning of March 31, from the roundhouse and Casey took his orders, tucked them in his jumper and climbed abroad. His train was No. 1 of the Chicago-New Orleans line and his job was to get it to Canton on time.

Casey checked his steam, glanced at his watch and eased back the throttle. Two short blasts from his whistle, a clanging of his bell and he was away on his last run, a trip that made him immortal because folks still sing his elegy.

There were only green lights ahead, because No. 1 had the mail. The engine panted through the yards to the Mississippi line before Casey tugged the throttle back to his stomach and let the big wheeler run on its cannonball schedule.

STICKS TO ENGINE

Casey was pulling into Vaughn when his train hit an open switch and plowed into a freight car. He shoved in his throttle, jerked on his brakes and stuck with his engine.

They found him scalded by steam and with a bolt from the wreckage in his neck. His widow was notified. She still lives at Jackson, Tenn.

Dad Norton was sent to Vaughn to pick up Casey's train and take it to Canton. Then the road gave him the run.

That was 32 years ago and now Dad is through—pensioned. After all, 49 years of hogheading is a long time to railroad.

Cleaner Bares Plot To Ruin Clothing

Abe Silverman, proprietor of a dyeing and cleaning establishment at 1133 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, reported to county detectives that an attempt had been made to ruin wearing apparel left at his establishment for cleaning.

He said a package of wearing apparel which had been soaked with chemicals had been left at his establishment and explained had the clothing been put in the cleaning fluid with other garments the other garments would have been ruined. Detective Michael Stabile was detailed to investigate.

Man Fatally Burned In His Garage Home

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 13.—Hovering over a small stove in his brother-in-law's garage while the temperature fell to near zero, John DeLong, 52, was fatally burned last night when oil he threw into the stove exploded.

DeLong, unemployed and a widower, was living in the garage so his three small children might live comfortably in the brother-in-law's home.

Engineer to Talk On Holland Tunnel

"Planning, Construction and Operation of the Holland Tunnel" will be the subject of an address by Ole Singstad, chief construction engineer of the tunnel, at the Carnegie Institute of Technology tomorrow night. Recently he made an inspection of the Wabash Railroad Bridge and tunnel here for the County Commissioners.

Strongbox Theft Probed by Police

Police today were investigating the theft of a strongbox Sunday night from the home of Lewis Krenn, 2119 Center avenue. The box was in a bedroom on the second floor and was taken while the family was away. According to Mrs. Lewis Krenn it contained tax and insurance receipts.

Woman Attorney Bombards Thieves

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—A barrage of tomatoes failed to daunt thieves who entered a store run by the parents of Ruth Richman, woman attorney. Miss Richman seized tomato cans off the shelves and bombarded the three robbers, who made off with $50 nevertheless.

Another Thrilling Story of the Jungle by The Author of "Bring 'Em Back Alive"

Insufficient Light Makes Filming of Animals in Jungle Difficult

CHAPTER LII.

Interest in the wild creatures of the jungle has increased tremendously in recent years. It has occurred to people to wonder how the animals in the zoos got there and this culminated in my being commissioned to head a camera expedition designed to show what happens from the moment an animal collector gets an order for a specimen to the time it winds up in a cage where the public may view it.

The scene of my operations was the Malay Archipelago, whose jungles are the densest known to man. Not many people have an accurate idea of what these Asiatic badlands are like. The public is more familiar with Africa and its open veldt, which presents fewer problems, either to the animal collector or to the motion picture director.

The jungle to which I refer is a four-tiered affair. First there is the tangle of creepers and grassy growths of all kinds underfoot, combining to make walking as uncertain a proposition as it can possibly be, with damp and soggy areas contributing to this uncertainty.

The next layer consists of heavy jungle grass that ranges from waist-high to neck-high, and giant ferns that often reach over one's head. The tier above this is a ceiling made up of trees, medium in height, interwoven with countless vines, the whole matted together in one great green mass.

Then, finally, there is the jungle roof, consisting of enormous tropical trees whose tops interlace so completely that very little light can seep through to the ground below.

POOR LIGHT

All of which is by way of explaining my principal problem in setting out to make a motion picture showing animals in their jungle haunts. After I had picked out what I considered an ideal setting for our first shots, my associates on the expedition cried me down in unison.

"We can't make pictures in the dark," they chorused. Animals are my business, not movies, and it was natural for me to think in terms of a spot where wild life was plentiful rather than in terms of sunlight.

A complete change in the plans I had in mind was therefore necessary. The first assignment was to get some good ground shots of a tiger moving through the jungle, these to be used in our picture as a sort of prelude to a series of scenes showing how one of these great cats is trapped and brought back to civilization.

Now that the light problem had eliminated the photographing of the tiger in his jungle fastness, I was faced by the task of locating one of the great striped cats at some point where camera shots could be taken in open country, in broad daylight. When you realize that it is unusual for a tiger to leave the jungle, except to do some night prowling, you have a pretty fair idea of what a tough assignment this was.

EFFORTS FUTILE

I got word one day that a tiger was making regular raids on the live stock of the nataves at the Forty-one Mile Post, a village that was many miles north of Johore Bahru. It was obvious from the details of the story as told me that the animal had taken up headquarters somewhere near the edge of the jungle bordering that primitive settlement.

We moved our paraphernalia to this district and set out to find the tiger. I succeeded in locating his tracks at several different points along the jungle's edge, and as a result felt we had a pretty fair chance to get the pictures we wanted. I collected a small array of beaters and started them into the woods where the tracks led us.

These boys—whose job it is to spread out through the brush and work toward a given point, pounding with sticks against trees or making whatever noise they can to drive the animal that is being sought out into the open — wormed their way through the dense jungle as far as they could.

Their progress proved much slower than I had expected, and at the end of the first day they had got only about one-third of the way through. I might have called them off altogether except that toward evening we caught a sight of the tiger—just a fleeting glimpse of him, slinking deeper into the thicket.

So we kept our boys on the spot and renewed our beating the next morning. The jungle got thicker and thicker as we proceeded, and eventually on the fourth day, without having seen the animal again, we reached a point where further progress was impossible without the aid of parangs—and while I have hacked my way through many a mile of jungle with the air of one of these big sword-like knives, I knew this was too slow a process when the quarry is a tiger. So I called off the beaters. All we had to show for our trouble was a fine assortment of cuts and scratches, for this section of jungle is thick with rattan, each joint of which has a hook-like thorn that doesn't care how deep it digs into your flesh.

BRIGHTER PROSPECTS

Ironically enough, a day after we had gathered up our equipment and left the Forty-one Mile Post to try our luck elsewhere, the tiger came out of his jungle lair in broad daylight and made off with a goat that was tied up within 20 yards of the spot where our cameras had been set up. His daylight raid was one of those exceptions to the rules of tigerdom that doesn't happen very often and it was our misfortune not to have been on hand when it occurred.

However, we were well on our way to a point south of Muar, which has always been famous tiger country. It is in this district that the Sultan of Johore, greatest Asiatic hunter of modern times, has done much of his tiger killing.

Here we came on the trail of another raider, a huge tiger that for some time had been raising the devil with the bullocks and other domestic live stock. Our chances in this case looked much brighter than at the Forty-one Mile Post, for it was obvious, both from information given us by the local natives and from the tracks we located, that the animal had quartered itself in a patch of thin jungle, separate from the great forest that stretches through this territory. I felt confident that our efforts would be rewarded at last.

Order to Dissolve Harris Firm Signed

Common Pleas Judge W. H. McNaugher has signed an order for the dissolution of Harris Theaters, Inc., of which Frank J. Harris is president. The hearing has been set for January 10.

ALDERMAN HELD IN JAIL CASE

Alderman Robert H. Logan and Constable Earl R. Sams, of the Fifth Ward, today awaited court action on charges of malfeasance in office. They were held on the charges yesterday by Justice of the Peace Lawrence V. Gibb, of Sewickley.

They were arraigned on informations signed by Abe Feldman, 317 North Craig street, and Hyman Shalansky, 2408 Wylie avenue, deputy constables formerly attached to Logan's office.

The deputies testified two men arrested last July in a raid in Heman street, where they and Sams found 150 barrels of mash and a 500-gallon still, were liberated illegally by Logan.

The prisoners were taken to jail and on the same day were removed on orders from Logan, it was testified. Following a conference at Logan's office, the two prisoners were released, Shalansky and Feldman said.

M. P. Cimbalista and N. Winebrake, two federal agents, testified they raided the place five days later and found the mash and still intact.

Fall on Ice Kills Banker in Reading

READING, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—George T. Cobb, cashier of the Penn National Bank, was found dead today beside his automobile at the entrance of his garage. His wife said he apparently slipped on the ice while opening his garage doors.

YOUNG DOCTOR STARVING SELF

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(INS.)—For four days, Dr. Arthur Kraus, brilliant young professor of philosophy, has refused all food, and as he lies in his furnished room, the pain of a hunger-gnawed stomach is reflected in his tensely drawn face.

He is taking his life for the same cause he has lived for, to save the Polish Jew from persecution. He feels he has lived in vain. His one hope now is that he will not die in vain.

But there will be no last minute reprise, as there was for Gandhi, despite the fact that Kraus' hunger strike is strongly suggestive of that of India's leader. He explained:

"I do not desire to become a martyr or a hero. It is my sole desire to withdraw quietly from the scene of humanity. Nothing can dissuade me from that end."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

One of the biggest affairs in this day, when the small entertainment is almost the rule, will be the Allegheny General Hospital benefit—that supper dance on January 3 in the Chatterbox, the William Penn's supper room, to climax the Yuletide gaieties.

The junior and senior women's auxiliaries are giving the affair, you know. Committees are busily at work preparing for the big event, and members of the younger set are learning the conduct of mannikins, for they'll model heaps and heaps of smart costumes in the fashion show to feature the evening.

Mrs. Ledlie Young, a committee member, who is chairman of the fashion show, is being aided by Genevieve Bell, Clodagh McCune, Mrs. Blair Childs, Mrs. Alan Gordon, Mrs. Herbert A. May, Jr., Mrs. Felix B. Snowdon, Mrs. George A. Kelly III and Mrs. Gilbert Rafferty.

In Charge Of Tables

Mrs. B. F. Jones III, will be in charge of seating all the guests at supper tables. She will be assisted by Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Jr., Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland, Anne Rose, Emily Stuart, Mrs. John Wigton and Mrs. J. Shirley Austin.

Debs and post-debs will be the models for the fashion show. They include Bertha Brooks, Madelaine Alexander, Nancy Byers, Mrs. John Crossan Chaplin III, Laura Childs, Virginia, Nancy and Rebecca Doyle, Laura Evans, Margaret Holdship, Louise Reed, Mrs. W. McCook Reed, Mary Franklin Robinson, Mrs. William Standish, Martha Yost and Althea Robinson.

Visits Parents

Mrs. Lowell C. Noyes, of Evanston, Ill., and her small son, James Patterson Noyes, is visiting her parents, the James Pattersons, of Beechwood boulevard. Mr. Noyes will join his family for the Christmas week-end.

John G. Patterson II, a Yale law student, will arrive home Sunday for the holidays.

Seen at Theater

Night after night society folk are going to take time from holiday preparations to see the Abbey Theater players at the Nixon.

Last night at the Nixon, I saw Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, in black chiffon having cap sleeves dropped from the shoulder and a green velvet girdle and slippers, chatting with Mrs. Gordon King, in blue uncut velvet.

Mrs. Blair Childs was in black crepe with short sleeves banded in chinchilla. Dr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Lynch were there, Mrs. Harold J. Dorrance and Mrs. T. C. Jenkins.

Mrs. Lynch chose a gown of blue crepe having a deep cape with kolinsky marking the high-neckline. Her jacket was of ermine. Mrs. Dorrance chose wine red velvet and Mrs. Jenkins, red velvet.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Schulte To Visit Philadelphia

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Shulte will spend the week-end in Philadelphia.

Correct Manners
By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Engagement Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—May an engagement be announced in the paper . . . rather a public announcement, but no party to be given, when the girl is not having a diamond ring?

2—Is it true that a correct wedding ring should be a complete circle and not broken such as with seven diamonds in it?

3—If the engagement is announced to friends, can they entertain without a public engagement announcement?

4—Do wedding announcements imply a gift? K.

1—Yes, the engagement may be announced in the newspapers with perfect propriety and good taste, and the fact that there is to be no engagement ring or no engagement party makes no difference. First the girl and the young man would, of course, tell their relatives and tell or write notes to their close friends. For it wouldn't be kind for those so close to read the first news of the engagement in the papers.

2—I don't think that this would make any difference, for even so the ring itself would be "a complete circle." A ring such as you describe might not be as artistic as one entirely circled with stones.

3—Yes.

4—No. Friends send gifts, if they wish, when they receive wedding announcement, but it is, naturally, not so usual as sending gifts when one receives a wedding invitation.

Return Address

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am an interested reader of your culnmn and have received many helpful suggestions from it.

I have been out of the city, and since my return have been living at an apartment hotel. I have a host of acquaintances to whom I wish to send Christmas greeting cards, and I would like to know if it would be correct to write my return address on the envelope? C.

Thank you for your kind words, and welcome to the column.

It would be in perfectly good form, and a very wise thing, too, I think, for you to write your address on the envelope.

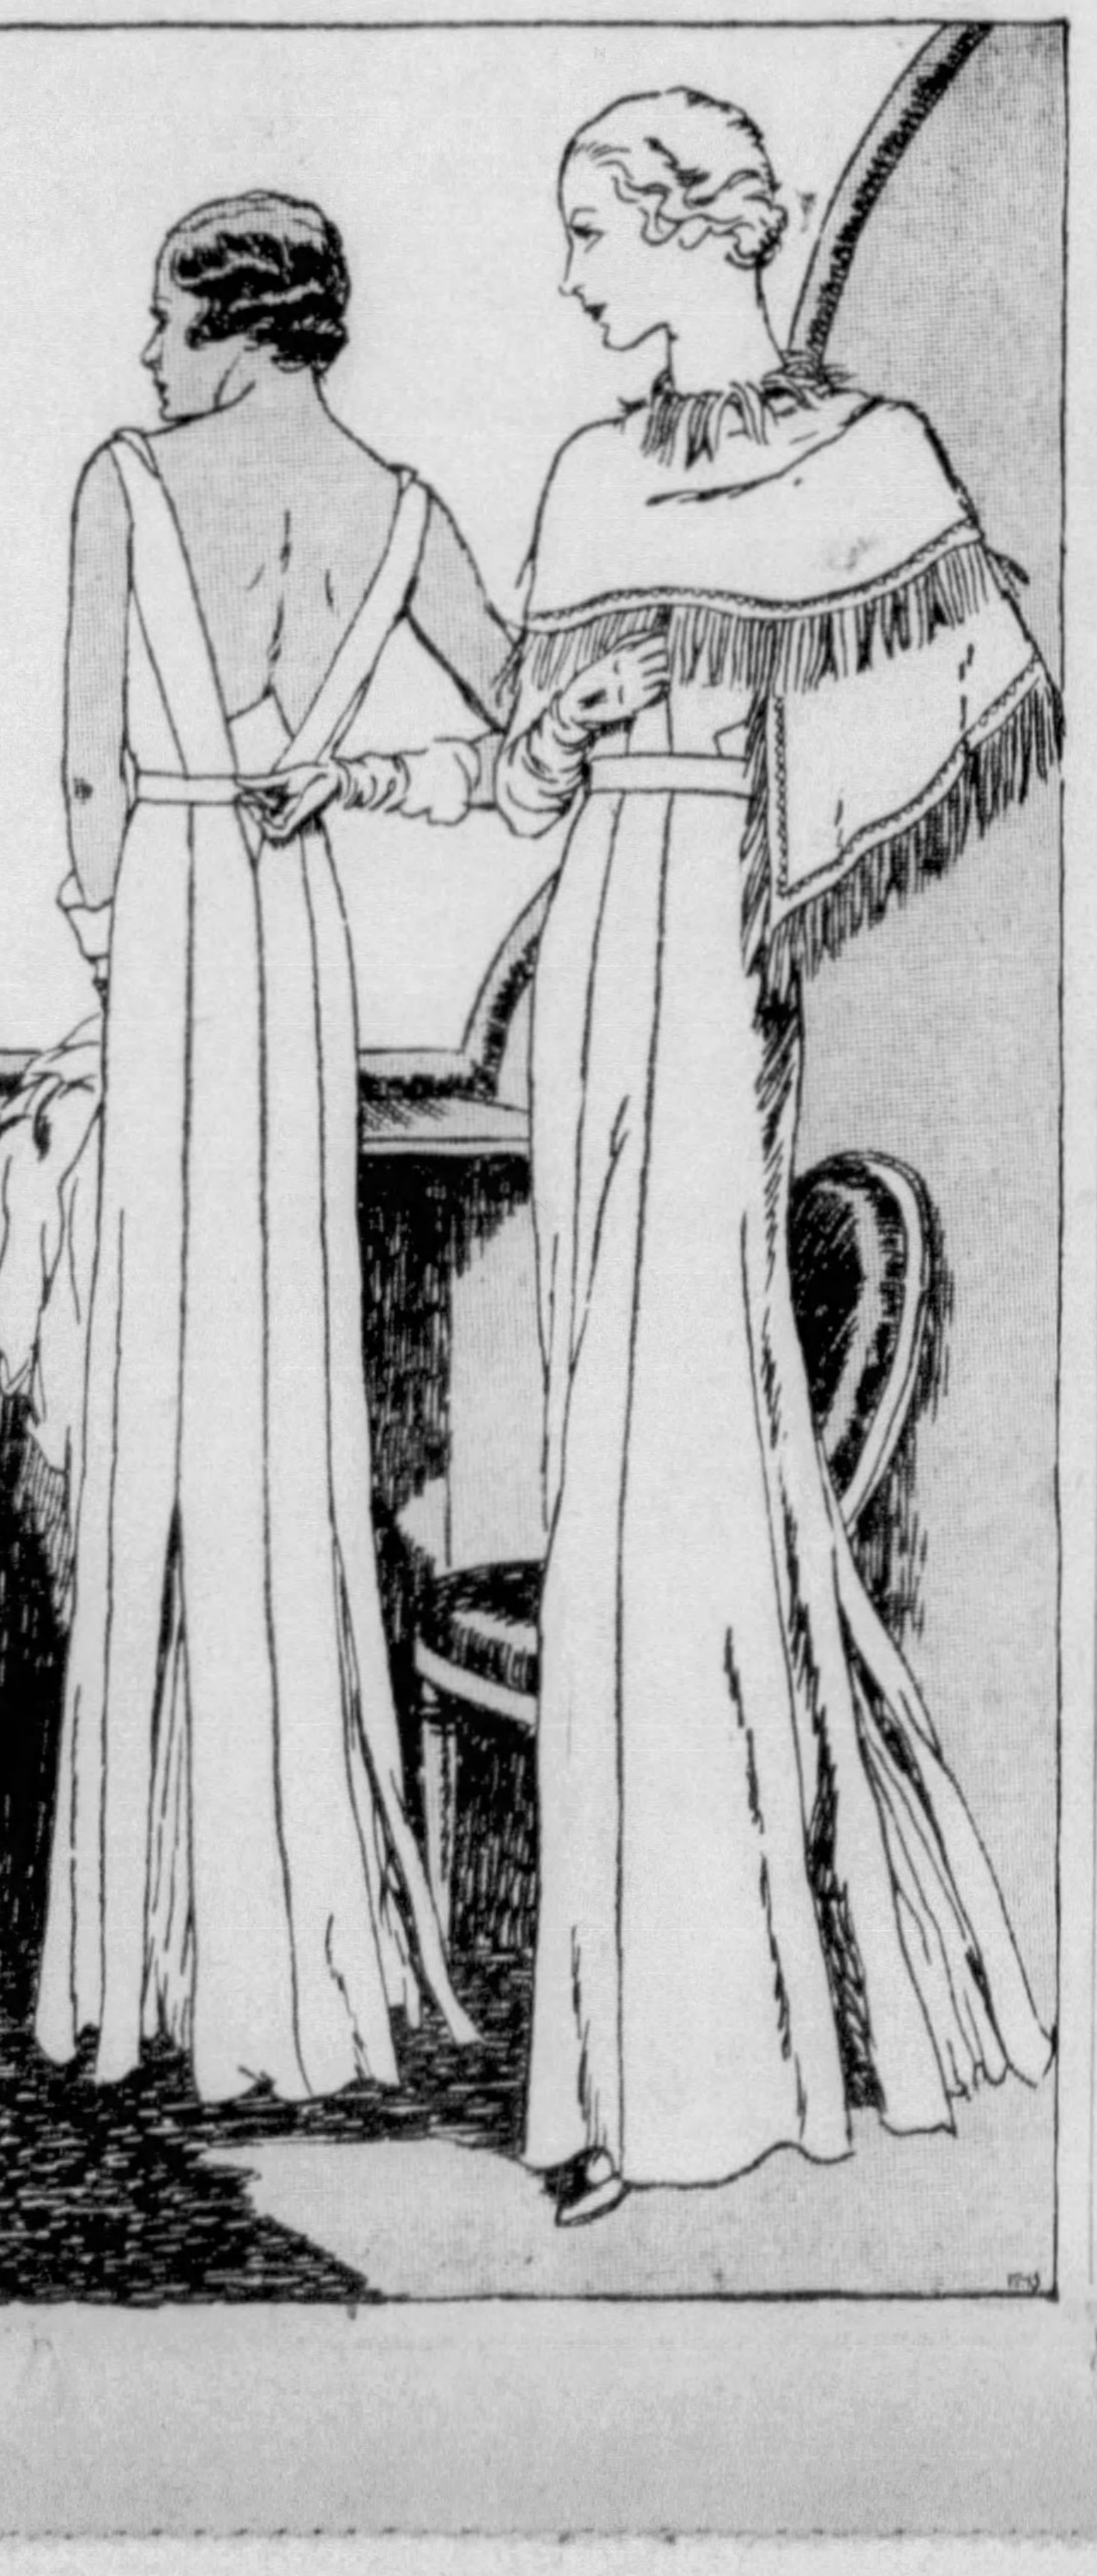
FRINGE IN MANY USES GAINS NEW POPULARITY WITH PARIS

Sketched in Paris



Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—This is a great fringe winter in Paris. For the first time in years, fringe has come into a sudden popularity with women of all ages. It is being used in a dozen different manners — to fashion entire skirts, to make flounces reaching from the knees to the floor, to hang from sashes and girdles, in modified peplum effects, to edge shoulder capes and to replace fur on evening wraps, to make little epaulets on dinner gowns and to add color to dresses of white or black.

* * *

* * *

IN MANY cases, Paris women wear dresses of this type in white, but order the capes edged with colored fringe. Sometimes the fringe is bright green, or bright red; occasionally both red and blue fringe will appear on the same gown.

* * *

NOTICE THAT the skirt is cut with a slight train.

Naughty Plays, Films Blamed On Public

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

People damn the author, the producer, the manager—anybody, but the responsibility for prurient plays and motion pictures rests with the individual in the audience; every time he buys a ticket he casts a ballot, Dr. Louis Anspacher told the Twentieth Century Club yesterday.

Dr. Anspacher, distinguished playwright, actor, critic and lecturer, was discussing "The Mob and the Movies," and it was a strong indictment of both members of his double subject. Movies must appeal to the mob or fail, he said, and when one considers that only 12 to 15 per cent of the people in the United States make up the intelligentsia, the movies are better than one might expect.

Drama needs the co-operation of the audience: the motion picture enlists little or no co-operation and is therefore superficial; it is part of the mechanistic age in which the audience does nothing; it develops a cinema-mind, wherein people do no thinking, and must therefore be filled with action, he went on.

Conflict and sex, he said, are two things that will never be taken out of motion pictures, because they are two fundamental emotions which appeal to the illiterate, and they are what the common average humanity all over the world wants.

Motion pictures are an industry, not an art; they could not be the latter because the men who originally embarked in motion pictures came from the clothing and fur business and did not know art, he declared. Dr. Anspacher cited cases where international situations had arisen through motion pictures and he declared that it has been proved that they encourage crime. He claims the effect of movies on the mob is something psychologists will have to consider. Intellect is diluted in the movies, the audience is composed of sentimentalized hypnotics, "non-conductors" and "decomposers" furnish the music, he observed just before summing up the effect of the movies on the stage.

Tax Reduction Urged By Homewood Women

Petitions urging a decrease in taxes were signed by Homewood Women's Club members at the meeting yesterday and will be sent to City Council. Five tableaux representing the Nativity were presented at the meeting in Homewood Carnegie Library. Mrs. C. E. Foster read the accompanying Biblical verses, Christmas decorations formed a background for the tableaux and a musical setting was provided by the club choral.

A luncheon, program of entertainment, presents and a visit to a local motion picture house will be provided for the children of the community, who will be guests of the clubwomen next Monday.

Volunteeers to sew for the needy are requested to report at Westinghouse High School every Thursday from 9:30 until 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Werner, director of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club choral, singing tomorrow afternoon at the meeting and Christmas party of the Dormont-Mt. Lebanon League of Women Voters. It's to be held in the Dormont New Century Club.

Club Women to 'Adopt' Tots for Yule Party

Each member of the Exchange Club will ''adopt'' a girl and a boy for the unique Christmas party which the club and the Women's Auxiliary to the Goodwill Industries will have next Tuesday afternoon. The club, which is an organization of business and professional folk, will supply the ''fixin's'' for the dinner, from soup to dessert, the women cooking and serving it.

A program of entertainment will include music, and Santa Claus will be present to distribute a box of candy and a practical gift to each youngster.

New England Colony Holds Christmas Party

It would be difficult to imagine anything more delightful than the simple Christmas celebration which the Pittsburgh Colony of New England Women held at the College Club yesterday. Mrs. Irvin D. Metzger led assembly caroling and also sang a solo, with Mrs. Laurence Emmerton at the piano. Little Elizabeth Packard read "A Visit from St. Nicholas," and then Mrs. Edward B. Lee, impersonating Santa, distributed gifts from around the fragrant tree. Candy canes and individual plum puddings served during the tea hour added the final touch to the affair.

Bradford Woods Club's Yule Party on Friday

For many years Mrs. Chauncey Lobingier has been hostess for the Christmas party of the Bradford Woods Woman's Club. This year Mrs. Lobingier will entertain the club again—on Friday evening at her home, with the assistance of Mrs. Fred Mashey, Mrs. Ellsworth Steele, Mrs. W. A. Crawford and Mrs. Susan Albert. Gifts will be brought for the Toy Mission.

Christmastime Fantasy To Be Given in Church

"The Hope of the World," a religious fantasy of Christmas time, written by and produced under the direction of Mignonne Gaines Kunz, will be given in the Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian Church, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

Club to Stage Tom Thumb Wedding

In order to finance their proposed classes for pre-school children, the members of the Duquesne Young Women's Club will stage a Tom Thumb wedding tomorrow evening in Carnegie Music Hall.

The educational committee in sponsoring the affair, with Mrs. George Kemerer and Mrs. Elton Lukor as co-chairmen. Others on the committee are Mrs. Ted Pirl, Mrs. Jacob Weinstein, Mrs. Edward X. Foster, Mrs. Cora Thomas, Mrs. Russell Estep, Miss Salome Skelly and Miss Coletta Skelly. Assisting are Mrs. George Vargo, Jr., Mrs. Floyd Stoner and Mrs. Curtis Waters.

Knock That Cold In A Jiffy

Relief Now Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system and you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now for a few cents.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Things I'd Never Have Known

(If it weren't for you, you, you and you!)

That recently we gloated because the local Paramount Theater marquee electric lights read: Rudy Vallee and "False Faces," and now a reader forwards a headline that ran across a radio page in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. It said: "Winchell, Tibbett and Crooks Return to Radio!" (Those opera singers have the darndest names!)

That the girls who go to the West Point proms always have and still pay all their own expenses. (Whew! There's an idea!)

That your ear is made up of 60,000 parts! (Authority: Page 248 of "The New Reformation," Scribner, publishers.)

That Bobby Mack, author of the famous song, "He's in de Jailhouse Now," also wrote "We're With You, Mister Roosevelt." He made more money from the jailhouse number.

That the Bird of Paradise is the only bird that flies against the wind. (Yeah? How about those U. S. Mail flying birds?)

That one of the radio reviewers recently called Bernie a mike-cracker. (Probably because crackers go with cheese—ouch!)

That a Socialist who ran for office in Connecticut is actually named Jasper McLevy.

That an Italian says Bell didn't invent the phone, but that Antonio Meucci did, according to the Aug., 1932, number of "Atlantica."

That Beethoven used to eat his food with his fingers.

That Edward German is an English composer and that Ludwig Englander was a German. An Italian wrote the best Japanese opera, "Madama Butterfly." A German did the best Greek opera, "Elektra." An Austrian is credited with the best Spanish opera, "Don Giovanni."

That Mendelssohn was the first orchestral conductor in the world to use a baton.

That Ripley went to Gibraltar to check on the famous Rock there. He learned that it isn't rock, but chalk, and is wasting away.

That Marseilles makes any of the American gun-mob populated cities look like sissy towns. (Toughest city in Europe.)

That cocktail parties in London never start till 7 p. m.

That Paris taxis cost practically nothing, but they make up for it by charging you double after 10 post meridian.

That amethyst is found in gold mines. That platinum, which is more expensive than gold, wears out quicker.

That in Georgia the common law permits you to beat your wife, provided (ah, I knew there'd be a catch to it!) that the stick or club used is no larger than your thumb.

That China has a death penalty for all persons caught possessing toy pistols. (No wonder they lose wars, using toys!)

That a one-eyed chap was declared champ over 300 contestants in a recent nat'l championship held in Boston.

That the use of the word "miniature" for "small" is absolutely and positively incorrect! (Now he's getting petty).

That Sid Weiss knows a guy in town who shaves every 15 minutes and still has a beard. (He's a barber, you dope!)

That barbers practiced medicine in the old days. Today most of them are practicing surgery. (I oughta write radio jokes, huh?)

That the next Missouri Governor was graduated from a girl's school—the only male ever to, for that matter!

That one of the radio sound projection men at the Columbia Broadcasting Station is named Dana Noyes. (He controls noyes!)

That the front page of the London Times (a paper excellent for starting fires, because it's so dry) is devoted entirely to births, deaths, legal notices, announcements and personals.

That not one in a hundred pronounces calliope correctly.

That George Bernard Shaw says that within 30 centuries children will talk the day they are born. (Say, for that matter, I know a lotta people who cursed the day they were born!.

That "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been running for 65 years. (And the owner of "Abie's Irish Rose" is bragging yet!)

That two can live cheaply as one. (If they live at her house!)

That no more Americans will be accepted for enlistment in the French Foreign Legion. (That won't make me sore, at all.)

And that for want of a funnier last line, you will have to take this—that elephants DO forget, but they never, never, NEVER forgive!

Lovely Gitta Finds Her Heart

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Once again the German Avenue Cinema is German—and has a delightful musical romance to celebrate the occasion. "Gitta Entdeckt Ihr Herz" (Gitta Finds She Has a Heart), is the story of a revue star found among the Hungarian peasantry by an amorous impresario. As they pull into Berlin she bites him in self-defense and then disappears. As a runaway she meets a young composer, who decides he will make her fortune, while she decides that she'll make his. All sorts of humorous and happy adventures lead up to the closing triumph of both singer and composer.

Gitta Alpar is the singer from the Magyar village, and Gustav Froehlich the composer. Both are animated by real romantic fire and sing well—especially the charming Gitta, who has a voice like a violin. From the opening scenes on the farm and at the fair, to the final glimpses of the stage performance, the picture is well directed, wonderfully photographed, a joy to see and hear. There are also some splendid visions of art and life in Italy, and a picturesque canal tour on a new electric boat.

Carols to Be Sung In Friday Bill

The London Singers, a quartet, with John Goss, will give a recital in Carnegie Music Hall on Friday evening, December 16. In celebration of the Christmas season, the singers will include a group of Christmas carols, including "Come Sing and Dance," "Holly and Ivy," "Boar's Head Carol," "Corpus Christi Carol," and "Wassail Song."

Dublin's All-Star Players In 'The New Gossoon' Begin Fine Week

By GEORGE SEIBEL

To that glorious trio—John M. Synge, Lennox Robinson, Sean O'Casey—let us now add the name of George Shiels as another dramatist of the new Irish Renaissance. His comedy, "The New Gossoon," kept everybody in good humor at the Nixon Theater last night, not only by its rare fun and real characterizations, but even more by the fine acting, as natural as if it had been grown on the Cary farm and cooked in the Cary kitchen.

Mr. Seibel

Such country folk have been painted by Shakespeare and Hardy, and by few others. They are not like the peasant of Tolstoy and his Russians, steeped in sin and tragedy.' They are not angels, far from it, but what would they do with wings when a motor-bike is better on the road?

It is Luke Cary's motor-bike that makes all the trouble in "The New Gossoon." Since Luke bought it, partly with money he got from selling his mother's sheep, he has been slipping away from Sally Hamil, the neighbor's pretty daughter. It is too easy an implement for a rural Don Juan to go a-courting other girls. But Sally, who is an efficient and modern young lady, removes a plug that his mother hides, and that saves the situation.

WELL-MATCHED PAIR

As played by Denis O'Dea and Kate Curling, the young people are a well-matched pair. O'Dea is not only a handsome gossoon, but an actor with dash and character. Kate, who took the place of Eileen Crowe, has snappy Irish eyes and a witty Irish tongue.

But stellar honors, if any, must be awarded to F. J. McCormick, as Rabbit Hamil the poacher. For a sly old rascal, who admits that another man's character is "beyond reproach," while his own is "beyond repair," McCormick's "Rabbit" is a masterpiece. Here is the sort of acting seen too rarely in our day—all of one piece, flawless, full of fine points. McCormick, in America, would be another Joe Jefferson.

Michael J. Dolan is almost his peer as Uncle Peter, whose philosophy in dealing with the younger generation is heroic. "I have four sons and three daughters, and when they come of age I take them to the front gate and give them a swift kick and tell them 'That's your inheritance.'" Dolan's performance is smooth and suave with a kindly core.

RACY OF THE SOIL

All these characters are racy of the soil, and their lines have the sparkle of Erin's smiling lakes. There is P. J. Carolan's portrait of the honest serving man Ned Shay, of whom it is said, "If you had been with Eve in the Garden of Eden, you'd be there yet." There is Arthur Shields as the mad miller John Henly, whose tribe is described as having "no more clothes than would make a pair of leggins for a hummingbird." There is Maureen Delany as the good widow who believes "it's always best to know the worst." Then there were May Craig as the servant girl, and Ria Mooney as the miller's daughter, all appealing figures—people you know have lived, or they wouldn't be there. And the things they do are things you know have been done just like that, or you wouldn't see them being done.

That is the strong point in these plays and in this company—there is nothing manufactured or artificial about them. You may laugh at them, but it is the laughter of sympathy. Looking at Kate Curling's Sally, you know she can "make nine kinds of soup out of a rabbit," even though her father later avers that "it's nine kinds of poison." Their fits of quarrelsomeness, their exhibitions of hypocrisy, their petty vices and minor virtues—all are whittled out of the rough Gaelic character that sheaths the sound Gaelic soul.

"The New Gossoon" is literature—though not the rich poetry of "The Far-Off Hills," which is played tonight. It is drama, though not the great tragedy woven into "Juno and the Paycock." And it is greatly acted, like all these presentations of the Dublin Players. If you were not there, you missed something.

Pichel Is Assigned To Grey Picture

Four well known character actors have been added to the cast of Paramount's "The Mysterious Rider," which co-features Kent Taylor and Lona Andre. Those signed were Irving Pichel, formerly of Pittsburgh, experienced actor, writer, director of stage and screen; Berton Churchill, who created the title role and starred for years in the popular stage offering "Alias the Deacon;" Warrne Hymer, recently in "Madison Square Garden," and Capt. E. H. Calvert, expert horseman and actor. The Zane Grey story will be filmed entirely on location. It is being directed by Fred Allen.

Real Murder Film Theme

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 13.

With the murder of Walter Wanderwell spread over the front pages here, Paramount already is planning to incorporate some of the elements of this mystery in a picture called "Killer Aboard."

Going the local slaying several better, this film will kill off most of the crew and passengers on a yacht in mid-ocean.

As luck would have it, Paramount already was working on a maritime murder mystery when some assailant shot down Wanderwell in the cabin of the former rum-runner, in which he and a party of adventure-craving souls were shortly to head for the South Seas.

With the dispatch of true opportunities, studio heads promptly instructed two of its authors, Robert Presnell and Mannie Seff, to tie in with the local crime.

While it is still too early in the game to have any definite cast, Paramount is trying to persuade Lowell Sherman to take one of the leading roles in the film.

Coming home from a trip, Grant Withers found his mother very much upset because they hadn't used his picture among the photographs of the stars along Hollywood's Santa Claus lane.

No little amused, Grant exclaimed that they had decided to alternate him with Mickey Mouse and that it was Mickey's turn this year.

His mother bridled.

"Well, they should have taken you. It would have done you some good and Mickey is pretty well set without it."

The swank handbag that Eleanor Holm is sporting is a birthday present from Carl Laemmle, Jr. . . . . Sunday was Doug Fairbanks, Jr.'s, birthday and, worse luck, both he and Joan Crawford had to work until midnight. Joan sent a huge cake to Warner's studio and Doug shared it with his whole company. Remember I said Doug was crazy to do "The White Sister" with Helen Hayes? It's gone so far that he actually took a test for the role. But so did Nils Asther and several others.

The unfortunate Mr. De Kuh, whom Mickey Walker knocked so cold in a local arena the other evening, has donned grease paint and will replace Wladek Zbyszko in Doug, Jr.'s, picture at Warners . . . Betty Blythe—you haven't forgotten "The Queen of Sheba"—is playing a small part in George Arliss' picture. And was it a study in contrast when Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson visited the suave and courtly George Arliss on the set the other afternoon . . . In a brainstrom, I wrote that Norman Foster was a grand opera singer before entering pictures. It was Preston Foster. I knew it, but the wrong name came off my fingertips. Also it was Robert Shannon and not Robert Sheldon who co-authored "Strictly Personal." Now I can breathe freely.

The Frolics has a new show, and despite a rainy night, the Frank Fays, the Bill Beaudines and several other celebrities showed up to look it over . . . After years, someone had the nerve to try that same telegram again on Al Jolson:

"Busted, disgusted and untrusted. Wire money."

Here's one for the linguists to crack their jawbones over.

Brought up in New York, James Cagney acquired a fluent Yiddish vocabulary. Many is the time he has astonished cafe eaves-droppers by breaking into the language.

The other noon, he was at it again when some wise-cracker in the next booth came out with a sentence of his own.

Without the slightest chance of expression, Cagney then launched into Yiddish pig-latin.

'Naughty' Cinderella,' Pitt Farce, Has Miss May As Comedienne

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Naughty Cinderella," a farce adapted from the French by the late Avery Hopwood, master of the type of comedy that has a tendency toward what has come to be known as "sexy," and formerly was called "shockingly daring," was presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt last night. It ran true to the Hopwood formula, and for those who get a thrill out of situations of the kind it affords, it was a laughable novelty. Even those who find sophistication a little passe likely had plenty of fun, for the piece is swift in action and all of it is nonsensical in the extreme.

The production marked the return of the capable Jean May as leading woman in the theater where she held the same position in a previous engagement that was most satisfactory to the regular patrons. She was in top form and revealed talents as a comedienne that represent considerable development in her art, unless it be that she either had no suitable medium of displaying it previously or was holding out on us.

BASED ON DECEPTION

"The Naughty Cinderella," like most French farces, has its basis in deception. It would appear that the height of comedy, according to the French idea, is the deluding of some married person by his mate. But in this case, the deceivers are not so sure of themselves, feeling that their little affair may not be altogether unknown to the wronged party. Since the man and wife in the case are going to make a trip to Lido, there must be some way to get the lady's admirer there, too, in such a way that there would be no suspicion.

So the swain engages a girl to go along with him, and it all turns out exactly the opposite of what the plotters had intended, with plenty of excitement thrown in as side issues, including the appearance of an American pugilist, sweetheart of the girl whose name is assumed by the lass hired to assist in a deception of a husband. Before it ends everything is mixed up and everybody is confused except the miss who played her part for pay and got more pleasure out of it than the one who engaged her.

CINDERELLA APPEALS

Miss May played the leading feminine role, that of the masquerading cinderella, and, as intimated, she did a fine job of it. Her dialect was correct and her mischief was of the proper blend of archness and winsomeness to make the character appealing.

Alden Chase portrayed the gay deceiver suavely and Ella Ethridge was most satisfactory as the object of his affections, Hunter Gardner being the husband in the case. Hugh Banks, as a sappy friend who thought of the nice little scheme, got what he deserved and had to appear more than once in a condition far from the immaculate person Hugh usually characterizes. Peggy Dougherty did her usual good job of a secondary role and so did Sam Flint and Roy Elkins in parts of like importance.

Next week "East Lynne." No kidding!

Orchestra Will Give Two Concerts

The matinee concert by the Detroit Orchestra tomorrow afternoon in Carnegie Music Hall will not begin until 4:30 o'clock. The program will open with the Bach Minuet. Brief remarks by Edith Rhetts Tilton will precede each number, and the conductor will be Victor Kolar. Popular prices prevail and students will be favored with reserved seats at 25 cents.

The evening concert in Syria Mosque will be conducted by Ossip Gabrilowitsch. The program will open with the Bach Brandenburg Concerto.

Jack Holt Is Owner Of Horse Ranch

Jack Holt, soon to appear as a cop in "Plainclothes Man," is an avid horseman and polo player, owner of a thousand head of horses which he raises on a 10,000-acre ranch near Fresno, Cal. He spends all his leisure time there.

Broadways of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE S. S. CITY OF TUNIS, NORTH AFRICA BOUND.—It's shortly after midnight, Italian time, as I begin this column. This is a boat of some 6,000 tons, and life aboard it evidently ceases as soon as the sun goes down. My cabin is too small in which to write, so I'm writing alone in the tiny writing room that also serves as a bar when there are sufficient passengers aboard to maintain a bar. This, evidently, is not one of those times.

My only light is a small affair that flickers feebly every time the boat rolls at too great an angle. My cameraman and my director have long since hit the hay. But I must finish this column to catch up with myself.

I'll bet the boys in New York think I'm having a swell time. In my mind's eye I can see six or seven of my pals sitting around in my favorite restaurant and talking about the situation.

"That Hellinger gets all the breaks," I can almost hear one of them saying. "What a time he must be having! Touring the world with nothing to worry about. A little column every day, a few moving pictures—and he's finished. Plenty of dames. Plenty of laughs. Plenty of everything. What a life!"

Well, I don't want to create any sympathy for myself because life has been pretty kind so far to a mug such as I am. But, purely for those who envy me this trip, I'm going to bat out a little schedule of the day through which I have just gone.

Ready Let's go . . .

7 a. m.—Awakened by the porter. I had finally retired at 4:15 a. m., after packing my stuff and getting my affairs in order for a departure from Italy.

7:45 a. m.—Bathed, shaved and dressed. Sat down to begin a column that I hoped to be able to finish in Naples later in the day.

8 a. m.—Interrupted by waiter with breakfast after I had typed out no more than two sentences. Argument with waiter because coffee wasn't hot enough in the first place and no good in the second place.

8:15 A. M.—Breakfast over. Sat down to continue work on column.

8:30 A. M.—Interrupted by waiter bring new coffee. Worse than the first pot. Told waiter to get out and stay out. Sat down to continue column.

8:40 A. M.—Interrupted by head waiter, accompanied by original waiter. Head waiter wanted to know why the coffee wasn't satisfactory and what he could do about it. I told him.

9:00 A. M.—Telephone rang to announce the arrival of Aldo Forte, younger brother of Ralph Forte. Aldo, a reporter for the Associated Press in Rome, was going to act as my interpreter at the bank and was also to see that I boarded the bus for the plane in safety. I put column away and locked my typewriter.

9:15 A. M.—Called Barclay Bank—Rome branch—to see if my money had arrived from America. By some mistake, it had. Informed bank we would be right over.

9:30 A. M.—Arrived at bank. Demanded money. Porter called cashier. Cashier called vice president. Vice president called president. President called porter. And so on.

10:15 A. M.—Received money. Raced from bank and returned to hotel to get baggage in time for plane. Secured baggage. Paid bill. Paid tips. Paid. Paid. Paid.

10:55 a. m.—Arrived at bus terminal just in time to catch bus for plane. Baggage overweight. Trouble. Paid off just in time to fall into bus as it started off.

12 noon—Into the plane for Naples. Full report in previous column. Can say no more.

1:30 p. m.—Plane arrived in Naples. Was decidedly dirty, tired and exhausted. Wanted nothing more than to get into a tub and then to take a short rest. But Mr. Cozine and my cameraman are waiting for me.

2:40 p. m.—Down in the slums of Naples. Surrounded by what seems like millions of children. They all want to get into the picture. They tear my coat, my tie, my vest, my pockets. When I leave, I'm a total wreck.

3:15 p. m.—Standing on the tip of Mt. Vesuvius and looking down into the volcanic mass that is liable to erupt at any time. The guides say that very few humans have ever dared get that close before. I look at my careraman. He's more frightened than I am, and that's something. Theme song for the whole business—"Lava, Come Back to Me."

4:05 p. m.—In my room in the hotel at last. Just getting ready to take a bath when I remember that I have forgotten to get tickets for this boat tonight. Race to steamship office as quickly as possible.

4:15 p. m.—Told by steamship officials that I must present passport in order to get tickets. Race back to hotel to get passport and then return to steamship office. Finally purchase tickets.

5:30 p. m.—Back in hotel with tickets and headache. Too late for bath or rest now. Must finish column I started in Rome early in the day. Get out typewriter and begin work.

7:30 p. m.—Finish column, and race downstairs to get it into transit. Figure boat doesn't leave until 10 and I might be able to take a nap for an hour or so.

7:35 p. m.—Manager of hotel meets me in lobby and urges me to leave for boat as quickly as possible. Says that the customs will create plenty of trouble because I am carrying films.

8:30 p. m.—All bills paid and on the way to boat in bus. Only other passenger in bus a very high-nosed English lady. She looks at me and sniffs. I sniff back, right in her kisser. Then I lean closer, look her right in the eyes and bark like a doggie. She falls back in a semi-faint and then I feel sorry. I'm certain I almost frightened the old gal into a coma.

9:05 p. m.—Terrible trouble with the customs. I show letters from every important Italian in America, including a receipt from Mori's restaurant. After an argument of one hour, during which neither the customs officers nor I understand what we are arguing about, the baggage is pronounced okay. We board this boat.

9:50 p. m.—The boat sails exactly 10 minutes before it is scheduled to do so, which is something of a new experience for me. Although my cabin is supposed to be the most luxurious on the boat, I find it too small to do any writing. I go in search of the purser to explain.

10:20 p. m.—I find the purser, but he speaks no English. And that's the end of that situation.

So here I am, shortly after midnight, typing another column before I attempt to get some sleep. The boat is rolling heavily now, and I don't feel so hot. There'll be no sleep tonight.

So you wish you were I, do you? So do I! . . .

Notes About New Films

John Barrymore, Billie Burke and Katharine Hepburn play the leading roles in "A Bill of Divorcement," Enright screen feature for three days, beginning tomorrow.

The Sheridan Square screen feature tomorrow, Thursday and Friday will be Tiffany Thayer's "Thirteen Women," with Irene Dunne, Myrna Loy and Ricardo Cortez heading the cast.

"The Doctor's Sacrifice," opening Thursday on the Fulton screen, will present a cast featuring Lyle Talbot and Thelma Todd. Capt. Frank Hawks, noted speed aviator, also will be seen in the picture. Henry B. Walthall, Pat O'Malley and Priscilla Dean have prominent roles.

Dick Powell, formerly master of ceremonies in the Stanley, will make his second appearance on the screen of that theater Friday when he will be seen as the juvenile lead in the Will Rogers picture, "Too Busy to Work." Marian Nixon will be his sweetie.

William Haines and Madge Evans will be featured on the Penn screen, beginning Friday, in "Fast Life," the thrills of which are pictured in a motor-boat race. Haines is one of the inventors of a new motor and Cliff Edwards is the other.

"No More Orchids," with Carole Lombard, Lyle Talbot, Walter Connolly and Louise Closser Hale, the latter two prominent stage players, is booked to begin an engagement on the Warner screen Friday.

The new double-feature bill that will open on the Davis and Regent screens Saturday will include "The Most Dangerous Game," with Joel McCrea and Kay Francis and "Night Mayor," featuring Lee Tracy.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The legendary green enchantment of far-off hills supplies the theme of "The Far-Off Hills," which will be the second play in the repertoire of the Abbey Theater players, to be presented in the Nixon tonight. It is a comedy by Lennox Robinson in which the two younger daughters of a widower plan to end the domineering of an older sister, as the head of the house, by inducing their father to marry again. The success of their plan is turned against them when the newly-weds decide to live elsewhere, leaving the daughters to continue in the old home. They eventually get a break when the "old maid" herself falls in love. Tomorrow's matinee also will be a Lennox Robinson comedy, "The Whiteheaded Boy," the title referring to the favored son, or family "pet."

* * *

Next week the George Sharp Players in the Pitt will be seen in a revival of "East Lynne," to be presented "straight," and not as a burlesque. Costumes of the period of its original presentation 70 years ago will be used, and the audience will even be treated to a theme song, "Then You'll Remember Me." The play is in 15 scenes distributed among five acts and it is a dramatization of a novel of the same title by Mrs. Henry Wood, an English writer. For years it was popular on both sides of the Atlantic, and anybody who could sit through it without weeping was thought to have no feeling whatever.

MRS. RAUH UPHOLDS CHARGE OF DOCTORS

POLITICS

Utility Probe Edge Is Apparently Dulled

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

Whatever the ultimate decision on the various injunction suits now surrounding the utility inquiry of the Rial committee, it is evident from related circumstances that the committee is through with any sincere effort to inquire into the practices of utilities in the state, or the conduct of members of the Public Service Service Commission.

This should cause no surprise. From the appointment of the committee there has been question as to how far it would go, an issue on which no light could be secured until the committee's attorney, Oliver K. Eaton, appeared to believe he had been retained to investigate. Eaton began to issue subpenas for individuals and corporations which caused some of the committee to become restive.

They did not risk an open break by attempting to curb Eaton through refusing the subpenas, but in accompanying comments some members intimated they did not believe they had authority to do what they had done, and in effect invited the attacks which have been made on the committee's authority. They are not apt to issue similar subpenas or permit close questionings, even if the courts say they may.

Senator William S. Rial, chairman of the committee, revealed his sentiment and that of some of his associates when he testified last week at Uniontown in the injunction petition of Commissioner S. Ray Shelby to prevent examination of his bank records. Rial volunteered criticism of Gov. Pinchot, who had forced the investigation.

His venom against Pinchot, who brought about the defeat of Rial in the primary last spring was too great to be denied outlet. The Senator said he had never heard charges against Shelby, apparently forgetting that the commissioner had been removed by Gov. Pinchot on one occasion, only to be put back by the courts, and thereafter reappointed by Gov. Fisher.

* * *

Organization Blunders Lend Aid to Pinchot

What Rial meant, probably, was that during the special session, when Pinchot made charges against the late Chairman W. D. B. Ainey, he had said nothing about Commissioner Shelby. The Senate resolution, however, spoke for a thorough inquiry, thqugh Senator Rial even as that resolution was adopted naively declared on the floor of the Senate that the Senators should be concerned only with new utility legislation.

The blandness with which he made that declaration caused consternation in some Republican organziation breasts, perturbed at the unmasking of the soft intentions of the Republican leaders, and necessitated a further speech by Rial later in which he endeavored to interpret his interpretation.

There are Republican organization leaders, close friends of Rial, who frankly believe he made a grievous mistake in his volunteered statements at Uniontown and thus opened the way for Gov. Pinchot to renew his attacks on utilities. That is the history of the past, however. Whenever the Governor appears shackled on one of his chief principles, when it seems that his thunder has been stolen, some organization member with more animus than astuteness, gives him a helping hand by a blundering action or statement.

This Rial committee has little present right to existence, anyhow. Three of its seven members, Rial, Earnest, of Harrisburg, and Clippinger, of Franklin, no longer are members of the Senate, their terms having expired November 30. Earnest retired of his own free will and Clippinger and Rial at the behest of the voters.

They now are no more members of the Senate than any other private citizen, so far as a vote is concerned. Of the remaining four members, Senator James J. Coyne's effort to continue his eligibility through a hastly oath taking in an effort to maintain a committee quorum, is not regarded as effective.

* * *

Oath Taking Not in Accord With Constitution

Coyne, already a member, was re-elected in November. Before the result was certified he had himself sworn in for the term beginning December 1, but not in accordance either with the Constitution or legislative procedure.

Article VII of the Constitution, after stating the oath to be taken, says:

"The oath to the members of the Senate and the House of Representatives shall be administered by one of the judges of the Supreme Court or of a Court of Common Pleas learned in the law, in the Hall of the House to which the members shall have been elected."

That was not done in the case of Senator Coyne.

Legislative procedure, followed through long precedent, says that on the day for convening of the Assembly, the Senators shall be caled to order by the Lieutenant Governor, that the Secretary of the Commonwealth then presents the election returns, a clerk opens and reads them. The newly-elected Senators then present themselves and are sworn in by a judge, in the presence of their colleagues.

Certainly that was not done in the case of Senator Coyne, for the day set by the Constitution for convening the Assembly is January 3 of 1933.

4 VOTE BOARDS FACE GRILLING BY PARK

Court Action Looms; Other Officials To Be Called

Members of four election boards were being questioned today by First Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt and given an opportunity to explain alleged irregularities found in the ballot boxes. When the boxes were opened by the recount board it was found ballots had been changed after the count was completed by the election board. Four more boards are to be similarly questioned tomorrow and four Thursday.

Those who appeared today included Sharpsburg, First District, Raymond T. Powers, judge, Clarence Bellman and Louis J. Meridan, inspectors; Second District, Peter Cassano, judge, and the Rev. W. A. Bomhard and Peter Carbone, inspectors; Carnegie, First Ward, First District, John S. Byrnes, judge, and his wife, Beatrice, an inspector; Scott Township, First Ward, Daniel Muenz, inspector.

Subpenas for the election officials were served last night by county detectives, on orders of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, who obtained a court order for the ballot boxes' custody Saturday. He took this action after the recount judges had certified irregluarities.

Detective David Drexler, election expert in Park's office, and Detectives Peter Connor and Michael Ford yesterday checked the ballots against the return sheets in the boxes. When they made their report Park ordered the election officers be summoned.

Cases held for court will be submitted to the January grand jury.

Summoned for tomorrow are the boards of the Third Ward, Scott Township; Third and Fourth wards, of Stowe Township, and the Seventh District of the Twenty-third Ward, Pittsburgh.

For Thursday, those summoned are the First District of Rankin and the Eighth, Ninth and Tenth districts of the Twenty-third Ward, Pittsburgh.

UPHOLDS VOTE CASE REWARDS

Having obtained the approval of Common Pleas Court of their plan to offer rewards for information leading to conviction of election law violators, the County Commissioners today were expected to make formal announcement of their offer. Approval of President Judge James R. Macfarlane, of Common Pleas Court, was obtained yesterday by Special Deputy Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher.

At a private conference several days ago Chairman C. C. McGovern offered a proposal for a reward of $500 to anyone giving information resulting in conviction. As wholesale violations have been reported, the Commissioners expect a large outlay, but believe it will be justified.

The Allegheny County Bar Association's committee on election frauds, the Bureau of Elections and the county Investigation Department opened headquarters in the new County Building yesterday. Two men from the Elections Bureau have been placed at the disposal of the bar committee and are at work in the headquarters.

All complaints received are being investigated. After reports are received, the attorneys and investigators will decide on the charges to be brought. A conference was held yesterday by Attorney E. Lowry Humes, chairman of the committee; County Solicitor J. P. Fife and Leo Riordan, chief county investigator.

DEMAND SUNDAY SHOW CLOSING

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Demands for an ordinance banning Sunday movies, "a law with teeth in it," is before the City Council today following the first Sabbath showing of pictures in Oil City.

The demands are contained in a petition, bearing 1,200 signatures and presented by 75 citizens at a meeting of Council last night. Maj. J. G. Payne instructed the delegation to name a committee of five to meet with Council tonight to discuss the issue further.

Meanwhile, managers of the two playhouses which opened Sunday despite the state's age-old "Blue Laws," paid fines of $4 and costs yesterday for themselves and for four employes in each theater.

Notes From Our Debtors Always Very Promissory

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Here's the biography of a war debt:

Money is borrowed with profuse thanks.

Boy, you saved my life. If I can ever do anything for you just try and find me.

Profuse thanks are returned without the money.

Notes are exchanged. Mostly promissory.

Bumper crop of evasions. Proving that statesmen are not diplomats but jockeys.

League minstrels cork up in Geneva and wow each other with old gags.

We get polite note written on velvet with a cat's claw.

We answer with another note so polite it almost starts international trouble.

Watch tomorrow's papers for first clue in Thursday's reparation mystery.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 13.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

Well, the Democrats made good out here. I don't know what they promised in the rest of the country, but Roosevelt promised us rain, and by golly he made good. The rest of the country can be excited over prohibition, disarmament, war loans, or the new cabinet. But this is a desert country, and if we don't get rain we are blowed up. We can show you oranges growing and flowers. But if you look under the bush you will see a hose. A sprinkling can is our national emblem. Rain is never a nuisance here. It's a miracle. So the Democrats have made good.

Yours, WILL.

Will Rogers and Dick Powell appear in the picture, "Too Busy to Work," opening Friday at the Stanley Theater.

G. W. Knight Head Of Travelers' Club

Guy W. Knight was elected president at the annual meeting of the Travelers' Club, composed of men associated with the Pittsburgh branch of the Travelers Insurance Company, in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. Joseph A. McGroarty was named vice president and William L. Calder secretary-treasurer.

DISTILLERS SUE OVER TAX

Failure of the government to make sufficient allowance for loss of "growing business" through the Eighteenth Amendment was to be one of arguments by counsel for A. Guckenheimer & Bros. Co. at a hearing scheduled for today before Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, in a suit brought by the distilling company to recover approximately $450,000, with interest, which the company asserts was erroneously collected as income and excise profit taxes for the years 1918 to 1921.

The action was brought against D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue in the Pittsburgh district. The company holds the government placed insufficient valuations on its property in Freeport, and that taxes were collected after a complete compromise and settlement.

In defense the government will be represented by John A. McCann, Pittsburgh representative of general counsel, Bureau of Internal Revenue. Weil, Christy and Weil will represent the plaintiff company.

Padlock Injunction Cases Before Court

Final hearings in 48 padlock injunction actions against properties where prohibition agents alleged the prohibition laws were violated were held by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar today.

In a large number of cases, the court allowed the property owners to retain possession on posting bonds against further violations. Among these were included the second floor of the Delmont Hotel, 120 Federal street, and the basement at 59 Fullerton street, where the "Show Boat" cabaret was operated.

COURT CLEARS M'CLOSKEY IN VOTE CASE

Prosecutor Concedes That Mayor Broke No Law

EBENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Mayor Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown, today was free of charges that he registered falsely and voted illegally in the general election. The charges were nolle prossed yesterday by Judge John H. McCann.

The judge acted on a recommendation of District Attorney W. Lloyd Hibbs who declared the allegations could not be sustained. Costs of the case were placed on the county.

ACCUSED BY SLEUTH

McCloskey was indicted last week on charges preferred by R. Milton Good, private detective of Conemaugh.

He alleged McCloskey swore falsely in an affidavit to the County Commissioners that he was out of the city on all three legal registration days prior to the general election and voted illegally on the Commissioners' registration.

Hibbs told the court that there was nothing in the law to indicate an applicant must be ill or out of the city on legal registration days to be able to vote on an affidavit.

OTHERS VOIDED

Good's allegations originally resulted in five charges being lodged against the Mayor. The three others, involving McCloskey's alleged release from jail of commonwealth prisoners, were disposed of last week. The grand jury returned non-true bills on two and another was previously dropped.

McCloskey, whose regime as mayor has been marked by frequent clashes with Council over various matters, previously termed the five charges a "frameup."

SLAIN IN FIGHT OVER WOMAN

William Mason, 65, of 824 Olympia street, Duquesne Heights, was to be turned over to the Coroner today in connection with the fatal shooting of Frank Davis, 45, a Negro, of 824 Olympia street, in the latter's home last night, according to homicide detectives.

Mason, severely beaten by Davis in a fight over Mrs. Hattie Stewart, a Negro, of 822 Olympia street, by whom Davis was employed as a chauffeur, procured a shotgun and fired at Davis through an open window, detectives said. The charge struck Davis in the head and chest. Mason was treated at South Side Hospital and then lodged in Central Police Station. Mrs. Stewart and another Negro woman and man were detained as material witnesses.

Slapped, She Says

VIRGINIA MAY PARKER

'SLAPPED' GIRL ACCUSES MAN

Virginia May Parker's lips showed bruises today. The "Miss North Side of 1927" appeared in Morals Court to complain against Patsy Brighelle, 39, of 311 Bluff street, who was fined $10 or 10 days to jail. She accused him of slapping her.

Miss Parker and her misfortunes had been in court before. Once, in 1928, she promised Magistrate Thomas D. Jones she would not swallow iodine again. Last spring she was questioned in the death of Richard Halloway, stabbed in a fight in her home.

Last year she offered herself as an auction bride—setting the figure at $5,000.

But today she had a story slightly less dramatic. Brighelle, she testified, asked her to meet him last night. She left her home at 1532 Wolpert street, met him at Cedar and Foreland streets and got into his car. He had asked her to release him from a bond, posted in court for support of a child. She refused. She declared he then slapped her.

Brighelle denied this, testifying:

"I only pushed her. She'd been drinking. She told me she'd never marry me."

POOR FORCED TO WAIT DAYS FOR AID

Welfare Medic Staff Held Inadequate for Present Demands

A charge by the Pittsburgh Medical Bulletin that health nurses had "noted a number of undiagnosed cases of pneumonia under treatment by Department of Welfare physicians" was explained today by Miss Helen Stevens, director of the Public Health Nursing Association, and Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the city Department of Welfare.

Miss Stevens and Mrs. Rauh declared the statement was true, and pointed out that:

Pittsburgh poor stricken with influenza, and some few with pneumonia, have had to wait as long as 48 hours for medical treatment.

DOCTORS SWAMPED

Pittsburgh poor needing maternity care—many simple maternity cases—have inadequate medical attention and welfare workers on urgent calls have had to seek for hours before they could secure hospitalization for them.

Pittsburgh's welfare doctors—11 of them—have been swamped with hundreds of calls during the present influenza situation and were forced, at times, to work 24 hours straight in attempting to serve the sick.

Welfare agencies, because their funds include no provision for medical attention, are forced to call on city welfare physicians because only their prescription blanks will be filled without cost to patients.

Previous offers of drug companies to furnish prescriptions free to the poor have been withdrawn.

SUBSIDIES CUT

State subsidies to hospitals have been cut—with the subsequent unwillingness of the institutions to take free cases unless forced to by emergency.

Physicians called on in the emergency of the present numerous influenza cases in many instances are unable to attend poor patients, due to having to care for their own.

The inability of city physicians to handle the cases and the undiagnosed pneumonia instances was pointed out by the editor of the Pittsburgh Medical Bulletin, Dr. Walter H. Donaldson. The Bulletin stated:

"A representative of the Public Health Nursing Association had reported to the Welfare Department that its nurses had noted a number of undiagnosed cases of pneumonia under treatment by Department physicians, this no doubt being due to the unprecedented number of professional calls falling to the lot of each Welfare Department physician."

PHYSICIANS STRICKEN

The bulletin also declared Welfare Department employes believed at least a part of the recent increase in calls for city doctors was due to the fact that just now people were learning that such services were available without charge. It continued:

"A number of instances were cited in which inquiry of the former family physicians indicated that they were not only willing to serve, but that they were surprised to know that former patients had sought free services of a city physician."

Miss Stevens declared that while public health nurses did not diagnose illnesses, they reported when they found people seriously sick. Several in Homewood and one in the North Side were without medical attention for 48 hours, due to the excessive number of calls on the welfare physicians, she said. Neighborhood physicians called were too busy, but a physician was finally secured, she explained.

Mrs. Rauh declared the absence of two of the 11 physicians, due to illness, made the hundreds of calls a day more difficult.

Election Judge Tells Of Naming Constables

A judge of election testified before Alderman Edward W. Haas last night that, for 30 years, he had assumed the power of the Common Pleas Court to name his own constable for election duty.

This admission was made by William Richardson, of 212 Smithfield street, judge of elections in the First District, First Ward, accused with Leo Ford, 207 Fourth avenue, Richardson's constable, and Radio Patrolmen Al Miller and Henry Pieper, of intimidating a watcher. Testimony had been introduced to the effect that Richardson had refused to recognize Nicholas W. Snyder, a court-appointed constable. He said:

"Why I've been appointing my constables for the last 30 years."

Haas exclaimed:

"Then you've been violating the law for 30 years."

The charges were preferred by Katherine E. Newingham, of 420 Third avenue, a Republican watcher, who claimed she had been ejected from the polls on orders of Richardson.

The defendants, with the exception of Ford, were held for court in $1,000 bail. Ford faces an additional charge of assault and battery and his bail was fixed at $1,500. All gave bond.

After the decision, Defense Attorney William R. Kalson made an unsuccessful attempt to have the name of Patrolman Thomas V. Abbott substituted for that of Pieper. He argued that Mrs. Newingham had not identified either. The request was refused by Haas, who replied that Abbott had responded to Pieper's name.

GLOBE TROTTER'S WIDOW DESCRIBES ATTACK BY WILD DOGS

FACES TERROR IN LAND OF PYRAMIDS

Wanderwell Equal to All Emergencies in World Tour

(Aloha Wanderwell, who, filled with the spirit of adventure and a desire for the far places, has led a life as colorful and filled with adventure as that of her husband, Capt. Walter Wanderwell, slain aboard his adventure yacht at Long Beach, Cal., has written her life story for Universal Service. The third installment is herewith presented.)

By ALOHA WANDERWELL

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—For the first time since I joined Capt. Wanderwell on his proposed automobile tour of the world we had trouble when we approached the German border.

But Cap, confronted by the strictest army regulations, as usual was equal to the emergency.

When he was halted by soldiers at the first border post he simply jumped out of the car and, carrying his brief case, entered the little building which was the office of the commanding officer.

A few minutes later he came out, still carrying his brief case, waved lightly to the soldiers, told them in their own language that everything was all right and we passed on.

FILMING PRINCE

While we were in Holland, he wanted to get some film of the former German Crown Prince.

He learned that the prince habitually rode a bicycle along a certain lane at a certain hour.

Carefully concealing our motion picture camera with an operator in a clump of trees, Cap waited for the prince to come pedaling along.

Cap was dressed in his best uniform, and as the prince approached Cap stood beside the path, his hand raised in salute.

The prince halted and the two conversed for several minutes. All this time, the camera was grinding and we obtained some excellent film.

In some countries we were received with great enthusiasm, dined and feted and entertained in the most elaborate fashion while in other places we were regarded as mere vagabonds and given little consideration.

UPS AND DOWNS

At times we lived in the smartest hotels. Once we were entertained by nobility in a Rumanian castle. A few weeks, or even days, later, we might be living in tents and subsisting on the most common fare.

One girl to join us was a German girl, who had been brought up in a soldiers' barracks in Egypt.

She had practically no education in the accepted sense of the word. Everything she knew had been taught her by these soldiers.

She spoke many languages, but her English was the most terrible kind of English I ever heard.

After the girl had been with us a short time we moved to a camp near the pyramids. One night she disappeared.

The other members of the expedition assumed she had deserted us because she no longer cared for our manner of living, although at first she had seemed pitifully eager to escape from the existence she had been leading near the barracks.

GIRL REAPPEARS

All of her baggage and belongings were divided among other members of the party, each taking what he or she liked or whatever fitted best.

In a few days, however, the German girl returned. Her rage at finding her baggage looted was ludicrous.

Like a veritable amazon, she tore into men and women alike, snatching and grabbing, and in some instances actually tearing articles of clothing off the wearers, wherever she recognized anything that belonged to her.

The struggle was highly exciting and amusing while it lasted, but with peace again restored, the German girl proved to be an invaluable member of our party because of her knowledge of Arabic.

It was while we camped near the Pyramids that we had a most terrifying experience.

ATTACKED BY DOGS

We were attacked by a pack of wild dogs.

Our lives were saved in a most unexpected fashion. We had a German boy with us who was a magnificent guitarist. He had a very valuable instrument which he seemed almost to love.

He was playing and singing when the dogs attacked us and, lacking any other weapon, he used his cherished guitar as a club.

In some miraculous manner, he happened to strike the leader of the pack upon the head.

Naturally, the fragile guitar was broken and splintered. The wreckage caught about the head and neck of the beast.

He turned and fled, the ruined guitar banging and clattering along with him.

Alarmed at such an unusual spectacle, the other dogs fled also.

The only white woman in hundreds of miles, I spent one horrible night in a pearl divers' camp. There was one white man and 2,000 blacks—fuzzy wuzzies, we called them. My gun was my only defense during that night of terror, and it was not the 2,000 black men with whom I had to struggle.

It was the lone white man.

I will tell you about it tomorrow.

GLICK DEFENDS STATE BANK METHODS

The Department of Banking, through Deputy Attorney General David Glick, today struck back at depositors who have filed exceptions to the account of George F. Taylor, Jr., deputy secretary of banking in charge of the Citizens' Trust Company of Bellevue. Glick announced that there is a "complete defense to every exception."

At the same time, Glick announced he will take over duties of attorneys for the bank and will represent the institution at the hearings, to be held in Common Pleas Court tomororw. He said:

"In reply to charges of extravagant, ruthless and reckless expenditures of the deputy in charge of the Citizens Trust Company of Bellevue, there is a complete and legal defense to every exception filed to the account of George F. Taylor, Jr., agent for the secretary of banking."

Glick's appointment was necessary because some of the items excepted to are those of the bank's regular attorneys.

Meanwhile, it was announced William L. McGee, deputy secretary of banking in charge of closed banks, will be in Pittsburgh to testify at the hearing, which is expected to last two or three days.

McGee's office in Philadelphia has directed liquidation policies of closed state banks in Pennsylvania since the new administration plan devised by William D. Gordon, banking secretary, was set in motion early last winter. Expense of the office has been shared by all closed state banks.

Park H. Martin, chairman of a depositors' committee from the Bellevue bank, has charged that the McGee office is, in his opinion, illegal, since it is not included in the Pennsylvania banking code.

Much attacked for months, McGee's appearance is thought to be the first legal defense of the system.

1,406,129 POLL FOR STADTFELD

HARRISBURG, Dec. 13.—Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, of Pittsburgh, polled 1,406,129 in his campaign for election to the Superior Court, on the Republican ticket, the complete official count revealed. The totals of his party running mates were William M. Parker, 1,463,316, and Arthur H. James, 1,385,043. Their Democratic opponents, Rorert A. Henderson, George F. Douglas and George H. McWherter, received respectively 1,167,929, 1,138,628 and 1,121,164. For the State Supreme Court, William B. Linn, Philadelphia, was elected by a vote of 1,441,954 over Edward C. Higbee, Democrat, who received 1,159,016. John W. Slayton, Socialist, received 91,283. The official count did not change the result indicated by unofficial figures on statewide offices.

NINE CATHOLIC SCHOOLS CLOSE

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Dec. 13.—(INS.)—Winnipeg had a complicated educational problem dumped in its lap today when Archbishop A. A. Sinnot notified officials that the nine Catholic parochial schools, with an attendance of 2,000, would close.

Catholics have discovered that under present conditions they cannot afford the double expense of supporting the parochial institutions in addition to paying taxes for the maintenance of the public schools, it was said.

Forty years ago, Manitoba Catholics won a bitter fight to build and operate their own schools. At the time, the government stipulated that they should help support the public schools with the usual taxes.

On January 1, Winnipeg will have to take the 2,000 Catholic children into the public classrooms. With facilities already limited and with the city treasury in poor condition, the city will either have to buy or rent the nine parochial schools or give the Catholics some $60,000 to continue their operation.

JUVENILE COURT FREEDOM URGED

Speaking over Station KDKA, Curtis A. Williams, secretary of the western branch, Penal Affairs Committee of Pennsylvania, declared for "separation of the Juvenile Court of Allegheny County from every vestige of political schemes selfishly designed and controlled." He said in part:

"The great volume of business, the stream of cases and the very nature of its service entitle the Juvenile Court to the dignity of an independent tribunal.

"During 1931 a total of 7,200 children received attention from some department of Allegheny County's Juvenile Court. Surely the life interests of such a number of children should not be jeopardized by the play of political patronage. It is no surprise that examples of gross inefficiency should appear when people wholly incompetent for the work are appointed and retained through favoritism."

Charges to be Filed Against Two Women

Informations were to be made today by county detectives against two women arrested in a raid on a house in lower Sandusky street early yesterday.

The women, who gave their names as Margaret Curry, 22, and Marie Hunter, were committed to the county jail on District Attorney's detainers after they refused to give detectives information regarding the proprietor, who climbed out of a second-story window and fled over roof tops when the raiders entered. The raid resulted from complaints made to Judge Frank P. Patterson.

PHYSICIAN SHOT BY BANDIT

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 13.—Dr. V. D. Viets, lured into lonely Mill creek park by a robber and shot, is recovering today in a hospital. The physician said he responded to a plea of the robber to visit his ill father.

The robber called at Dr. Viets' office last night and they drove to the park in the physician's car. Reaching there, the man held a revolver at the doctor's back and demanded his money. Dr. Viets said the robber was nervous and apparently discharged the gun accidentally. He fled through the park.

Dr. Viets drove to his home and was removed to a hospital.

UNSEALED YULE CARDS TO AID SEAL SALE

A number of Pittsburgh society and clubwomen, in the interest of charity, have set an interesting example of economy this Christmas. Following a plea for additional funds by the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, many of them are conforming to the following suggestion:

Unsealed Christmas cards may be mailed for 1½ cents. Either buy Christmas seals with the other 1½ cents, or contribute it to some worthy charity.

CITES GREAT NEED

Miss Alice Stewart, general superintendent of the Tuberculosis League Hospital said:

"Although it is generally conceded an unsealed message is considered bad taste, funds are so badly needed this year a concession might worthily be made in the interest of charity. The Tuberculosis League Hospital is overcrowded.

"Although the nature of the disease we are combating makes isolation desirable, the number of patients makes private rooms out of the question. During the past year, the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh has cared for 10,000 persons in the Bedford Avenue, Falk Clinic and North Side Community House dispensaries. There are more than 200 on the waiting list to enter the hospital. Surely it is more important to help our sick, than to be concerned about the etiquet of sending unsealed Christmas messages."

POSTAL RULES

James B. Anderson, Pittsburgh postmaster, said there were no governmental objections to sending Christmas cards unsealed for 1½ cents, if they conformed to the rules of third-class mail. He said:

"As long as the Christmas cards contain no written message except 'Merry Christmas' or 'Happy New Year' along with the signature, it will not be regarded as first-class mail and may be sent with a 1½-cent stamp."

Although most Pittsburgh women queried on the matter admitted it is bad form to send anything so personal as a Christmas card unsealed, many conceded that exceptions could be made, without social offense, in an emergency such as the present.

GOOD CAUSE EXCEPTION

Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, assistant manager of Brentanos' Book Shop said:

"It is bad form, of course, but if it is for charity, then I personally approve of it. If it is for a good cause, an exception to good taste can be made."

John S. Fisher, former Governor, Christmas Seal chairman for Pennsylvania, today urged support in the fight against tuberculosis saying:

"The specter of tuberculosis throws a menacing shadow beyond the present problem of unemployment and distress. It is important for every one of us to include Christmas Seals in this year's holiday budget with the words 'children first.'"

PACT ON IRENE REWARD SIGNED

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Dec. 13.—Nearly three years after the murder of Corp. Brady Paul by Irene Schrader and Glenn Dague, payment of the $3,200 reward for their capture was a step nearer today as a result of the claimants filing an agreement to dispense with a trial and leave the division to the discretion of the court.

The claimants retain the right to appeal if not satisfied. The money is in hands of the court, pending outcome of litigation started by Elmer E. Hague, a local claimant, against Lawrence County. The County Commissioners have consented to the agreement.

In addition to Hague, there are the following claimants, residents of Arizona:

Rual Cordova, Charles H. Wright, Gus Dabisky, William Babby, C. H. Johnston, Joe Keith, Albert Rhodes, Honce Coor, George Pruitt, Oscar Roberts, J. G. Carter, Leon Sundust, Miles R. Chumbly, Joe Smith and Joe Chapman, all of whom have signed the agreement.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Saves $2. No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

PIRATES GET LINDSTROM

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Pirate Deal Ten-Strike. Only Weak Spot Plugged. Second Swap to Follow. • Battaglia Future Heavy. All-America Losers. Greenleaf, Rudolph Best.

LINDSTROM MEANS BIG FLAG CHANCE

THE BIG DEAL that brings Outfielder Freddie Lindstrom to the Pirates through a three-cornered trade with the Giants and Phillies looks like one of the best ever made by the Pittsburgh club. To plug the only weak spot in the local lineup, the hole in left field, the Buccaneers have obtained one of the greatest ball players in the country. And apart from the large cash sum paid to the Phillies, they have given up nothing that they could not spare. Glenn Spencer last season was little more than a relief pitcher, being used in that role 26 times. He won only four games while losing eight, and went the route only five times in 13 starts. There was no room for Gus Dugas in the Pittsburgh outfield on account of his being a left-hand hitter.

Freddie Lindstrom

The acquisition of Lindstrom, therefore, is practically a clear gain in a playing way, and it is a gain that will send the Rovers to the post next spring with an excellent pennant chance. The value of Lindstrom cannot be too highly estimated. He is a normal .300 hitter who ought to recover speedily from an off season that dropped him to .270 in 1932. He is a batter of the slugging type, a fine hit-and-run man, a rare run producer, a great outfielder, and a hustling, winning ball player. Lindstrom and the two Waners give Pittsburgh the best outfield in either league. No other club in the National League will be a better flag prospect than the Pirates next year. The deal is a ten-strike.

CONGRATULATIONS ARE DUE President W. E. Benswanger on his success in swinging the big trade, and on the daring and liberality he showed in digging down into the Buc treasury to an extent running well into five figures in a determination to bolster the local club at any cost at a time when other clubs are practicing strict economy.

The Pirate president has been working on this trade for months, making several long trips in an effort to put it through. Refusing to part with any of the local stars demanded by New York, and finding the Giants unwilling to sell Lindstrom for cash, he figured out a way to get Lindstrom by bringing in another club to which cash might prove attractive. He has done a fine job that every fan will appreciate.

THE COMING OF Lindstrom puts the Pittsburgh club in a position to make another deal. Don't be surprised if a second trade follows.

Adam Comorosky can now be used as trading material, and it won't be the fault of the Buc chiefs if they don't swing an early dicker for a good pitcher.

NATURALLY, SINCE HE brushed Chick Devlin out of his way last week, Frank Battaglia means to stay in the middleweight championship hunt against Ben Jeby and Marcel Thil. But that isn't his real objective. He is looking far ahead to a bigger title. The heavyweight throne is his goal. The Italian-Canadian walloper expects to put on considerable weight during the next year and thinks he will be big enough to go after the heavy crown in the summer of 1934, pinning his hopes for success on the punching power that has enabled him to knock out 26 of his last 31 opponents. Battaglia will start on the light-heavies when he meets Georgie Nichols, N. B. A. champion, in Chicago on December 28, and says that right after that he wants Mickey Walker and doesn't care what the latter may scale.

Tony Canzoneri

PLANNING TO GET back in action within a few weeks, Tony Canzoneri has requested New York promoters to sign Jimmy McLarnin as his first opponent, if McLarnin comes through his fight with Sammy Fuller Friday night in good shape.

Jimmy Johnston likes the idea, but also has in mind another match between Canzoneri and Kid Chocolate for the lightweight title. A Canzoneri-McLarnin bout was almost made several weeks ago, but McLarnin's refusal to make 145 pounds blocked it.

WITH EACH SUCCEEDING season the absurdity of all-America football picking is becoming more widely realized. A Big Ten man says that every year more than 100 players equal to those selected are overlooked, and that 10 places on the teams chosen are disputable.

Though it is admitted that Harry Newman is entitled to the quarterback selection this year above all others because he, more than any other individual, won the Western Conference title for Michigan, the point is raised that if he had been playing on a mediocre team, like Gil Berry, of Illinois, he would have been just another football player.

IF NEWMAN had not been selected, it is held, then Charley Bernard, the Wolverine center, or Ivan Williamson, captain, would have been chosen. But because it is not the practice to pick more than one player from any one school, these stars had to join many others on the list of all-Americans that are not all-Americans. Ernie Pinckert, of Southern California, was passed up in the same way last year because his team was otherwise represented. Manders, of Minnesota, was forgotten in favor of Clarence Munn, and Jack Riley, of Northwestern, was overlooked in favor of Pug Rentner. This year, Ed Krause, of Notre Dame, was given the go-by because Joe Kurth got the call at the same school.

In keeping with the general fitness of things, the coach of the Sing Sing football team this year has the appropriate name of John Law. On top of that he was a guard when he played on and captained the Notre Dame eleven of 1929.

Law's admirers in Sing Sing have presented to him a handsome gold watch in appreciation of his services, which leads some curious guy to remark that this brings up two questions: How is John going to get the watch out of Sing Sing? And whose watch was it originally?

When he was asked by J. P. Allen what counted for most in refereeing a cue tourney, Joe Ferguson, who is handling the world championship pocket billiard competition in New York, replied: "Shoe leather." According to Ferguson's own estimate, he will walk 90 miles in refereeing the present tournament. There are 45 games on the schedule, and he figures he covers two miles to a match, or six miles per day.

The distance that Ferguson has walked as the third man in cue contests would more than take him from the Atlantic to the Pacific and back again. He has been acting as referee of the important pocket-billiard and three-cushion matches around the country for some years, and estimates the number of matches handled as "in the several thousands."

Erwin Rudolph

FERGUSON RANKS THE two pocket-billiard finals between Ralph Greenleaf and Erwin Rudolph, in Detroit, and New York, as the greatest he ever refereed. He says Greenleaf and Rudolph are the fastest players in the game. And also the best. "It's no disparagement to the others to say that Greenleaf and Rudolph are the outstanding masters of the pocket game at this time," the veteran official said. "They possess the experience and the skill, and all that goes with those items.

TONYS INDULGE IN THRILLER AT GARDEN

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

It would be a pip of a return bout, that battle the two Tonys—Herrera and Falco—put on against each other at Motor Square Garden last night before what appeared to be the largest crowd of the indoor season at a fight show here. But, if the principals accept a rematch in a hurry, they're both nerts—it took that much out of each.

Herrera won the decision, and deserved it, at the end of 10 of the toughest rounds he ever fought, and we've been seeing him in action a long time. To win, he had to come like the wind down the stretch after losing five of the first six rounds, and then he just about wiped out his opponent's big lead to nose his way in front. Both judges voted for him, while the referee, Al Grayber, declared for a draw.

FALCO MAKES HIT

The crowd cheered when the decision was announced, and then a booing came up from the rear, where the fans thought Falco had won. You had to cut it with a knife to get a winner, it was that close, but it was fair to give it to the older of the Tonys.

It was Falco's second appearance here. He recently defeated Johnny Datto at the Arena. He registered a tremendous hit last night and made old George Engel, his manager, who has been behind champions, proud of him. He started out so fast that he actually gave Herrera a lacing over the first half of the route. Then the greater experience of Herrera began to tell, and the Mexican gradually cut away his opponent's lead and outfinished him to pull in front. Falco had set too fast a pace at the start and couldn't match Herrera's reserve burst of speed over the last half of the journey, and that was the determining factor.

LOSER GAINS BIG LEAD

In the beginning, Falco, much shorter than the rangy Herrera, and with an abbreviated reach, surprised by getting inside consistently and scoring at will. He was fast on the trigger with a short straight right to the chin and also used a left hook effectively. Herrera came up for the second round hooking away to the body with his long left and kept it up to carry this round, but, in the next, he permitted Falco to take the lead again and carry not only this session but the next three as well.

An old cut on Herrera's head was opened in the fourth round, and it bled on to the finish, at times painting his opponent's face crimson from contact.

Moving into the seventh round, Herrera was miles behind, but now he was ready to go, and from this point on he made the fight, with his opponent having shot his bolt.

Long, stabbing, straight lefts, rights to the jaw and body and hooks to both spots with the left found their mark, and the rally did not come too late. In fact, it was perfectly timed to permit him to come on and win.

HERRERA IS MARKED

There were no knockdowns. Herrera was badly marked at the finish, having a mouse on his right eye and a bit of a cut under the left optic and that wound on the top of his head. He had been through a hard night's work, but he had done it so well that his opponent could get no better than one draw vote of the three polled, while the other two ballots went to Herrera.

Herrera scaled 138 pounds and Falco 136½ at 3 p. m.

Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, repeated an earlier victory over Sid Silas, local lightweight, in the eight-round semi-final, a bloody battle on both sides. Silas won the third and fourth rounds and held his own in the fifth and the others went to his opponent.

JARRELL BEATS EDWARDS

Pee Wee Jarrell, of Terre Haute, Ind., clowned his way through to a victory in the six-round second event, against rough and ready Freddie Edwards, of Chester, W. Va., who gave him a good run, but wasn't quite fast enough to match the Pee Wee's pace. Jarrell did a lot of holding during the last few rounds, for which he was warned.

Johnny Riske, of the South Hills, turned in a good job in flattening Amos (Bearcat) Jones, East End Negro middleweight, in the second round of the opener. He dropped Jones for a count of three and then stretched him for 10, each time with a right to the jaw.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: TENNESSEE'S WAR OF THE ROSES—The gubernatorial contest in Tennessee in 1886 presented an unusual spectacle. The Democratic nominee was Robert L. Taylor, while the Republican choice was his brother, A. A. The active political campaign of the two brothers did not in the least conflict with their genuine brotherly affection. Their discussions revolved around federal matters rather than affairs of the estate. This curious campaign of "Our Bob and Alf" is remembered in Tennessee as the "War of the Roses." The Democratic campaign emblem was the White Rose of York, while the Republicans opposed them adorned with the Red Rose of Lancaster. Robert L. was elected in 1886, but his Republican opponent was elected Governor 34 years later, in 1920.

MAJORS SET FOR CONFABS

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Inspired by the first big player deal of the annual conclaves, the magnates of the American and National Leagues settled down today to three solid days of barter, lobby lounging, and serious efforts to prune the baseball business of all unnecessary expense.

Although the club owners, in separate league meetings, had before them the recommendations of the joint "steering" committee of the two major circuits for drastic economies, trades still were of absorbing interest, vieing with suggestions for lower ticket prices, further reduction of the player limit, and outlawing of radio broadcasts for all but world series games.

British Champs Retain Ring Titles

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(INS.)—Two British boxing champions retained their crowns in title bouts last night.

Larry Gains, of Toronto, who holds the heavyweight championship of the British Empire, knocked out Michel Maurer, of Germany, in the fourth round of their bout at Manchester.

Len Harvey, British middleweight champion, was given the decision over Jack Casey, of Sunderland, in a 15-round bout at Newcastle.

President Orders Athletic Probe

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Investigation of the athletic situation at the University of Kentucky has been ordered by President Frank L. McVey in response to student demands which followed the football team's worst season in six years. The inquiry will cover business, financial and coaching affairs of the athletic department.

NETTERS REACH THIRD ROUND

Third round competition will hold the spotlight in the first annual Allegheny County table tennis tournament, being sponsored by Gimbels, today as the starting field of 88 is further reduced.

The second round was completed yesterday, with part of the third round being played. The summary:

Centre, S. Carolina Choose Grid Leaders

DANVILLE, Ky., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Charles Barksdale, of Danville, left end on the Centre College football team, was elected captain of the 1933 eleven last night. He succeeds Yater Breeding. James Edwards, fullback and tackle, from Hopkinsville, Ky., was elected alternate captain.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Earl Clary, of Gaffney, and Arthur Eugene (Buddy) Morehead, of Memphis, Tenn., have been elected co-captains of the University of South Carolina football team for 1933.

Lindstrom Says He's Pleased With Shift

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(INS.)—Fred Lindstrom, traded by the New York Giants to the Pittsburgh Pirates, today expressed satisfaction over the deal. He said:

"I am well pleased with the shift. The Pittsburgh team is strong and has great possibilities. It would not surprise me in the least to see that club go to the front next season and finish as champion of the National League.

"I will give my very best, and I believe that means real baseball. I still have plenty of good baseball in me. Watch me go."

WOOD TAKES 'FRISCO OPEN

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., possesses the $516.89 in cash and what ever less material honors attend the holding of the San Francisco match play open golf championship today.

Forging into the lead with a sub-par finish his rival could not match, Wood defeated Al Espinosa, of Akron, O., 2 and 1, yesterday in the 36-hole final of the championship.

The pair fought through two rounds of close golf with Espinosa holding a slight advantage for the moring 18. The veteran Akron pro completed the first round 1 up.

Wood hauled down $516.89 as the winner's share of the $2,500 purse. Espinosa received $344.60.

WATSON TO BOX KEED

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(INS.)—Madison Square Garden expects to sign Kid Chocolate for a match with Seaman Watson, English titleholder, to be held January 27, with the featherweight championship of the world at stake. It also is proposed to match the victor with Fidel La Barba about mid-February.

FANS APPLAUD BUC DEAL

The impression that the Pirates put over a ten strike in landing Fred Lindstrom in their three-cornered deal with the Giants and Phils appeared to be general among local baseball fans today.

Among those voicing conviction that the deal will bring about a strengthening of the Pittsburgh club were Honus Wagner, famed Pirate shortstop; Judge Frank P. Patterson, Senator Frank J. Harris, a director of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club; Joe Mackrell, Bill Tracy, John K. Tener, former president of the National League, and Cal Bolster, prominent sports official. Wagner's comment was:

"That looks like a good deal all the way around. The Buccos need a right-hand batter to balance their attack. When Grace was catching we had too many southpaw swingers up there."

Tener said:

"Lindstrom is a great ball player, a good right-hand hitter and outfielder. If he hits near his best form he will be the right man for the Pirates."

STAR TO ADD SPEED, POWER TO BUCCOS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The December air of Pittsburgh popped today with 1,000,000 salvos born of a Swede named Lindstrom, who is supposed to give contact to the new Pirate air liner when it takes off on its pennant quest next April.

The calm following a great football season locally was broken last night by a peal of winter thunder emanating from New York, but whose echo had a louder reception in Pittsburgh than anywhere else.

Bill Benswanger and George Gibson, Pirate bosses, have been trying to land Fred Lindstrom, de luxe diamond star, for four months. Their efforts were crowned with success as Benswanger put on the finishing touches in a conference with representatives of Giants and Phillies, the two other teams involved in the three-cornered transaction.

RECORD SPEED TEAM

In acquiring the smart Lindy while giving over a young pitcher and a young outfielder—Glenn Spencer and Augustin Dugas—Benswanger scored a cleancut decision. He handled himself like a resourceful magnate and one who had the interest of the home fans as he toiled.

With Lindstrom in the fold, the Pirates become the fastest team in baseball, one of the fleetest in the history of the game and a team loaded with color and personality. While Fred's punch will add a lot to the batting power of the team, his speed combined with that of Capt. Traynor, the two Waners, Piet, Vaughan, Suhr and Finney round out a first-string combination that cannot be matched in any club of the majors.

LINDY A PLACE HITTER

Any portrait of Lindstrom must carry strong lines that tell of a hitting power dominated by intelligence. It might be said of Freddie that he is a "place-hitter" of the slugging variety. The fact that he spanked out 15 homers last season indicated the power of his drive, but rival players will tell you that they fear him more because they know not what he will do.

Lindy is the sort of batter who can smack an "inside" ball to rightfield for extra bases if he decides to wallop the ball into this territory. A smart pitcher may have his outfield switched and he may be pitching "inside" to Fred only to see the smart hitter maneuver around to drive the rocket in the opposite direction.

SPEED, SPEED, SPEED!

Manager Gibson may decide to use Lindstrom in the cleanup position. What a lineup he would have under this plan!

Give a look!

The Buccos limped last year for want of a cleanup hitter. Traynor, good for driving in 100 runs a season normally, fell to the 70 mark. True, Lindstrom did not have a good year at the plate, but he was candidly dissatisfied because Bill Terry was appointed manager of the Giants. Fred expected the commission.

STILL IN PRIME

Fred is only 27, despite his long years of service. He scales around 170 at present with a height just shy of six feet. He does not swipe a great number of bases, yet he is very fast. He was one of the ranking thirdbasemen of the sport until he sustained a back injury. Going to the outfield he quickly blossomed into one of the best flychasers in the league.

The reaction of Pirate fans today presaged a big year for the Pirates.

Glenn Spencer, fast-ball pitcher who is lost to the Pirates, may find himself in New York. Glenn has enough to get by any place or any time, yet he could not win consistently for the Buccos. His perfect habits make him an asset when he is clicking.

Outfielder Gus Dugas is one of the most natural batters to come into the big show in years. He will play some hot tunes on the right wall of Baker Field and when his smack doesn't harmonize with this sheetiron barricade they may pass over it for homers. He's a great kid, Gus.

The Giants, in landing Outfielder George Davis, have picked up one of the sweetest young ball hawks of the league.

REMARKABLE OUTFIELD

While one group of fans will tell you of the baserunning glories of the revamped Pirates, another will cut it to let you know that the Bucco outfield, composed of Paul and Lloyd Waner and Lindstrom, is just about the greatest of the past decade in the sport.

Many years ago, the Boston Red Sox gave American League fans a rich treat as that world championship combination presented Tris Speaker, Duffy Lewis and Harry Hooper. Truly a great

ALABAMA PLACES THREE ON ALL-SOUTHERN TEAM

BILL ALEXANDER ANNOUNCES CHOICES

By W. A. (BILL) ALEXANDER

Georgia Tech Coach,
Member All-America Board of Football.

In selecting an all-star team, it is impossible to give proper consideration to many fine players who happen to be on weak teams.

Bill Alexander

A good player on a championship team is made to look even better than he really is by the fine help he receives from his teammates, while a good man on a weak team is often made to look bad by the ineffectual efforts of players alongside him.

The All-Southern team for 1932 is like all others that have been picked in the past or will be picked in the future; it is made up for the most part of players who happened to be on good teams.

The task of selecting a center is most difficult. Gracey, of Vanderbilt; Maples, of Tennessee; Lodriguez, of Tulane; Neblett, of Georgia Tech, and Porterfield, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, all are players of more than average ability.

Gracey is without a doubt the best offensive center in the country. Few men have had his ability to snap the ball perfectly and in the same instant do effective blocking on a defensive guard or center. Gracey, however, played a guard on defense. No doubt he could have played center, but his coaches assigned him as defensive guard, and he played the best game of defensive guard in the South.

As a partial solution of the center problem, Gracey is shifted to right guard on the All-Southern.

NEBLETT ELIMINATED

Neblett, of Georgia Tech, is eliminated, as no Tech man can be considered, due to the personal prejudice of the writer in favor of any of his Tech boys. The place goes to Maples, of Tennessee, on his great work in backing up the Tennessee line. The defensive strength of the unbeaten Tennessee team was the outstanding feature of this team's play, and Maples was the keystone of this defense.

There were no outstanding guards in the South this year. Gracey is assigned to right guard because he is too good to leave off any team. The left guard assignment goes to Wilson, Louisiana State University. Competent observers say that Wilson is one of the few good guards who really comes out and blocks on wide runs, and that his defensive play is more than satisfactory.

The leading tackle candidates are Grinus, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and Crawford, of Duke. In his sophomore year, Crawford played end, but Coach Wade evidently found the place for him this year when he moved him to tackle. Crawford is rated All-Southern by every one who has seen him play.

Grinus is more than a good tackle. He is an inspired leader. As captain of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute team he set an example that brought his team through the season with a wonderful record.

Van Rayburn, of Tennessee, is easily the leading candidate for end in the South. This experienced senior played practically perfect ball the entire season. The other end post goes to Ariail, of Auburn, on account of his size and durability. Six feet tall and 190 pounds in weight, this boy can play 60 minutes in game after game without losing his effectiveness.

ZIMMERMAN PRAISED

Zimmerman, of Tulane, Hitchcock, of Auburn, Roberts, of Vanderbilt, and Feathers, of Tennessee, were four of the finest halfbacks ever produced in this section. Zimmerman and Hitchcock can do everything—run, pass, kick, block and tackle. In addition, they both are excellent defenders against forward passes. Zimmerman made a great team out of what would have been an ordinary team. Hitchcock has brought Auburn through game after game that they would probably have lost or tied. The two halfback jobs go to Zimmerman and Hitchcock.

Roberts is given the quarterback post. Roberts is the hardest running back of the year, and means too much as an offensive threat to leave off any team.

Brackett, of Tennessee, and Holley, of Alabama, were two sweet quarterbacks. In an ordinary year one or the other would have been certain to have made every all-star selections.

For fullback, John Cain, of Alabama, is selected. This fellow is not the biggest fullback in the South, but no man could block harder or do better driving when his team needed a couple of yards. In addition, Cain is an excellent punter and passer.

Waddell Turns Thoughts to Business Cares

MISS MARY KERR — ROBERT N. (BOB) WADDELL

Having resigned his job as head coach of the Carnegie Tech football team, Bob Waddell has plunged into his work as the head of an insurance agency with a vim to make up for lost time. He is seen above in a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture at work in his office with his secretary. Howard Harpster is the popular choice to succeed him at Tech. Waddell plans to continue his interest in football and may lend a hand in the affairs of the Tartans on occasion. He has been with Tech since 1920.

Tod Morgan vs. Al Lewis, 6 rounds, Seattle.

Doc Snell vs. Tommy Santos, 6 rounds, Portland, Ore.

Young Tommy vs. Baby Casanova, 10 rounds, Los Angeles.

Pete Laratonda vs. Georgie Fletcher, 10 rounds, and Harry Terry vs. Joe Gonzales and Harry Leibenson vs. Ralph Farr, 6 rounds each, New York.

They're staging another local talent show at the Arena, on the North Side, tonight, consisting of 10 of those action four-rounders, with Eddie Zivic, of Lawrenceville, meeting U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, in the main event. Zivic is one of the most promising of the younger local boxers, and Carpentier is a veteran who figures to test him to the limit.

The other bouts:

Johnny Durso vs. George Schlee.
Fritzie Zivic vs. Bill Criggan.
Johnny Woods vs. Shorty Washko.
Al Sunseri vs. Nick Caruso.
Clair Repole vs. Sammy Burns.
Billy Nichy vs. Jack Snyder.
Sammy Paris vs. Young Lowstetter.
Harry Sadowsky vs. K. O. Dougherty.
Curley Klaas vs. Chuck Mullins.

Between Rounds

Benny McArthur, who has beaten Pee Wee Jarrell in both Grand Rapids and Saginaw, Mich., would like to oppose him again here. His brother, Buddy McArthur, now is fighting as a heavyweight, and a stablemate, Jimmy Reilly, is angling for bouts here.

Billy Townsend and Bep Van Klaveren, of Holland, box the 8-round semi-final to the Jimmy McLarnin-Sammy Fuller bout in New York's Madison Square Garden, Friday night.

Jackie Wilson, local Negro bantamweight speedster, meets Ross Fields, of Cleveland, a fourth time in the main bout of a show in the Castle Bowl at New Castle next Monday night. He drew with Fields at McKeesport, lost to him at the Moose Temple, and defeated him at Motor Square Garden.

Wilson's stablemate, Billy Holt, the welter, may appear on the same card with Wilson. His record for this year includes two victories over Davy Grove, wins over Tiger Joe Randall, Ray Lyle, Billy Rose, Frankie Chatterton and knockouts over Marty McHale and Harry (Kid) Wallace, while he has lost only to Jimmy Belmont and Jack King, and drawn with Joey Speigal.

The Maxie Strub-Frankie Bojarski show at Erie next Monday night will be a benefit to pay off the deficit of the Erie baseball team of the Central League for the past season.

Ray Eberle, the announcer, is getting so famous that he even has a boxer named after him. The lad is an amateur and will be a principal in one of the bouts on Joe Sorg's benefit card for the needy children of South Heights tomorrow night. Others who will appear include Billy Muller, Jimmy Bradley, Emil Patick and Johnny Larick.

Councilman Harry Little is chairman of the committee in charge of the amateur boxing show to be held by the Allegheny Elks in their hall next Monday night for the needy of the community.

Jack December boxes Morrie Sherman at Mt. Clemens, Mich., tomorrow night.

Vidal Gregorio and Bobby Dechter box the 8-round windup of a show at the Broadway Club in Philadelphia Thursday night. Henry Taylor and Vince Guidici are in the semi-final.

Ray Foutts, manager of Ted Yarosz, says he was a victim of circumstances in the mess which brought about the suspension of Yarosz by the N. B. A. for failure to go through with his match with Paulie Walker in Detroit last Friday night. He says he notified Scotty Monteith, the promoter, on Monday that Yarosz was suffering from a heavy cold and could not train properly and it might be necessary to call off the match. The promoter left town and attended the big boxing show in Cleveland on Tuesday and did not return until Thursday, and Foutts found himself holding the bag with the boxing commission. Ted didn't even get expenses and will have to fight in Detroit before the ban is lifted. Meanwhile he has shaken off his cold and feels first-rate again as he prepares to box his return bout with Jack King at the Arena on Friday night.

Billy Angelo meets Billy Roederer at the Cambria Club in Philadelphia, Friday night, with Art Feeser and Johnny Duca in the semi-final.

A combined boxing and wrestling show is slated in Columbus tomorrow night for the benefit of a Christmas fund. Lou Bloom and Al Gahn are the featured boxers. Battling Elk meets Jim Beckholt in an 8-rounder and Ali Pugg Pugg and Freddie Hill are in a 6-rounder.

Skeeter, Dodger Dispute Unsettled

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—The dispute between Jersey City, of the International League, and Brooklyn, of the National, which operated the Jersey City club last year as a "farm" and then failed to exercise an option to buy, appeared far from solution today.

International League directors met with Sam Colacurcio, Jersey City owner, to discuss the situation last night, but after a five-hour session reported no decision had been reached. Another meeting will be held today.

FORMER BOXER SHOT

CHICAGO, Dec. 13. — (AP.) — Frankie Schaeffer, 30, former lightweight boxer, was found shot to death last night in a tailor shop operated by Fred Rowan, Negro. Police described Rowan as a bootlegger.

'NOW IT CAN BE TOLD'

Hank O'Day is boss on the diamond—and don't you forget it.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Hank O'Day, one of sport's most striking characters, has "it," "that" or any other abbreviated thing that stands for a positive, throbbing personality.

THREE SCORE YEARS AND TEN leave Hank as forceful and colorful as he was in the days of his youth. Although he no longer plays an active role in officiating, O'Day serves as an umpire staff supervisor under John Heydler, president of the National League. And the oldtimers always are glad to see him come into a ball park.

Hank O'Day

George Gibson, Pirate pilot, has had many a run-in with Hankus Pankus. Gibraltar is no firmer than Hank when he sets his mind to a task or decision, and Gibraltar cannot give voice to the stirring things that flow from O'Day.

Hank was "sitting in" on a young official while the Buccos fought it out with the Cubs in that last series in Chicago. The flag at stake, the spirit of battle was hot and Gibson naturally wanted a 50-50 break from the men in blue.

The arbiter in question is one of the best young umpires in baseball, yet he seems to be a bit too conscientious. Be that as it may, the athletes like to work with him because he is competent, honest and a great hustler.

UMP PULLS NEW ONE

It fell to the youngster's lot to give a decision which brought an uprising in the Pittsburgh dugout. Never choice in his words, Manager Gibson, when he dashed onto the field, berated the official in a forceful manner. Many an umpire would have chased Gibson after getting the same amount of abuse. Bill Klem or Hank O'Day, for example.

When he ended his harrangue, Gibson was almost toppled by the kick-back. Said the young official:

"You are all wrong, Mr. Gibson, and, if you think I am going to stand such abuse, you're wrong again. I will give up this job rather than listen to such stuff, so don't be surprised if I am gone in a couple of days."

Gibby folded up entirely under this new attack. When he came onto the field the next day, O'Day was still around. Hank was seated in a box not far from the Pittsburgh dugout. He and Gibson are warm friends, and Gibby approached him, saying:

HIS NAME WASN'T O'DAY

"Hank, I have seen many unusual things in baseball, but young So and So, the umpire, cooled me off yesterday."

O'Day asked:

"What happened?"

Gibby replied:

"I had a run-in with him and he threatens to quit owing to the things I said to him. If he does, it will be the first time an umpire ever has been run out by a player."

The veteran Hank, a real fighting patriarch, flushed as he shouted back at Gibson:

"Well, I'll tell you one thing—you or any other player couldn't run me out of there if I was working!"

Gibson broke into a knowing smile. As he left he mused:

"You can say that again, Hank."

And then, as an after-thought:

"But you've chased me quite a few times."

W. VA. BOOKS MARQUETTE

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Marquette has been added to the West Virginia University 1933 football schedule. The game will be played in Morgantown November 4, H. A. Stansbury, director of athletics, announced at the eighteenth annual varsity dinner last night.

Coach Earle (Greasy) Neale, who was expected to announce the 1933 gridiron captain, said no leader would be selected until just prior to the first game next fall, inasmuch as no junior played regularly this season.

Cobb Loses Close Verdict to Godfrey

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—George Godfrey, 258-pound Lieperville, Pa., Negro, took a 10-round decision by a narrow margin over Walter Cobb, of New York in the final bout of a boxing card last night.

Their clash followed a peculiar mixup in a 10-round semi-windup fight in which Tony Galento, Orange, N. J., heavyweight, was disqualified for fouling Jack Gagnon, Boston battler, and both purses were held up pending a boxing commission hearing.

The decision to hold up the purses of Galento and Gagnon was announced by Boxing Commissioner Robert Nelson after he said referee Frank Knarsborough had not abided by the five-minute rest rule for a fouled fighter when he stopped the fight in the fourth session.

BUTLER AT VANITIES

The Goldenson Vanities will be out to make it two straight Thursday night when they play the Butler Ads at the South Side Market House. The Vanities defeated the Salem Penzips at the Market House last Thursday.

BAN ON BABE TO STAND

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, noted girl athlete of Dallas, Tex., today was declared suspended from further amateur competition by the registration committee of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union following an investigation into her alleged indorsement of an automobile for advertising purposes.

Lawrence Di Benedetto, head of the registration committee and secretary of the Southern A. A. U., who conducted the inquiry at the instance of National A. A. U. officials, said the suspension would remain in effect until Miss Didrikson had produced the original or a photostatic copy of a purported release authorizing the advertisement, for examination of his committee. He said the committee had been unable to procure the original release or a copy from the advertising agents.

Miss Didrikson, who has been called world champion of women's athletics as a result of victories in Olympic and other competition in varied branches of sport, recently denied she had authorized the use of her photograph and indorsement in connection with an automobile advertisement which came to the attention of the National A. A. U.

Lovewell Reported New Geneva Coach

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Dec. 13.—A report in circulation here today that Don Lovewell, former assistant coach, has been named head coach of the Geneva College football team, led to the belief that it was a certainty that Howard Harpster, head coach the past three seasons, has been assured the vacant head coachship at Carnegie Tech, although no announcement has been made that he will succeed to the position resigned by Bob Waddell.

An attractive program of pre-season games features the scholastic basketball schedule arranged for W. P. I. A. L. members throughout Western Pennsylvania tonight.

The headliners are scheduled at Homestead and Braddock where the home quintets face tough opposition.

Homestead, coached by Bill Campbell, will be out to obtain revenge for the only two defeats it suffered during the regular season last winter when it opposes Johnny Reed's Scott High passers. Scott defeated Homestead twice in pre-season games in 1931.

The Braddock quintet, champion of the W. P. I. A. L., clashes with an old antagonist in Preston Ditty's Monessen floor machine at Braddock. This is the first of three games carded for the Monessen floormen this week. Friday Canonsburg is met at Monessen, while Saturday finds the Greyhounds in action against Homestead at Homestead.

The Langley High School passers, members of Section II in the City League, will invade Sewickley to oppose that high school in a non-league encounter.

Two Allegheny Valley rivals come together at Vandergrift when New Kensington and Vandergrift lock horns. Carl Glock is the Ken High coach, while Ted Rosenzweig is the mentor at Vandergrift.

School Notes

Stowe Township High has October 21 and 28 open on its 1933 football schedule for games at home or abroad. Any school interested in filling these dates are asked to call or write Stowe Township High School.

The loss of Cafferty and Rush to the Scottdale High School basketball squad is a blow to Coach Mose Lantz as both boys were expected to win regular berths. As a result of their absence, Lantz now has Zearley as the only veteran back for competition in Section X.

Paul Fagler, one of South Union's dependables, is lost for the basketball season as a result of a knee injury suffered in football. South Union, coached by Howard McKee, opens its season with Dunbar Township tomorrow night.

Having arranged three games with members of the Class AA group, Uniontown High School officials have started a movement to have the Fayette County school enrolled as a member of the double A division. Clairton, McKeesport and Washington already have been scheduled for Coach Everhart's machine next fall.

Dick Williams, coach at Har-Brack, faces a real task this season in building a winning basketball quintet. Har-Brack lost four veterans as a result of graduation. Co-Captains Paul Krumenacker and Paul Mechling and Bobby Burns and Dick Braun receiving their diplomas last spring. Francis Falise and Marlin Clark, who were expected to join this year's squad, have moved to Tarentum.

Norwin, coached by Jack Clawson, has displayed a lot of promise in its first two games, defeating Vandergrift, 32-18, and Scottdale, 39-25. Norwin is entered in Section XI.

Springdale and Pitcairn are two of the class B schools advanced to class A for the 1933 football campaign. Springdale, coached by Herb Ripper, has not been defeated or tied in class B in two straight years.

U. S. NETTERS WIN

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 13.—Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill are Victoria doubles tennis champions today. Yesterday they defeated Johnny Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, 10-8, 6-4, 7-5 in the final match.

DIXIE LEAGUE KEEPS RULE

WINTER PARK, Fla., Dec. 13.—(AP.)—The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association has rejected a recommendation of its resolution committee that the rule which limits athletic participation to a five-year period be increased to seven years.

Under the five-year rule a student may play one freshman and three varsity years on athletic teams, providing the playing period is limited to five years from the time of his first matriculation.

The recommendation was defeated last night by a close vote.

Despite his request that he be not considered for renomination, the association re-elected J. W. Provine, Mississippi College, as president. Dr. Provine has been president of the group for 11 years.

N. Y. Rangers Sell Voss to Detroit

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—The New York Rangers have announced the sale of Carl Voss, recruit center, to the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

Voss came up to the Rangers this year from Buffalo of the International League, where he was leading scorer of the minor circuit last year.

TOUGH ROAD AHEAD FOR CUE CHAMP

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—The road that Ralph Greenleaf must travel to retain his national pocket billiard championship grows much tougher from now on.

The dapper New Yorker has hung up four successive victories in the current championship tournament, but his five remaining matches all will pit him against more strenuous opposition than he so far has been forced to overcome.

Behind him were conquests over James Mills, of San Jose, Cal.; Walter Franklin, of Kansas City; Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, N. Y., and George Kelly, of Philadelphia. Ahead of him were battles with Jimmy Caras, of Wilmington, Del.; Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland; Pasquale Natalie, of Chicago; Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, and Benny Allen, of Kansas City.

Of these, Caras, Rudolph and Natalie all were unbeaten so far in the tournament, Caras sharing the lead with the champion with four successive victories, and Rudolph and Natalie a step behind with three triumphs in a row. Ponzi had lost one game and won two, and Allen had split even in four tests. To one or more of these five stellar performers Greenleaf may be forced to bow.

The champion was given a rest today while Mills played Ponzi and Natalie faced Kelly in afternoon matches, and Rudolph and Franklin prepared for their night engagement.

Greenleaf's fourth victim, Kelly bowed to the champion's wizardry last night, 125 to 53 in 12 innings with Greenleaf running 50 in his first turn at the table. Caras, earlier in the day, trounced Franklin, 125 to 6 in 12 innings, and clicking off one cluster of 65 in process. Taberski won the other match on yesterday's program, beating Mills, 125 to 54 in 10 innings.

Winston Stopped By Ernie Schaaf

BOSTON, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Ernie Schaaf has shattered his long losing streak and gained the New England heavyweight championship.

With Champion Jack Sharkey in his corner, Ernie last night knocked out Unknown Winston, Hartford Negro, in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round bout. Winston previously had beaten Schaaf.

TUNNEY FIGHTS FOR CIVIC PRIDE

GENE AVENGES SLUR ON HIS NEW YORK

SYNOPSIS

Thus far the author has traced his career from scrappy school days along the lower Hudson River front to stirring nights as a club fighter in the Sharkey, Fairmont and Polo A. C.'s. At 18, the fans judge him "fast, clever, but with no punch." Meanwhile he works as a $17-a-week ship company rate clerk. While playing basketball, in March, 1917, Gene injures his left elbow . . . War comes in April and, in May, Gene is rejected because of that injury. Terribly disappointed, he seeks special medical aid, becomes a life saver at a New Jersey shore resort for the summer, knocks out two in club bouts, and gets a job that winter checking airplane parts on a Jersey City pier. A German physician treats Gene's arm from January to June, cures it, and he joins the United States Marines.

CHAPTER VIII.

By GENE TUNNEY
Retired Heavyweight Champion

The night before I left for Parris Island for recruit training I went over to Jack Jennings' Armory A. C. in Jersey City to give my arm a real try-out. Doc Bagley, who later became my manager, got me the match. Danny Lynch, whom I was to meet, did not show up at the club, so they substituted another opponent, who, upon being hit a good stiff left, decided discretion was the better part of valor and, accordingly, permitted himself to be counted out.

Gene Tunney

I was paid the grand sum of $30 for this match, which was collected by Doc Bagley in the form of a $20 and a $10 bill. Doc handed me the $20 and held the $10 in his left hand while, with the right, he industriously searched his pocket for change, saying:

"I always take 30 per cent from my boys. Even Willie Jackson, who boxes the star bout tonight, cuts me in for 30 per cent. But since you are going to war tomorrow I will take only 25 per cent. Have you any change?"

BAGLEY IS GENEROUS

I replied:

"No, I am sorry I haven't."

Doc said:

"How are we going to break this $10 bill?"

"Well," I said, "keep it all, Doc."

What did I care?

"Easy come, easy go."

Two days later I was at Parris Island.

It was the custom for new recruits to remain in a segregated section of the training camp, called the applicants' camp, until their papers came down from the various recruiting offices in different cities of the country. Then they would receive the final and more thorough examination. These prospective recruits had no duties to perform. They actually were not part of the Marine Corps and therefore could not be put at any kind of work. To pass the time they played baseball, wrestled or boxed, clad only in pajamas.

While looking at some of the boxing matches on the second day after arrival, a stocky, red-headed fellow jumped into the circle after two men had finished, and, picking up a pair of gloves which he began tying on his hands, yelled in a Tennessee drawl:

"Is there any wise guy from New York here who would like to try some of this?"

Nobody stepped forward. He wheeled around once or twice with a sneer on his face, which proclaimed his contempt for all New Yorkers.

TAKES UP CHALLENGE

This trip to Parris Island was the first time I had ever been out of the city of New York with the exception of trips to New Jersey and Long Island shores. I felt constantly the responsibility of being a New Yorker. I was proud of it, and, with that consciousness, felt that, since no other New Yorker was present (or at least none who felt justified in questioning the superiority of this Tennesseean) it was up to me.

I stepped into the circle of white-pajamaed head-shaven, wild-looking recruits, and, picking up the pair of gloves that were on the sand, said:

"I will try some of it for a few minutes."

On seeing me and looking me over with an appraising eye, the red-headed Tennesseean tightened his lips in hungry expectation.

He rushed wildly at me, swinging from every angle. The first rush I attempted to sidestep, but, the sand being heavy, I was unable to untrack myself, and received a wild left swing on the top of the head. I quickly decided that the best way to handle this excited fellow was with a couple of good straight lefts just as he started swinging. And, with his next rush, instead of trying to sidestep, I leaned forward with a long straight left that caught him right on the nose, causing his head to strike his shoulder-blades. He attempted another rush and ran into the same thing.

WHIPS 'WILD MAN'

After being foiled in his several attempts, the wild man from Tennessee was a pathetic-looking figure. I realized that he knew nothing about boxing. He had only bluff and false courage to lean on. I did not take advantage of him, however. It is safe to say that his opinion of New Yorkers was changed.

After passing my final examination for enlistment, and, being sent to the maneuver grounds for training, I discovered that boxing was a compulsory part of the training-camp activities. I had to go through the routine of punches the same as the boys from the mud flats of Mississippi and the farms of the Dakotas. The manual of boxing was as important as the manual of arms at Parris Island.

I had a fair reputation in my own battalion when the recruit training was finished. Unfortunately, I did not go overseas with my own company. I was transferred to another, and, 24 hours later, I found myself aboard a troop transport without an acquaintance or friend. This was my first consciousness of real loneliness.

Shortly after we got ashore in Brest and had our tents raised in the mud of Pontanazin Barracks, one of the huskier of the company, for some reason or other, picked a fight with me. The last fist fight I had had was when I was 14. All my adolescent years were spent constantly with boys and men, but never with any serious friction. When I said to this bellicose fellow:

"What are you doing—looking for trouble?"

It never occurred to me to be on my guard. Before I had finished my question, his blow had landed and I slid off the side of the road into a mud ditch.

ANOTHER ARMY BRAWL

Not having gone off my feet, I climbed out just as fast as the mud would permit. I hit him with the hand that was nearest him. Though I was clothed in heavy underwear, O. D. shirt, heavy blouse and poncho (the inevitable rain was falling), it did not noticeably stop the force of the left hook, for when it bounced off his chin he bounced on the muddy road where he lay, refusing to get up until a gunnery sergeant came along to protect him.

Some months later, as I was attending a boxing match at a Y. M. C. A. hut in Romorantin, where we had been stationed on guard duty, a match was put on between a bogus Kid McCoy and a certain Joe Bedelli for the middleweight championship of the camp. For reasons best known to himself, the phony Kid did not show up. The place was jammed with aviators, infantrymen and motor mechanics. The referee, Capt. Greene, announced from the ring that "McCoy" had defaulted the championship. He asked if anyone questioned Bedelli's right to the championship of the camp. There were 10,000 men stationed in Romorantin, and as many crowded into the hut as it would hold. Nobody made a dissenting noise. Capt. Greene then bestowed upon Bedelli the middleweight championship and announced Bedelli would box anyone in the place no matter what his weight might be. Nobody stepped forward.

WHIPS CHAMPION

The gunnery sergeant, who knew all about my left hook, was sitting in our small group of marines and began urging me to go into the ring. When I was promised by him that as a reward I would not have to do guard duty the next day if I boxed this fellow, I jumped to my feet.

When I got into the ring Bedelli insisted that I strip to the waist, which I did in the presence of the eager and impatient audience of officers and soldiers. I had hob-nailed boots on. The ring was pitched on the floor with some canvas drawn across it. It was not long before Bedelli and I were under way.

I saw, after three or four moves, that he was not skillful. In the second round, he whispered to me:

"Don't hit me so hard."

He refused to box a third round.

MATCHED FOR TITLE

The next day, the whole camp was buzzing with the talk of the marine who evidently knew something about fighting. That afternoon the director of the Y. M. C. A., came down to see my company commander to find out if he would not match me with the heavyweight champion of the camp. The company commander, Captain Barthe, accepted the match. In advising me of what he had done, he told me that I was detailed to appear at the Y. M. C. A. hut to meet Hank Wuerhl for the heavyweight championship of the post.

Tunney will describe tomorrow how he won the heavyweight crown of his camp of U. S. Marines in France after all but losing to Hank Wuerhl in a slugging duel—Gene presents his conception of courage; pays tribute to Tommy Loughran.

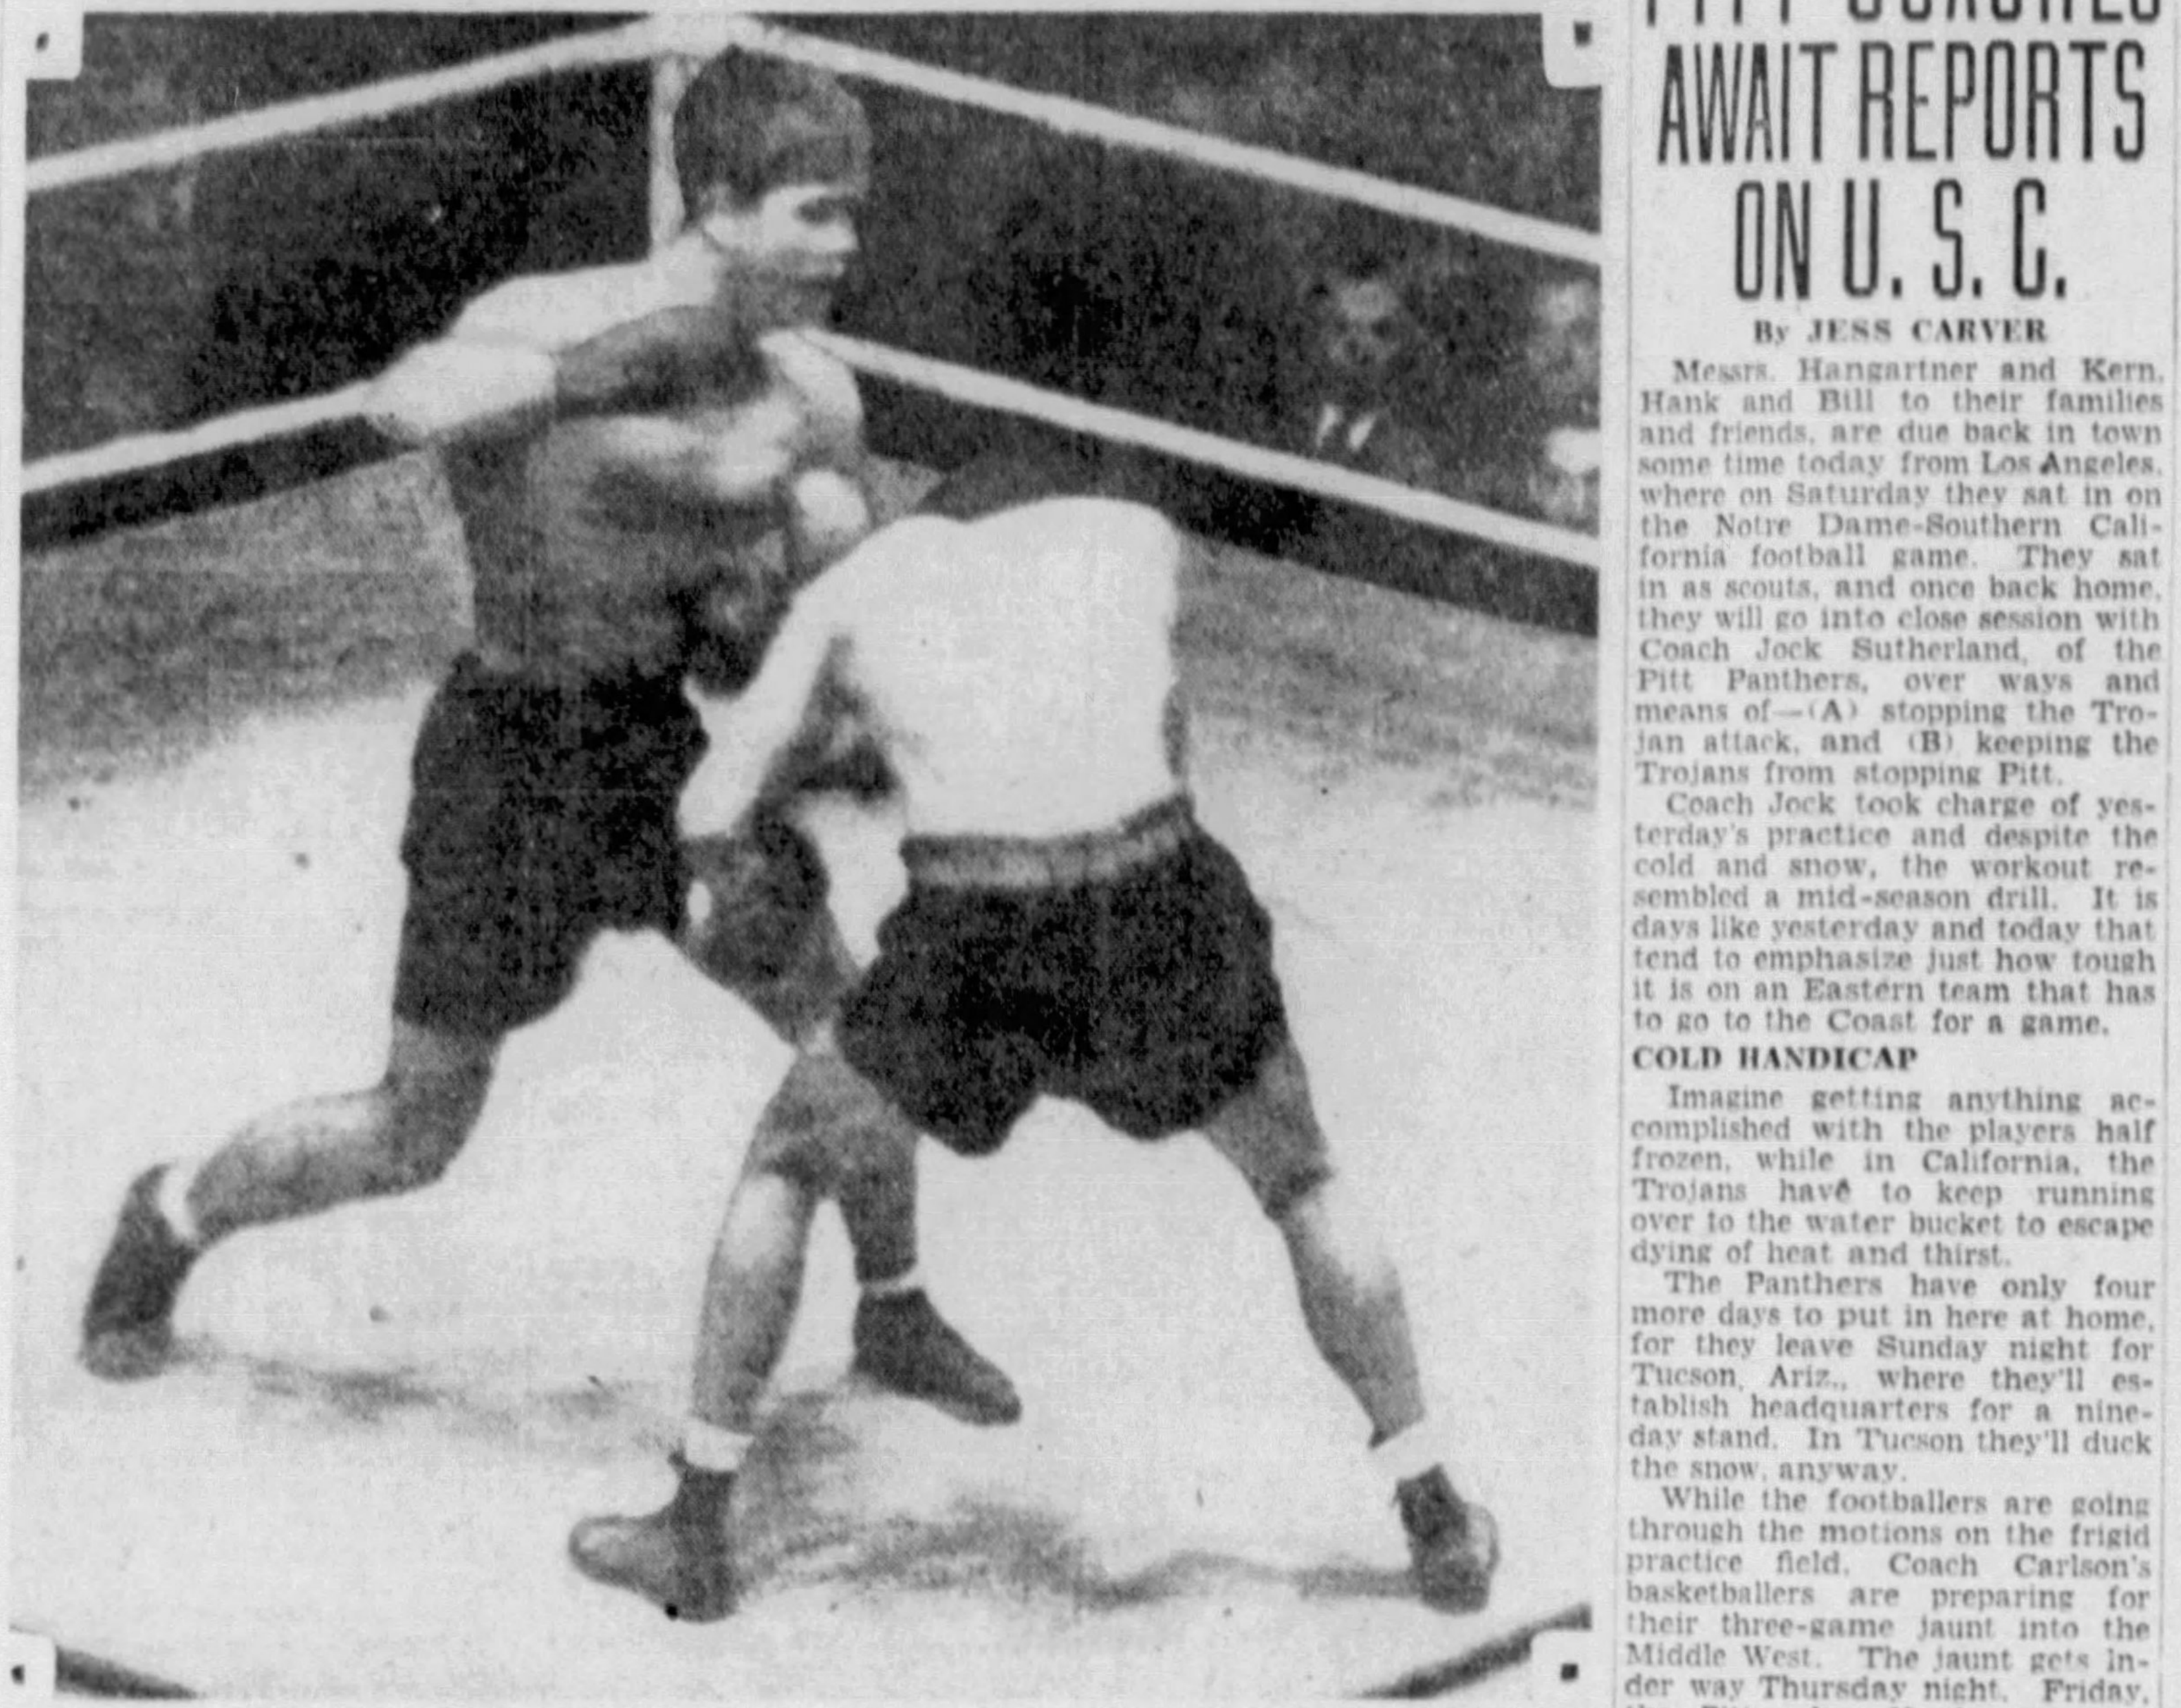
Herrera and Falco in Thriller



TONY FALCO TONY HERRERA

Philadelphia and Chicago lightweight boxers, who put up a great battle in the windup at Motor Square Garden last night. Falco won five of the first six rounds, but Herrera came on to win the decision. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture shows action in the final round.

FOUR AMATEURS K. O. VICTORS

Preliminaries in all classes except middleweight and heavyweight were disposed of in the Greater Pittsburgh amateur boxing tournament at McKeesport last night. The milling will continue on Thursday night, when all remaining bouts will be disposed of.

Three technical knockouts and one of the clean cut variety marked last night's program. The quickest kayo was scored by Al Harge, of the Aliquippa A. C., who stopped Pete Sully, of Lawrenceville, in the first round. The summary:

112-POUND CLASS

Herman Lowstetter, McKeesport A. C., defeated Leonard Patton, Patton A. C., in 3 rounds; Young Nulner, Braddock Library A. C., defeated Buster Lowstetter, McKeesport A. C., in 3 rounds; Charles Knapper, Superior A. C., defeated Alex Lang, unattached, in 3 rounds; Frank Slack, McKees Rocks, defeated Young Jacky, unattached, in 3 rounds.

118-POUND CLASS

Walter Dalke, Valley Club, Turtle Creek, won by a technical knockout over William Chapman, Braddock Library A. C., in the first round.

126-POUND CLASS

George Kriz, Lawrenceville A. C., defeated John Radacy, Brownsville, Pa., in 3 rounds; Wilfred Black, McKeesport A. C., defeated Dave Harge, Aliquippa A. C., in 3 rounds; Robert Manns, Billick A. C., defeated George Saltis, unattached, in 3 rounds.

135-POUND CLASS

GILBERT, MILLS WIN

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 13.—Johnny Gilbert and Hank Mills, rivals for the jockey championship this year, both scored victories yesterday. Mills won the fifth race here yesterday to raise his total to 187, three less than Gilbert, who also scored a victory.

MILLER OUT FOR YEAR

Bill Miller, star forward of the Taylor Allderdice basketball team, is lost for the season as a result of an injury suffered in practice. Coach Irwin had figured Miller a certain regular.

PIRATES GET LINDSTROM

trio, but would you trade the Waners and Lindy for the old-time combination?

The quality of speed appears to give the edge to the new Bucco triumvirate. Closer perhaps to the new alignment was the Pirate ball hawks of 1926, Scoops Carey, Hazen Cuyler and Paul Waner, although Brother Paul at that time was just a novice in the art of major league play.

Lindstrom shaped up as one of the greatest outfielders of the game as soon as he deserted the infield for pasture duty. He probably will be switched to the left pasture in the Pirates' lineup as nobody can improve much on Lloyd Waner's play. Lindy plays rightfield like a star, as well as center, but the older of the Waner boys can play only the one position skillfully so Paul will remain in right.

And, as has been pointed out, Lindstrom will be valuable in the event of any infield emergency. Fred's back injury forced him to the garden, but he is still able to play the hot corner with great facility. And should he have to be called into the first defense, the Pirates could call upon Adam Comorosky or Forrest Jensen, two brilliant flychasers.

PITT COACHES AWAIT REPORTS ON U. S. C.

By JESS CARVER

Messrs. Hangartner and Kern, Hank and Bill to their families and friends, are due back in town some time today from Los Angeles, where on Saturday they sat in on the Notre Dame-Southern California football game. They sat in as scouts, and once back home, they will go into close session with Coach Jock Sutherland, of the Pitt Panthers, over ways and means of—(A) stopping the Trojan attack, and (B) keeping the Trojans from stopping Pitt.

Coach Jock took charge of yesterday's practice and despite the cold and snow, the workout resembled a mid-season drill. It is days like yesterday and today that tend to emphasize just how tough it is on an Eastern team that has to go to the Coast for a game.

COLD HANDICAP

Imagine getting anything accomplished with the players half frozen, while in California, the Trojans have to keep running over to the water bucket to escape dying of heat and thirst.

The Panthers have only four more days to put in here at home, for they leave Sunday night for Tucson, Ariz., where they'll establish headquarters for a nine-day stand. In Tucson they'll duck the snow, anyway.

While the footballers are going through the motions on the frigid practice field, Coach Carlson's basketballers are preparing for their three-game jaunt into the Middle West. The jaunt gets under way Thursday night. Friday, the Pitts play Northwestern at Evanston. On Saturday, they'll be up in the beer country, facing Minnesota at Minneapolis and on Monday, they tackle Butler at Indianapolis.

DUKES RESUME DRILLS

Basketball workouts were resumed yesterday at Duquesne, where Chick Davies was forced to call a halt last week when most of his varsity squad was stricken with the flu. Chick even suffered a mild attack himself.

Thursday evening, in McCreery's dining room, the annual Duquesne University football banquet will be held. The varsity performers who won letters this fall will be presented their awards. Talks will be given by Coach Elmer Layden, the Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of the University, and others.

John D. Holohan, graduate manager of athletics, stepped to the forum yesterday with the announcement that the Dukes would meet Wash-Jeff again next year after all, at Washington on November 4. The game will be the Presidents' Homecoming attraction.

The Tipoff

Following is the poem, composed for and read at the grid officials' banquet last night at the K. A. C. by Jim Marks, the Sage of Kiski. For want of a better name, I'll call it "The Coach's Lament."

In troubled dreams I see it all,
The touchdown that we should have made;
That awful season in review,
Stark tragedy in grim parade.

The fumbled punt that lost a game
That by all rights we should have won;
And that boy had the nerve to claim
He lost a football in the sun.

The pass that should have been thrown deep
Was intercepted in the flat,
But I can't give a fathead brains
(His old man had a crack at that.)

A blocked punt makes my stomach weak,
I'm doing spinners in my sleep;
A back that ought to be a streak
Is mired in mud six inches deep.

Our triple threat is down and out,
Warm up that famous falling star;
Some wild alumnus picked him out,
He couldn't make the D. A. R.

Fourth down and three to go to win,
I wonder what that kid will do;
Let's all be honest for a change,
I don't know what to do. Do you?

They're clicking now! See that kid run!
I dream I hear a mighty cheer;
When one of Okey's bugle corps
Blows that whistle in my ear.

At last that white wing called one right,
It's time for peace and Xmas cheer;
Familiar cries alarm the night,
I see old Santa drawing near.

The only friend that I have left—

GRID OFFICIALS HOLD FETE

Members of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Eastern Intercollegiate Football Officials' Association, today are looking back on another highly successful banquet. The boys gathered last night at the Keystone A. C., where a swell meal was served them in the green room and a not-too-long program of speeches was offered.

A. Warren McMillan, chairman of the banquet committee, introduced Dex Very, the retiring president, who in turn presented W. H. (Red) Friesell, the president-elect. J. L. Marks, guest speaker; Red Gannon, Dan Daugherty, Bob Cadigan, Judge John P. Egan, Henry Blum, Cal Bolster and J. M. (Ducky) Holmes responded to toasts.

Blum, a prominent A. A. U. official, announced that he had cast his Sullivan Award vote in favor of Eddie Tolan, crack Negro sprinter.

Among those present were W. H. Friesell, Jr., Dex Very, A. W. McMillan, Earl Cavanaugh, Al Slack, Cal Bolster, Judge John Egan, Bill Evans, Henry Blum, L. J. McGlinchey, Jack Shea, Carl Rebele, Ducky Holmes, Bob Cadigan, Joe Gannon, Dan Daugherty, Harry Robb, Russ Goodwin, Charley Schott, Senator Charley Hodges, of West Virginia, and Beggs Snyder and Leo Mackey.

Forbes

French Hand In Britain's Blundering?

By B. C. FORBES

"THE BORROWER is servant to the lender."

Britain and France act as if the reverse of that Biblical injunction were true. They are presuming to dictate regarding their debts to us.

Mr. Forbes

British officials have exhibited lamentable ignorance of sentiment here, of conditions here, of governmental processes here. They should have known that no government official had the slightest authority to agree to the surprising "demands" stipulated by Britain incidental to making a payment-that-isn't-a-payment on the fifteenth. They should have known that only Congress could abrogate the existing agreement and substitute a new or modified one.

Palpably, the British have blundered. Their extraordinary attitude is alienating the quite widespread sympathy formerly entertained here for fresh leniency to them.

Far better would it have been for Britain if she had expressed cordial appreciation of favors already received, announced unequivocally that she would pay, any emphasized here eagerness to have the whole question of international allied debts reconsidered.

One cannot resist suspecting that Britain's un-British diplomacy has been instigated by the artful French.

It is inconceivable that either Britain or France will not pay. It is inconceivable that the furor will not promptly die down. It is inconceivable that the United States government will not afford debtors full opportunity to present their case.

And it is entirely conceivable that modifications will be effected.

Meanwhile, let us turn our attention into more fruitful directions.

WHAT SUBJECT, national or international, occupies most space in leading New York daily newspapers these days, think you?

War debts? No. Congress? No. President-elect Roosevelt's activities? No. A sensational murder? No. The parlous state of the city's finances? No.

Most space, taking one day with another, is devoted to raising funds for the needy. The most generous publicity is freely accorded Harvey D. Gibson and his co-workers who are collecting $15,000,000 for unemployed relief.

In short, metropolitan newspapers set an admirable example to the rest of the country.

MARK TWAIN'S wheeze that everybody talked endlessly about the weather but that nobody did anything about it is applicable to "farm relief."

Every politician and almost everybody else spouts copiously about it, but nothing even remotely effective is done. The latest proposed panacea, embodying a fat county for every bushel of wheat and pound of cotton sold for domestic consumption, provided the grower abides by official orders stipulating how much acreage he may plant, sounds delightfully plausible and, of course, alluring to growers, but such grandiloquent schemes need the most exhaustive scrutiny.

Usually they prove sadly abortive. By now, most farmers must be beginning to realize or suspect this.

WALL STREET expects to see Bernard M. Baruch in Roosevelt's cabinet.

THE COUNTRY will not prove able to bury all its troubles in beer. So don't expect miracles.

DROPPING OF war debt agitation may help both securities and sterling.

STERILE TRADE IDEAS BLAMED FOR SLUMP

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The fundamental blunder in management, which has upset the equilibrium of the world, consisted of reliance on economic assumptions and beliefs which had become outmoded.

In their feverish desire to be hard boiled and practical, men of affairs proved themselves genuinely impractical. They built business practices on the foundations of inadequate theory.

Mr. Rukeyser

The ghastly mistake lay in applying last century's economic philosophy to conditions that had become immensely altered by a new productive technology, including labor saving machinery. In a word, practitioners of the world of finance and barter sought to apply the doctrines of an economy of scarcity to the new economy of surpluses.

PHILOSOPHER TO LEAD

The new Moses who will lead us out of the economic wilderness must be a philosopher rather than a mere practical man.

Something like the foregoing considerations actuated President-elect Roosevelt in formulating the platform of the "new deal."

Instead of being engulfed too much in the prevailing gloom, analytical persons should recognize the immense promise of the new productive efficiency.

As one observer has suggested:

"The economists of tomorrow must create the new patterns for an industrial society in which poverty, hardship and want will be eliminated through more effective exploitation of the available and growing machine industryland technology."

In stating the problem in affirmative terms, Lawrence K. Frank, New York, in the Political Science Quarterly, suggests the basis for genuine long term bullishness.

Mr. Frank thinks that we are on the verge of a condition in which the average man will not have to worry so much about making a living:

"Since man has faced a precarious and ambiguous world from the beginning of his history, threatened always with hunger if not starvation, all his thinking and conduct has been of necessity acquisitive. Today he is in sight of a social life in which, for the first time, plenty will replace scarcity. There will be neither necessity for nor utility in the fiercely competitive patterns he has so long followed. His preoccupation with making a living will flag with the collapse of the older institutional arrangements. Economic activity bids fair to lose its long dominant position in human life, as engineering replaces the uncertainties and hazard of competitive enterprises in industry and business. These changes will call for a radically altered viewpoint in the social sciences, for the latter, like mankind, are suffering from a hunger hysteria that even in the face of plenty acts like a neurosis to prevent intelligent adaptive behavior."

Limited Management Trusts Attract Investors

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

INVESTMENT TRUSTS of the limited management type are attracting increased public interest. This type of investment medium, representing a half-way point between the old type of management trust and the extremely rigid fixed trust, appears to offer a logical solution of the problem of securing diversification for the small investor.

The outstanding trusts of the limited management type are surprisingly alike except in minor details. They avoid the pitfalls encountered in the old type of management trusts by closely limiting the securities which can be purchased for the portfolio. They also limit capitalization to a single class of stock, and forbid trading on margin or the hypothecation of assets as security for loans.

All the income, outside of profits from the sale of securities or income from stock dividends, other than regular stock dividends, is distributed to holders of shares quarterly. The price of new shares sold is based on the market value of the underlying portfolio plus a specified charge to meet expenses and provide profits. Liquidity is insured since shares can be turned back to the trustee, who holds the investment portfolio, for the market value, less nominal charges.

* * *

Three Outstanding Trusts Are Formed

THREE TRUSTS of the limited management type are attracting attention. These trusts are Dividend Shares and Nation-wide Securities Company, sponsored by Calvin Bullock, and Supervised Shares, Inc., sponsored by Brown Brothers, Harriman & Co.

Nation-wide Securities may invest funds in any of a list of 52 outstanding corporations. Dividend shares is limited to investments in a list of 37 corporations and may also invest funds in United States government securities, call loans or cash. Not more than 5 per cent of the funds of these two companies may be invested in the securities of any one company. Supervised Shares may invest in any of a list of 56 common stocks as well as United States Government Securities or call loans. Not more than 7½ per cent of the assets may be invested in any one company.

* * *

Undesirable Stocks May Be Eliminated

IN ALL THREE organizations stocks which appear to have a doubtful future may be sold and the proceeds invested in other stocks on the approved lists. In Dividend Shares, stocks may be added to the eligible list on the approval of 51 per cent of the shareholders. In Supervised Shares, the directors may add stocks to the approved list for investment if objections are not raised by more than 25 per cent of the share holders.

In Dividend Shares and Nation-wide Securities Company, the stocks held in the investment portfolio are placed in the hands of the Trust Company of New Jersey as trustee. This avoids the payment of certain New York State taxes.

While the overhead charges in trusts of this type reduce their desirability for large investment funds, these costs appear to be justified in using these investment mediums for small investment funds because of the diversification which could not be secured in any other way.

SALESMAN!

If you have confidence in your selling ability and feel that you are capable of filling a responsible position with an old and very successful nationally known corporation, we have an important position open in our sales department. STOCKS HEAVY IN LISTLESS TRADING

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—The stock market continued to back and fill listlessly today, with prices developing a somewhat heavy undertone.

Professional traders seemed somewhat discouraged by the lack of response to recent bullish efforts, but brokerage opinion remained guardedly cheerful.

Wall street again adopted a watchful waiting attitude, hoping for some break in the news which would provide market impetus. It was pointed out that with business under year-end influences, nothing particularly stimulating from business barometers was to be expected until January, although a less than seasonal decline in freight car loadings might be accepted as distinctly favorable. The latest week reported, reflecting the pickup after the Thanksgiving week, showed a somewhat wider divergence from last year than some of the preceding weeks.

The efforts of the railroads to induce their organized workers to accept a continuation of the 10 per cent wage reduction which expires February 1 attracted considerable interest. The workers are seeking shorter hours to spread the work, and in this connection, the Interstate Commerce Commission reported that a six-hour day would have no material effect upon service, but would increase operating expenses.

Plan to Reorganize Detroit Aircraft

DETROIT, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Details of a plan of reorganization for the Detroit Aircraft Corporation have been mailed to the stockholders. The corporation is in receivership and its directors and officers are defendants in a $5,000,000 suit filed in Federal Court, charging malfeasance.

Stockholders will vote on the proposal at a meeting called for December 29 here.

Directors of the new company would include Secretary of Commerce Roy D. Chapin, chairman of the board of the Hudson Motor Car Company, and Peter R. Beasley, who was president of the aircraft company for the last 12 months prior to receivership.

Tire Shipments Off in October

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Shipments of pneumatic casings in October amounted to 1,799,136 units, compared with 3,082,285 in September and 2,851,653 in October, 1931, according to the Rubber Manufacturers' Association. Production in October totaled 2,568,641 casings, against 2,538,720 in September and 2,973,755 in October, 1931.

Inventory on October 31 last totaled 6,875,930 casings, comparing with 6,096,098 in September and 8,[illegible]5 on October 31, last year.

Foreign Exchanges Recover at Close

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Foreign exchanges rallied today after a flurry of selling at the opening had sent the French franc to a new 1932 low.

Francs dropped to 3.90⅛ cents for Paris cables, but recovered quickly, advancing around midday to [illegible] 7-16, for a net gain of 1-16 point.

The British pound sterling reacted under early selling to $3.24½, off 1¾ cents, but later [illegible] to $3.26[illegible], ¼ cent above its previous closing quotation.

The market was quiet.

Illinois Central To Purchase Rails

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—The Illinois Central Railway will shortly order 2,500 tons of rail, to be divided evenly between Illinois Steel Company and Inland Steel Company. Shipment will be at the mills' convenience.

This is part of the 6,000 tons of rail which Illinois Central proposes to order for 1933 delivery.

Cottonseed Freight Increase Approved

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Increases in freight rates on cottonseed and cottonseed products and vegetable cake and oils were authorized today in an Interstate Commerce Commission decision reached after several years of investigation under the Hoch-Smith congressional resolution passed in 1926.

Daily Oil Output Down 3,882 Barrels

TULSA, Dec. 13.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended December 10 totaled 2,118,893 barrels, a decrease of 3,882 barrels daily from the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

Investment Circles Await New York State Bond Issue Tomorrow

The results of tomorrow's New York state financing is being eagerly awaited in investment circles. The state is slated to offer $40,000,000 bonds, which in view of its splendid credit position, it is assumed will be taken up rapidly. Interest in the offering, of course, revolves around the fact that the manner in which it is absorbed is expected to serve as an index of the investment demand for high grade issues. Taking the demand for high grade liens in the listed market as a straw in the wind, and the heavy oversubscription of the latest treasury offering, it would seem apparent that there is a broad market for the best class of state and other investment vehicles.

Union Pacific and Southern Pacific jointly control the Pacific Fruit Express, each road owning half its capital stock. The latter road enjoys right of way over the lines of those companies and the Western Pacific. The investment of the big roads has been a profitable one and has yielded the roads in even proportions a return totaling about $10,600,00 annually. The last dividend of $5,300,000 was ordered in June, and action by Pacific Fruit Express is due again in a week or so. Report current has it that the distribution to controlling roads in this instance will be in excess of the usual payment, and may possibly necessitate dipping into accumulated profits to some extent.

Postponement of the auction of Insull collateral held by the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company from December 16 to December 22 was announced today. In agreeing to a later date for the collateral sale, the bank, it was reported, had decided to await further developments in the proposed reorganization of the National Public Service and National Electric Power companies, holding companies for Insull properties in the East.

Outstanding loans and investments of member banks, the consolidated condition report reveals, were reduced by $161,000,000 the past week. The bulk of the shrinkage was due to reduction in holdings of investments, largely in the form of other securities which had been rising quite consistently over a period. This form of investment was cut $72,000,000 while holdings of governments were reduced by $40,000,000. Loans dropped $49,000,000 net, advances against security collateral having risen $19,000,000 while "other loans" dropped $68,000,000. Deposits were reduced accordingly, but due to revision in figures for the Atlanta district for the previous week, member indebtedness to the reserve was cut by $8,000,000.

The annual stockholders' meeting of Walgreen Company is scheduled to start at 4 p. m., New York time, Wednesday, in Chicago. C. R. Walgreen, president of the drug chain, has already told stockholders that he would make a statement at this meeting concerning placing of the common stock on a dividend basis. Directors of the company are scheduled to meet for possible action on the initial common dividend directly after the annual meeting.

When the directors of Simms Petroleum Company meet, Thursday, serious consideration will be given to the declaration of a dividend of 25 cents a share from capital surplus. The last previous dividend declaration was 40 cents, on August 7, 1930. While operations in the first nine months of the current year resulted in a net loss, the company has steadily added to its cash holdings, which now approximate $650,000.

Shannahan to Head Midland United Co.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—A vacancy in the presidency of the Midland United Company, one of the former Insull holdings, was filled today with the announcement that John N. Shannahan had resigned a similar position with the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway Company to accept the Midland office on January 1.

Headquarters is to be moved from Chicago to Indianapolis. Samuel Insull, Jr., probably will retire as vice president, but remain a member of the board.

Brokers Request Extra Xmas Holiday

NEW YORK, Dec 13.—The petition being circulated on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange for an extra holiday on Saturday, December 24, preceding Christmas, has been signed by 468 members.

COTTON STEADY UNDER SALES

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 5 lower on disappointing Liverpool cables and moderate southern selling. December, 5.76c; January, 5.78c; March, 5.92c; May, 6.01c; July, 6.13c; October, 6.30c.

The initial offerings were absorbed by trade buying, combined with some commission house demand and a little buying through brokers with Japanese connections. Prices then steadied with January selling at 5.80 and May at 6.04, or at about yesterday's closing quotations, but the market was narrow and prices were 2 or 3 points off from these figures at the end of the first half hour.

There was considerable switching from near to late months with January liquidation rather more in evidence during the early trading.

Trading continued quiet later in the morning with the undertone steady. Rallies from an early decline in the stock market stimulated a little local covering and January sold up from 5.76, the early low price, to 5.82, while May advanced to 6.08, or about 3 to 4 points net higher. The market was within a point or two of these figures at mid-day.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 13.—Cotton, 9,000 bales including 1,700 American. Spot in fair demand; prices two points lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling 5.85; good middling 5.55; strict middling 5.30; middling 5.15; strict low middling 5.00; low middling 4.85; strict good ordinary 4.65; good ordinary 4.35. Futures closed quiet and steady. December 4.92; January 4.93; March 4.96; May 4.98; July 4.99; October 5.00.

Less Cottonseed Reported Crushed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Cottonseed crushed in the four-month period, August 1 to November 29, was reported today by the Census Bureau to have totaled 2,106,473 tons, compared with 2,246,497 tons in the same period a year ago, and cottonseed on hand at mills November 30 totaled 1,432,942 tons, compared with 1,583,507 tons a year ago.

European Copper Quotation Lower

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Copper in Europe is on the basis of 4.35 cents a pound, Hamburg, Havre and London, a decline of 5 points under yesterday's figure.

In the domestic market, December shipments are nominally 5 cents a pound delivered, and first-quarter shipments are 5 to 5⅛ cents delivered. Buying both abroad and here is virtually nil.

LOCAL STOCKS CONTINUE STEADY

Prices held around the best levels of yesterday's session during the early trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, but the volume of business continued light and the market fell into a drifting dullness following the initial transactions.

A few shares of Lone Star Gas were handled around $7 at the start, a slight fractional improvement over last night's close and equal to the best price achieved on yesterday's rally. The new Lone Star Gas 6 per cent preferred, the stock in which the company pays dividends on the common, sold at 65 for an odd lot, the same price at which it sold last week.

So-called "strangers," inactive stocks that appear but rarely on the board, continue to come on the market as the year draws to a close. Today's list included Mayflower Drug at 10 cents, a new low. The preferred sold at $1. Most of the trades in these issues are for the purpose of establishing official prices or for tax purposes.

BRITISH NEWS HITS WHEAT

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—A general downturn of Chicago grain values early today followed sharp setbacks both in Liverpool wheat quotations and in British exchange rates. Cables reported cheap offerings of Argentine and Australian wheat. Opening ½@¾ down, Chicago wheat future deliveries weakened further afterward. Corn started ⅜@⅝ off and subsequently held near the initial limits.

An all around fall of a cent a bushel in Chicago wheat prices took place before comparative stability was attained. A dearth of new buying power appeared evident, but in various quarters talk was heard that prices were so extremely low the selling side of the market looked hazardous. Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. Provisions held about steady.

POLITICS FOGS '33 OUTLOOK —AYRES

CLEVELAND, Dec. 13.—(AP.)—Business recovery "will be conditioned to an unexampled degree" by what happens in Washington the coming year, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company and nationally recognized statistician, said today.

Col. Ayres, in his annual address before the Chamber of Commerce on the business outlook, asserted that, unlike any previous depression, the present economic situation "is not likely to be automatically self-curing."

"The problem of trying to forecast the business developments of 1933 is one that involves in large measure the attempt to guess or estimate the degree to which the policies of the new administration at Washington will be formulated with wisdom and its actions guided by sagacity. It is quite literally a problem of political economy rather than one of business economics."

BASIC TRENDS UNCERTAIN

For that reason, he said, it is impossible to make the customary yearly business predictions except in a few cases. He hazarded probabilities of: lower industrial wage rates, a lower cost of living, a greater number of commercial failures, less dividend payments, and an output of trucks and cars in the United States and Canada of between 1,250,000 and 2,000,000.

"More fundamental matters such as the probable volume of industrial production in 1933 as compared with 1932, the amount of building construction, the output of iron and steel, the production of electric power, the loadings of railroad freight, the volume of industrial employment, and the trends of security prices may be so greatly influenced by political developments as well as by more impersonal economic forces, that they defy prediction."

MONEY ALTERNATIVES

There are two alternatives ahead, he said—inflation or adjustments "necessary for a resumption of normal business at lower prices."

He continued:

"It is prudent to expect that the long, hard grind of sound money will be chosen.

"In that event, 1933 will probably prove to be another year of depression, during which halting and irregular process will be slowly achieved in the building of foundations for recovery.

"If the alternative course of attempting to lift price levels by inflation should be chosen, the attempt would in all probability fail and the subsequent events prove disastrous."

Senate to Probe Insull Collapse

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The Senate Banking and Currency Committee has appointed a sub-committee to proceed with the stock market investigation, including inquiry into the collapse of Insull utility holding companies.

Chairman Norbeck said the committee had $46,000 with which to proceed, and that he would call the sub-committee in a day or so.

WARNERS' FOE ASKS DELAY

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 13.—(INS.)—The battle over control of the management of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., continued at the annual stockholders' meeting today as a force of almost 100 stenographers raced to complete the tabulation of thousands of proxies.

The shareholders resumed their sessions this morning to hear Max Goldberg, of Salem, Mass., deliver another attack on the management of the company by the Warner brothers, Albert, Harry and Jack. Adjournment was taken until completion of the proxy count when five new directors are to be elected.

Goldberg made another motion to postpone the election of five directors for 30 days until the company's affairs can be investigated. No vote was taken. Future control of the company hinges on the election of the directors for which both groups are wrestling.

Members of the Warner group announced the partially completed count of proxies indicated they held at least a two-thirds majority.

MARY FAITH

Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up

By BEATRICE BURTON

Kim Asks Return of Mary Faith's Ring When He Breaks Engagement

CHAPTER V.

It was in the beginning that Mary Faith had been in need of a friend. A month after their coming to the tall red brick house her mother had died of pneumonia, and there had been no one but Mrs. Puckett to comfort Mary Faith and lend her money to pay for her course at the Spencerian Business College downtown.

She was a woman of big, wholesouled virtues and small, absurd faults. And she was a gossip and busy-body of the first water.

Synopsis

Mary Faith, young and comely fiancee of Kimberly Farrell, handsome blond youth, just out of law school, gives notice that she will leave her position as secretary to the wealthy Mark Nesbit to marry "Kim." Mary Faith receives a note from Kim's mother inviting her to dinner. Arriving late, due to Kim's delay, Mary Faith is greeted coolly by Mrs. Farrell. Suddenly there is a crash and scream from the kitchen and Kim calls to Mary Faith. Mrs. Farrell has knocked over a pot of coffee, slightly burning herself. The unpleasant attitude of Kim's mother proves to Mary Faith that she does not favor the marriage. Driving home, Mary Faith realizes a mother's feelings in giving up her only son. Before leaving, Kim bluntly asks Mary Faith to postpone the marriage.

Now Go On

"Well, here's our little lady!" she cried, setting her tray down upon a marble-topped table in the middle of the room. "But her young man has fled without stopping to wait for our congratulations!"

"Mrs. Puckett has been telling us some wonderful news about you and Mr. Farrell, Miss Fenton," said Allie, who was the elder of the two Brock girls. Her hands were clasped around her knees and she was sitting at the very edge of the sofa so that everything about her looked expectant.

"Yes, indeedy!" It was old Mr. McClintock who spoke up next. "We hear that this bad girl of ours is going to get married and desert us all!" His mild, watery eyes smiled at Mary Faith through the thin haze of his cigar smoke.

"I've been telling these dear good people that you're going to leave us in less than two weeks, Mary Faith." Mrs. Puckett began to pour the cider into little cups as she talked. "The first of October—that's the date, isn't it?"

TRIES TO BE CHEERFUL

It was not the date. There was no longer any date for the wedding, and Mary Faith did her best to say so with a cheerful, natural air.

She must be cheerful and offhand about this, she kept telling herself. She must not let these people, or anybody, know how she felt about the postponement of the wedding. There were certain things that you owed to your pride no matter what happened to you!

"We've decided not to be married on the first," she said, and there was not a quiver in her voice. "Kim—Mr. Farrell—found out today that he can't get away from the office just now."

She wondered if any of them believed her. She was pretty sure that not one of them did. She caught Lily Brock giving her a narrow, calculating look as she took a cup of cider from Mrs. Puckett's tray.

They all lifted their cups in their hands. Mr. McClintock, as toastmaster, cleared his throat.

"We had intended to drink to the long life and happiness of you two young people, Miss Fenton," he said to Mary Faith in his courteous, old-fashioned way. "The bridegroom-to-be isn't here, but let us drink the toast just as if he were. The wedding is postponed, but that means we shall keep our girl here with us a little longer."

KIM VISITS EARLY

Mary Faith faced them all with a wide smile that did not hide the unhappiness in her eyes.

"Drink your cider, Mary Faith," Mrs. Puckett said when she herself had had three cups of it. It's very refreshing."

Mary Faith tried to drink it. It tasted bitter. . . . Life itself had a bitter taste to her that night.

"Tomorrow," she thought when she was lying in bed an hour later. "Tomorrow I'll have to go through all this again at the office; explaining everything to everybody."

Tomorrow dawned cold and gray with raindrops that looked like tears running down the window panes in her room. The trees in Haltnorth Park were hidden in a mist, and Mary Faith bathed and dressed by electric light.

There was a light burning in the lower hall, too, she saw as she came down the stairs at 8 o'clock.

A man was sitting just inside the curtained door of the parlor. At the sound of her light, hurrying steps he got up and came out into the hall.

It was Kim. Before he reached her he began to speak.

"I want to talk to you, Mary Faith," he said quickly and unsteadily. "Is there any place where we can be alone?"

Beyond him in the parlor Mary Faith could see Mr. McClintock sitting beside the fire reading the morning paper. Agnes was standing in the door of the dining room.

"There's no place here," she said, looking up at him, a faint, puzzled frown between her eyes. "Is your car outside? We could drive downtown together."

"We'll drive over to the park for a minute," said Kim. "I'm not going straight downtown this morning. I have to stop off and see a man on the way down."

DRIVE TO PARK

Haltnorth Park on that gray autumn morning was deserted and full of the sad sound of rain dripping from the trees and bushes. The green iron benches where sweethearts and nursemaids took their ease during the hot weather had all been taken away.

Kim stopped his roadster near the little lake where swans swam lazily all through the long drowsy days of summer. There was nothing on the brown ruffled water now but a few dead leaves.

"I don't know just how I'm going to tell you, Mary Faith," he began, turning off the engine of the car. "I swear I don't——"

He looked at her. Mary Faith looked back at him, never helping with a word.

"Last night after I left you," he said slowly, "I didn't go straight home. I meant to, and then I got to thinking about Janet. I got to thinking about her, and I drove around to see her."

Kim paused, and Mary Faith asked him a question.

"Is 'Janet' the girl you've been driving home from work lately? The one you told me about last night?"

He said she was, his eyes on the surface of the little lake. Suddenly he turned in his seat.

"Oh, I may as well tell you the whole thing and get it over with!" he said roughly. "That girl's been around the office for months. I've taken her out to lunch a dozen times, I suppose, and I've driven her home three or four times a week for the last month . . . I thought she was a cute little kid. But I didn't know I was falling for her. I didn't know how much I cared about her until yesterday when I told her about you and me."

ENGAGEMENT BROKEN

Mary Faith gave him a straight and steady look.

"Until she told you how much she cared for you," she said. "Kim, what are you trying to tell me? That you're giving me up?"

Why, he couldn't give her up! . . . They had been in love with each other for almost four years. Month by month they had waited for the time to come when they could be married. Night before last they had actually decided on the date for their wedding . . . People didn't stick to each other like that if they didn't love each other for keeps!

"Why, Kim, you couldn't stop—liking me — after all these years," she said, putting her hands up to her aching throat. "You can't care for that girl the way you do for me, Kim. You haven't known her long enough . . . Why, think, just two nights ago you told me we'd be married on the first! And now this—Kim, I couldn't live if you threw me down now. That may sound silly to you, but it's the truth."

He sagged lower in his seat, shrugging his shoulders.

"You're making this awfully hard for me, Mary Faith," he said, his forehead a maze of petulant lines. "You're making it awfully hard for both of us. Let's try to be calm about it."

He made a sudden impatient movement with his head.

"You don't think I enjoy sitting here telling you that we're through with each other, do you?" he asked her. "I'd much rather have written to you, but I decided that the only square thing was to tell you just how things are so far as I'm concerned."

"Through with each other?" repeated Mary Faith. And then she said it again. "Through with each other." She sat still, taking it in for a minute or two.

"Well!" she said at last, as if she finally realized just what had happened to her. "Well, that's that, isn't it? She opened the door of the car with wet cold fingers and stepped out upon the brown soggy grass.

As she closed it Kim reached suddenly for her hands.

"Aren't you going to say goodbye to me, Mary Faith?"

She couldn't say a word. There was a great lump of tears in her throat. She shook her head and walked away across the grass.

"Mary Faith—"

She turned at the sound of his voice. He was getting out of the car. He had something more to say to her. His eyebrows were drawn up in a question.

"How about your engagement ring, Mary Faith?" he asked in an embarrassed voice. His face was flaming under its tan. "You won't want to wear it now, will you? I promised her I'd get it from you. She had an idea you might make trouble about all this. I told her you wouldn't. I told her that you were wonderful and that you'd understand——"

"Come here and take your ring!" Mary Faith cut in upon him.

He came across the wet grass and took it out of her fingers. He tried to smile, but he looked like a whipped dog.

"Through with each other?" repeated Mary Faith.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Well, look who's here! Ken Hoel, formerly of the downtown publicity department of the Warner Theaters, has been appointed manager of the Ambridge Theater at Ambridge, Pa. Manager Hoel, in his former duties, had a lot to do with the general direction of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club and he knows the game from A to Z. Consequently the youngsters of Ambridge can look forward to a lot of unusually fine Saturday morning programs as their new manager knows just what they want and he's going to give it to them.

The first big program under his direction comes at next Saturday's meeting and includes six clever acts from the Mann School of Dancing. These will include an act by Marie and Dorothy Mann under the title of "Sweet Jenny Lee," followed by Mary Lazar and Jane Guziak as the "Harmony Sisters"; advanced acrobatics by Doris Noessner; Eleanor Eakin, as "Santa's Bell Hop Messenger"; Jeanette Stone, in "Going Crazy" and the "Spanish Senoritas," including Marie Simon, Jane Smith, Dorothy Mann, Mary Pass, Francis Gentis and George Shemo. It looks like a dandy show. We hope that Manager Hoel will meet with a lot of good luck out at the Ambridge.

MANOR PROGRAM

Squirrel Hill's Manor Theater reports a topnotch attendance for last Saturday, the local chapter enjoying a splendid musical program in which Martha and Helen Green, Frieda Goldstein, Harold Lazow, Sam Prager, Henry Plummer and Jerome Maulsing, all club members, participated.

Washington Theater Chapter, Washington, Pa., turned its Saturday meeting into a real songfest and it was discovered that the youngsters in this chapter can sing like birds. It was a real inspiration to hear these juvenile voices in unison singing "Happy Days Are Here Again." Solos then followed from club members including Peggy Ann Howell, Betty Jane Haught, Marion Kemp, Betty Jane Anderson, Virginia Parkinson, Ethel Grinnage, Anna Kearns, Myrtle Sholten and Rita Folino.

Dances were presented by Rodger Doyle, Billy Brownlee, Betty George and Harold Wolfe, and acrobatic numbers were given by Aldine Martin and Mary Jane Woods.

SPECIAL FEATURE

As a special feature there was a song and dance number by three Negro boys known as the "Prince Albert Trio." Manager M. M. Wear reports that about 400 members of the Washington Chapter have already turned in stockings for the Christmas party.

Splendid reports are coming in on the "canned goods" matinees of last Saturday morning and it looks as though the members of the various chapters of the Junior Komic Club opened their hearts at the right time. Every theater reports splendid donations and all of these donations have been turned over to the organizations for the relief work in the community where the matinees were held.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

Rowland—Wade Straw.

Kenyon—Paul Richardson, Arnold McMillan; Francis Aiken.

South Hills—Lillian Rosenblum, Frances Jahn, Peter Lupori, Lenora Evans, William Cranston, Shirly Fleishman, Lillian Gretter, Francis Kane, John Weimer, James Kinney, A. Valicent, Raymond Lair and Mary Lammert.

Bugs Baer

Stealing the Prohib's Thunder

Will beer be of any benefit to humanity and the world at larger?

This puzzle is somewhat of a question.

We can answer it only in the same way the teetotalers answered us in 1920.

We shall use their same arguments. First, it will empty the jails. All the boys will want to come out for a drink. The nice ones will go back.

It will benefit the farmer. He will have to go to town to get his beer. And a farmer likes to go to town.

There will be less poverty. Any man with a quart of beer under his vest thinks he is a millionaire. And where ignorance is bliss the next round is on the house.

It will put more men to work. They will go to sleep when they get there. But they'll get paid for it.

It will do away with the drinking of gin and hard liquors.

PLEASE EXCUSE JOHNNY FOR NOT BEING AT SCHOOL YESTERDAY — HE SPENT THE DAY WITH HIS FATHER IN A SPEAKEASY

That's what the prohibitionists said in 1920. And what is rye for the goose is schnapps for the gander.

We can't prove the above statement. But why worry about grain alcohol, bourbon, Scotch and other dairy products? The antirummickers didn't prove anything they claimed in 1920. So we can be wrong all through this article and still win the tournament.

All we ask is a fair trial for our nimble experiment. Twelve years at the bat and no score.

The money we save will go for education of the children. This is the same theory advanced in 1920. It didn't work because they couldn't get the children out of the speakeasies. The little ones wanted to go to the same college their daddies graduated from.

It will do a lot of magnificent things. Or so we say. And so they said in 1920.

All we can be sure of is that we are being launched on another noble test. And we know that if it is a failure we are still going to enjoy it. That's more than we can say for the other one.

(New Hampton, Ia., Tribune)

Our city marshal, John Tietjen, returned Tuesday from Bellevue, where he visited his old stamping grounds. John showed us some corn he picked on the old Tietjen farm, and as we looked at John and the corn the thought came to our mind that this particular farm must have the reputation of raising big corn. This year the crop is wonderful and many people wonder what we are going to do with this great surplus of corn. We put the question to John and he certainly answered us in a clever way when he said: "We can be darn glad we have got it."

WASHINGTON. — Congressman Horace Walpole Frisby last night announced that he would like to send a Christmas remembrance to every man, woman and child in America.

"I mean just what I say," declared Frisby, "and there are no 'ifs' or 'ands' about it—no string attached in any shape, manner or form. But I cannot send a gift to everyone, simply because I do not know all the names and addresses. Do you realize that the population of our country is now more than 100,000,000? Nevertheless, I repeat my original proposition. I'd like to exchange gifts with every one. I'd like to send candy and oranges to all the tiny tots. Jewels and lingerie to all the ladies—regardless of color or creed. Cigars and neckties for the men! And I would, too, if I had the addresses! However, it is simpler for everybody else to catch the idea—the Christmas spirit. My address is just plain Horace Frisby, general delivery, Washington, D. C. Let's go, America!"

Peonage in the Mines

The Legislature Should Act to Protect the Employes of Coal Companies from Oppression.

Peonage is defined as a system under which a debtor is kept in virtual servitude until he has worked out his debt.

It is no misuse of the term to apply it to the system described by Gov. Gifford Pinchot in his statement yesterday in regard to the way in which certain coal companies in Pennsylvania are treating their employes.

The companies pay miserably low wages to start with, then force the miners to buy food, clothing and other necessities at their company stores at unreasonably high prices.

"In many cases," Gov. Pinchot says, "the workman is so deep in debt to the company or the store that he couldn't move his household goods from the company-owned house even if he found another job."

Short weighing at the tipple as much as one-third of the total weight of coal loaded is another charge.

There is nothing novel in the charges. Pittsburgh has been hearing them for years. But that does not make it any the less desirable that they shall be investigated, and conditions corrected.

The United Mine Workers no longer exercise the power in Western Pennsylvania that they once did. The miners have been forced by the economic situation to take such wages and conditions of employment as the operators cared to impose.

Public opinion forced the operators to eliminate the villainous coal and iron police, and so we have been spared such outrageous trampling on human rights as marked their career. Nevertheless, if Gov. Pinchot has been correctly informed, oppression of the miners, though not called so prominently to public attention as it formerly was, continues.

It is the Legislature's duty to take cognizance of the Governor's charges, to investigate them, and end the abuses.

Peonage cannot be tolerated in Pennsylvania.

The County Budget

Taxpayers Should Avail Themselves of the Commissioners' Invitation to Offer Suggestions.

An increase in the county tax rate is unthinkable, and the people demand a cut.

The taxpayers understand that the County Commissioners have already slashed expenditures somewhat; they understand that some of the work now being done by the county was started in order to provide jobs for men who had lost their regular employment. With full understanding of the situation the taxpayers will expect the Commissioners to cut the tax rate.

The citizens' incomes have been reduced, and it is necessary that their expenses, public as well as private, shall also be reduced.

Chairman C. C. McGovern has invited the taxpayers to attend the budget sessions. The board will welcome any person with a sensible suggestion, he says.

The people should avail themselves of the invitation. The board will not find it easy to cut the tax rate, and the public can help.

A Debt of Honor

Congress Should Provide Relief for the Families of the Mexican Boys Killed in Oklahoma.

Congress owes it to the honor of the United States to provide some relief for the families of those two Mexican college boys who were slain at Ardmore, Okla., by two deputy sheriffs more than 18 months ago.

The circumstances under which the lives of those two innocent boys were snuffed out in the dark, while they were on their way home to spend their vacation with their parents, brought disgrace and humiliation to the United States and aroused deep and rightful resentment in Mexico.

This terrible tragedy will remain a source of irritation between Mexico and the United States unless the federal government, on behalf of the whole people of the United States, shows the sorrow and sympathy they feel by suitable action that speaks louder than words.

Toward the end of the last session, President Hoover sent to Congress, with his heartfelt approval, a report by Secretary Stimson recommending that relief be extended in the sum of $15,000 to each of the two families victimized by the Ardmore tragedy.

The President appealed for this legislation "as an act of grace" on the part of our government. It would also be an act of justice to Mexico, an act of sympathy to the sorrowing families who sent their sons to the United States "to be educated in the language and manners and customs of this country."

Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner will express the sentiment of the household of the nation if they will make the prompt co-operation of the Congress with the President in this "act of grace" their personal and immediate concern.

Sunday Movies Popular

The Warner Theater's Experience Shows How Eager the People Are for Entertainment.

The announcement in just one newspaper—the Sun-Telegraph—that the Warner Theater would present moving pictures on Sunday for the benefit of the destitute brought 12,000 people to the six performances during the afternoon and evening.

No money payment was required for admission, but everyone was expected to contribute a gift of food or clothing, and everyone did.

The experiment proved how hungry the people of Pittsburgh are for clean Sunday entertainment. It also proved that such entertainment can be furnished without the least desecration of the Sabbath, and without interference with anybody's rights or privileges.

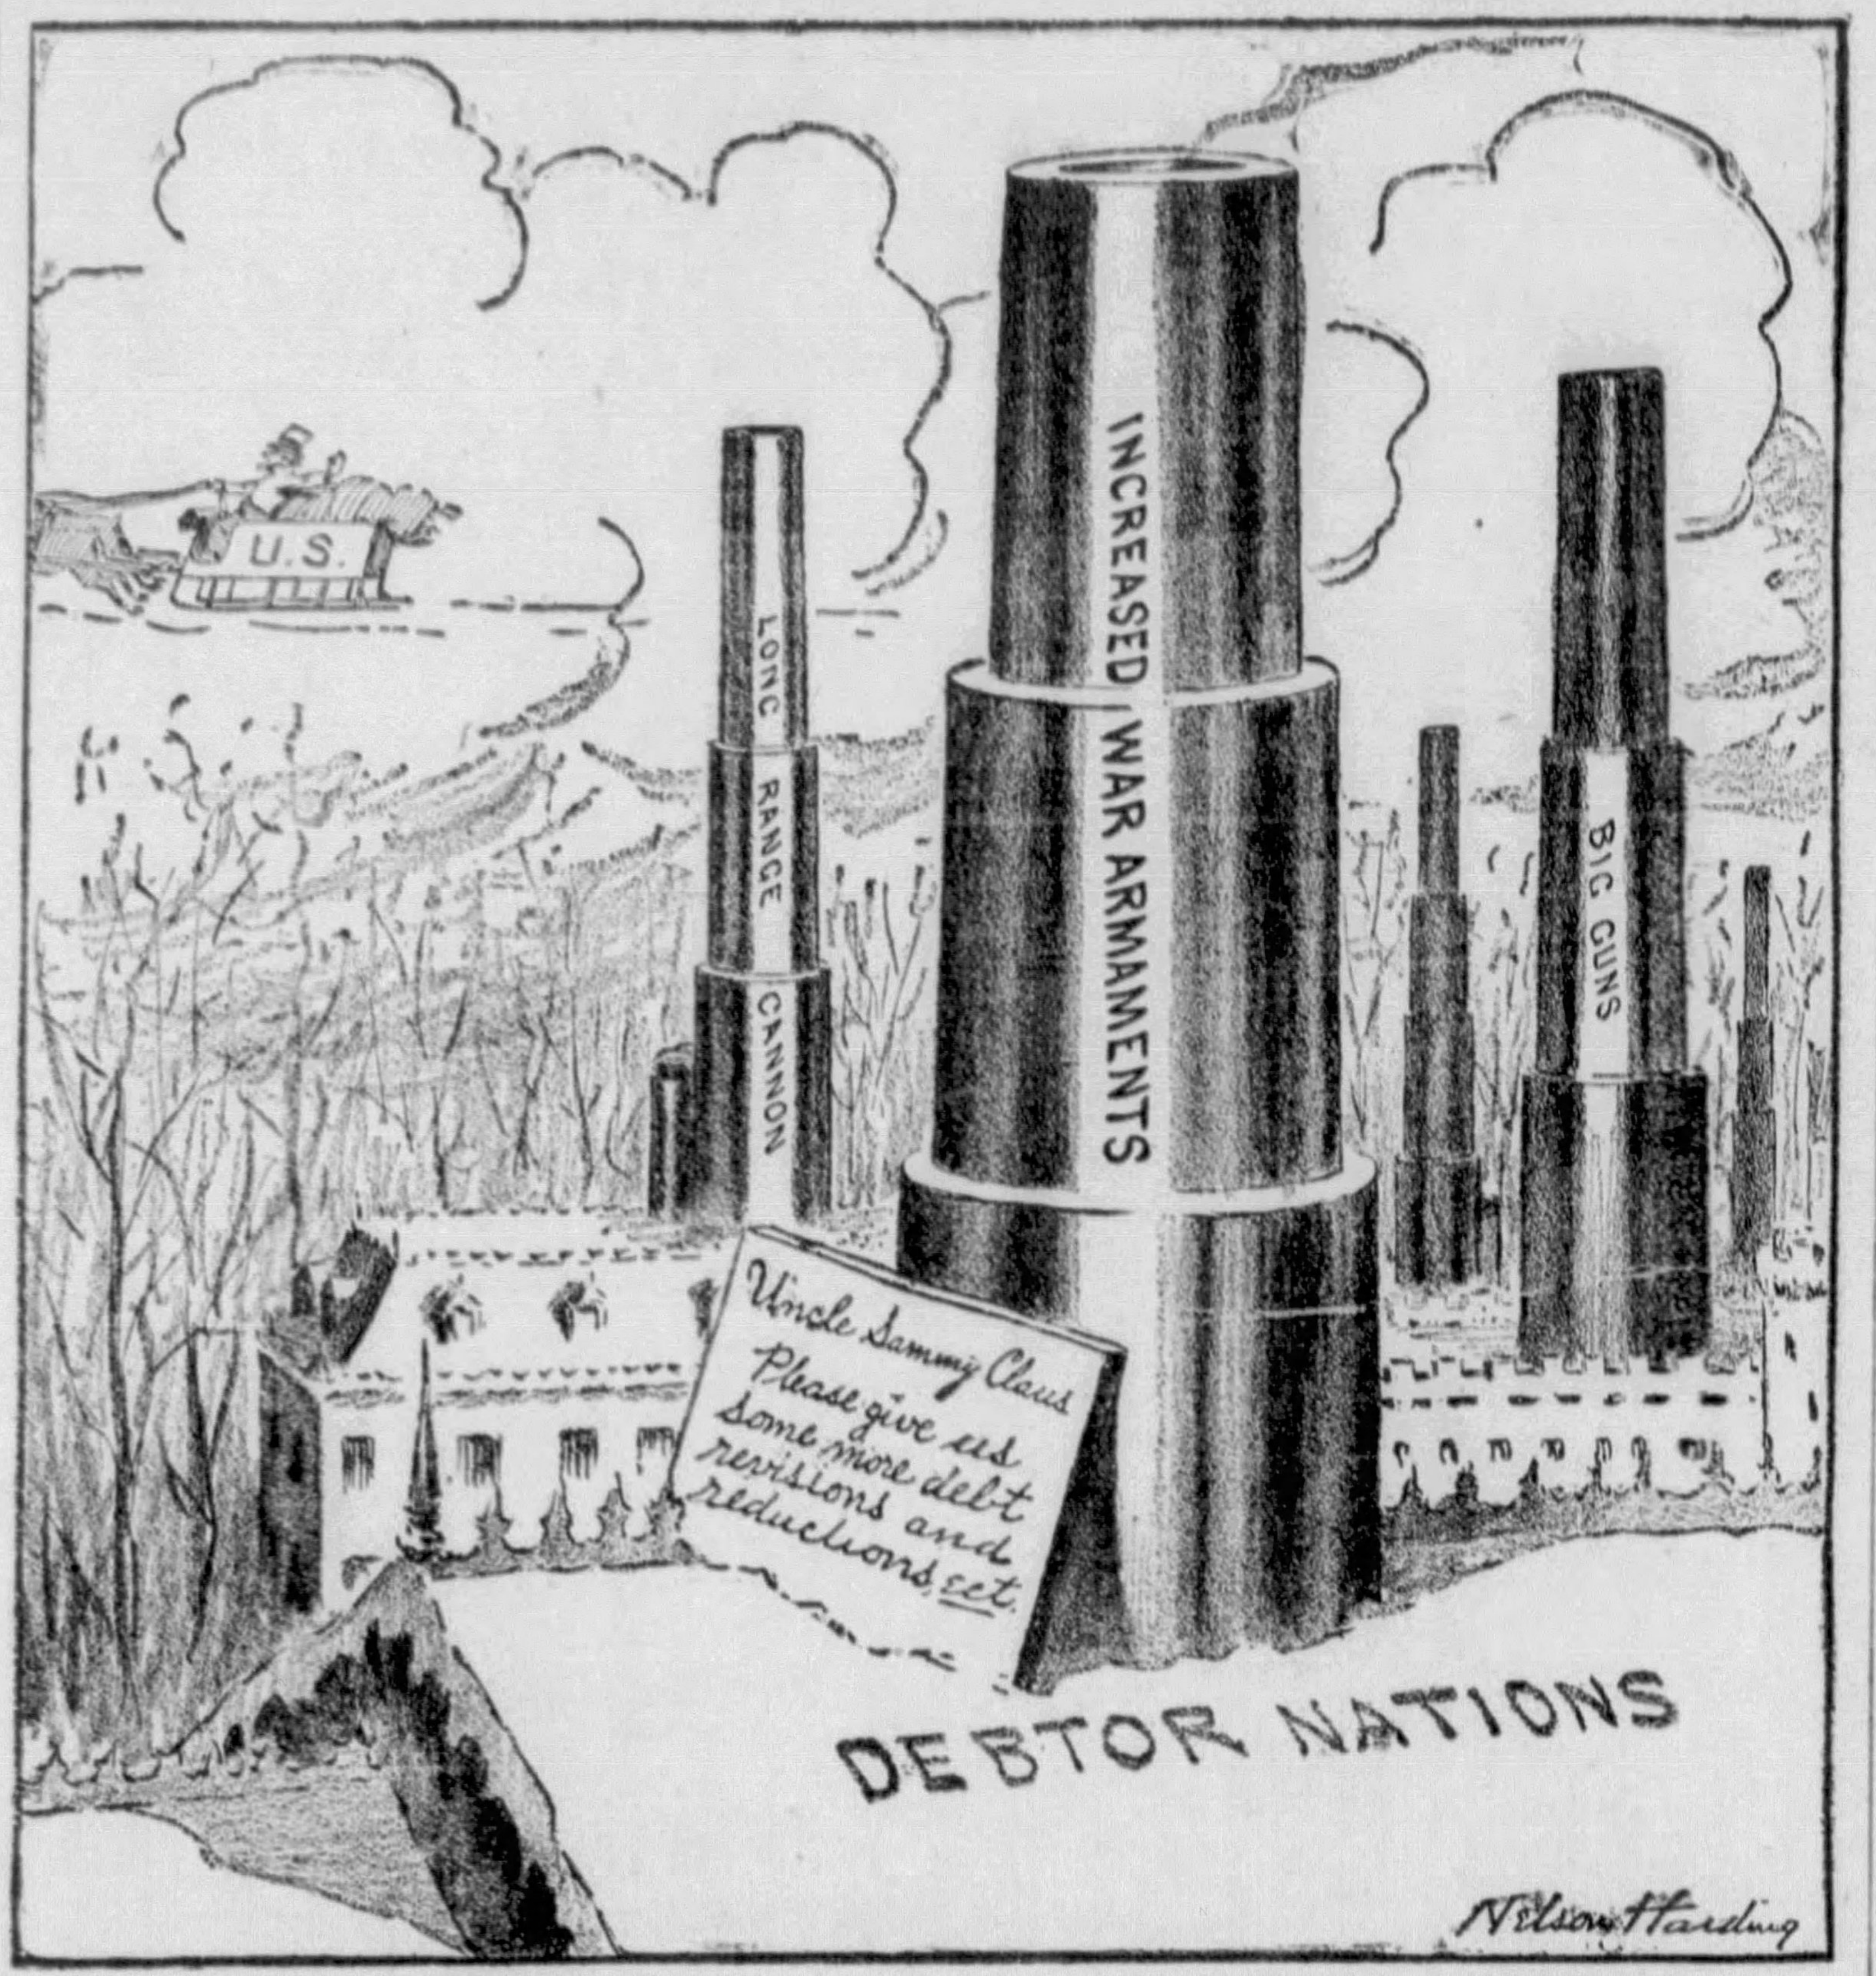
SUN-TELEGRAPH'S PLATFORM

For Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania

1—A better, cleaner, more beautiful city.
2—Rapid Transit.
3—Repeal or modification of "blue law."
4—Establishment of Pittsburgh metropolitan district.
5—Town Hall, seating at least 15,000.
6—Voting machines to insure honest elections.
7—Development of river transportation.
8—Development of air transportation.
9—Electrification of railroads.
10—Fair public utility rates.

Sammy Claus Doesn't Come Down Those Chimneys

By Nelson Harding



These chimneys tall are not the kind
That Sammy Claus is going down,
And'notes requesting visits there
Can merit only Sammy's frown.

When chimneys are composed of steel
And they are builded much too high
The owners need not be surprised
If Sammy Claus should pass them by.

Half the women in the world are wondering how to get a husband—and the other half are wondering why they ever took the ones they got.

Under all the modern girl's worldy-wisdom and bravado, there is an instinctive feminine delicacy, which she often deliberately outrages in her attempt to appear "smart" and "broad-minded."

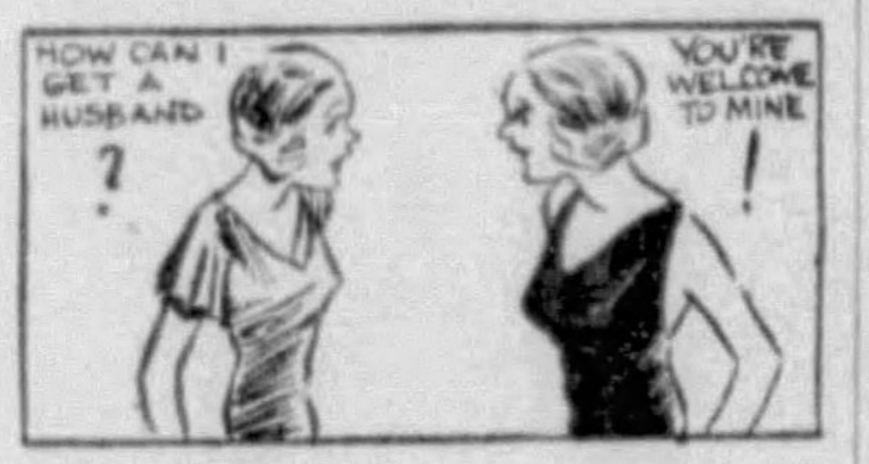
There are only two kinds of husbands. Your own — and all those nice, plu-perfect men who are married to women who are "unworthy" of them.



HOW CAN I GET A HUSBAND ?
YOU'RE WELCOME TO MINE !

A man is not always the most interesting and important thing in a girl's life, even though he may think he is. There are usually several OTHER men.

A smile and a kind word thrown at the penniless man on the street corner, these days, will sometimes go as far as the quarter you give him. But don't leave out the quarter.

BEAUTY PARLOR ?

There's nothing actually wrong in either of them—but the idea of a man going to a beauty parlor has the same nauseating effect on the average woman, as the vision of a woman smoking a meerschaum pipe.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Writers are the most devout wooers of My Lady Nicotine. In earlier days, Booth Tarkington carried especially long-sized cigarets in a huge leather case. Wherever he went, he had 100 or more on tap. Too large for a pocket, the case was tucked under his arm.

Arthur Somers Roche, at his typewriter, lights one after another, taking only one or two quick inhales from each. William McHarg rolls at least four cigarets before arising. Irvin Cobb indulges in fierce black cigars, tilted at a Joe Cannon angle. About six a day.

Sinclair Lewis switches from cigarets to cigars and pipes and, when fishing, chews the weed. Henry Mencken puffs corncobs. Christopher Morley is a human ventilating chimney for a pipe. A picture of Morley without his well-blackened briar would be something for the collector.

Theodore Dreiser is a pipe-smoker at the typewriter, as are G. K. Chesterton, Hillaire Belloc and most topnotch English writers. Michael Arlen smokes gold-tipped cigarets through a long holder and was first with the now ancient wheeze: his doctor ordered him "to keep away from cigarets."

Among literary ladies, Kathleen Norris is a non-smoker, although smoking is not so pronounced among the feminine fraternity. Many, like Edna Ferber and Katharine Brush, only puff a cigaret with their after-dinner coffee. The late poet, Amy Lowell, affected small-sized cigars.

It is told that Otto Kahn, recovering from a trying illness, sent his doctor a check for a huge sum with this gracious note: "For your professional services. My gratitude is something else."

Rich bachelors are most consistent purchasers of expensive games put out by swanky dealers. The intricate sort, incidentally, had enormous sale during the last two years. Many found them an avenue for concentration—and consequent forgetfulness. There are penthouse dwellers—among whom is Billy Seeman—with a standing order for every new game.

A relic of early simplicities is a faded parchesi board at which grandma and I gathered once a week in the pallid sputter of the hanging lamp in the sitting room. The contest was on Saturday night so as not to interfere with school study. It seemed fun to win from grandma, an earnest player, who, defeated, would peer over steel half-spectacles and abandon her diurnal dignity to exclaim: "Plague take the luck." Looking back, I cannot understand why I permitted myself to win when even such inconspicuous victory meant so much in her colorless life.

There is not likely a movie star of yesteryear who has so successfully withstood imprints of time as Thomas Meighan. He is not a dodderer by any means. Indeed, he is erect, clear-eyed and has a springier step than many current juveniles. But he's old in the service of a young industry. Meighan's best remembered forays in the films were in the screening of George Ade's fables. He and the humorist from Brook are friends of long standing—a friendship dating back to Ade's columning days in Chicago and Meighan's support of David Warfield.

The story best expressing American democracy, to me, is Montague Glass' tale of Lady Guinivere dePeyster Chumley-Chumley. On a visit to the States, she dropped in one afternoon at a neighbor's for her son. To the tad answering the door-pull she inquired: "Is the Right Honorable Montmorency Chumley-Chumley here?" The boy turned and called into the house: "O. Stinker, your mother wants you."

A number of us not privileged to attend college are likely unfairly contemptuous of life in the higher brackets. I am conscious of a particularly sweet depravity in a high-nosed sniff for Harvard. I never met a Harvard man who didn't give a feeling he had the edge on me. That is why I did a nip-up last night reading in memoirs of Santanya. He fled back to Oxford because he found Harvard crude.

I might sneak in, also, it was a Harvard upstart who, visiting Plattsburg, Mo., where I was born and Gallipolis, O., where I was reared, postcarded: "One looks powerless to be born, and in the other, they don't bury their dead. They walk around."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I have discovered a curious and comforting thing about trouble. I have discovered that if I can once settle a trouble INSIDE MYSELF it's settled for good. Thereafter the pesty thing has no power to confuse or molest me.

That doesn't mean, however, that I can always triumph over trouble in the eyes of the world. It doesn't imply that, by some trick of will power, I can manage to pay off the mortgage, or heal a desperate illness, or stop an enemy's malice.

To the contrary, I may seem to fail completely, outwardly. The mortgage may be foreclosed. The illness may increase, the enemy may become madder and meaner.

YET, NEVERTHELESS, I can, IF I WILL, CONQUER TROUBLE. REGARDLESS OF CIRCUMSTANCE, I CAN BE CONFIDENT AND HAPPY AND AT PEACE WITHIN MYSELF.

And by what miracle is this to be accomplished?

By no miracle, at all, but simply through the operation of a natural function of my spirit—a function which is as normal as the process of indigestion or blood circulation.

I CAN CONQUER TROUBLE BY CONTROLLING THE ATTITUDE OF MY OWN MIND.

It is not possible for anyone to control all the circumstances of his life, but it is always possible to control one's own attitude toward those circumstances. And that is the really important thing.

It isn't what happens that counts. It's the way I feel about it. AND I CAN FEEL ABOUT ANYTHING IN ANY WAY I CHOOSE.

For instance, there's that mortgage. I can, if I wish, feel that the mortgage is the most important thing in life. I can feel that nothing matters to me as much as my small house and few acres of land, and that if these are wiped out, I'm finished.

Or I can, if I wish, feel that I myself am the most important thing in my life, and that possessions are of little importance as long as I retain my own courage, faith, enthusiasm and self-respect. And I can resolutely refuse to let a foreclosed mortgage cramp my soul's fighting style.

I can do this about a mortgage. I can do this about anything.

Where's the proof?

All around you.

No need, even, to look for evidence to those great lives that flare like beacons down the dark aisles of history. There's the woman who lives on your own block. There's the man who worked beside you at the factory bench before you both lost your jobs.

Nothing very unusual about that woman's bitter life. A worthless husband; a dead child; endless, weary labor to feed the little ones that are left. You know a dozen women whose experience is almost identical. But those other women took the count. This woman wouldn't! The same trouble, but she took it differently. Their lives were poisoned by hate and grief. She's kept hers clean and free.

Nothing unusual about the man's lot either. You know scores of other fellows who lost their small savings when the bank folded up—who haven't had work in months. They're shot. Aren't even trying any more. Just sit and snarl. Play with the idea of revolution. This other chap's gone to raising chickens. He's busted flat, but he looks five years younger. The same trouble, but he took it differently.

All of which doesn't mean that trouble is a good thing. But it's an inevitable thing. Sooner or later we all must meet it. So then? So then it's up to us.

TROUBLE IS AS WE TAKE IT. TROUBLE IS WHAT WE MAKE IT. NOTHING CAN BREAK US IF WE REFUSE TO BE BROKEN. NOTHING CAN STOP US SAVE OUR OWN SURRENDER.

Sack the Living to Betray the Dead

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Any debtor has a right to discuss terms of payment with a creditor, and no debtor can be expected to do the impossible. But where a creditor has numerous debtors he expects to deal with them separately in reference to their individual capacity to pay. This country will thus deal with its debtors.

Now comes from Paris an amazing story to the effect that our debtors, to whom we have sacrificed hundreds of millions that must be made up from our own pockets, have agreed to "demand" further reductions, and that they are to act in concert—move in solid phalanx against the United States with the understanding that if a revision agreed upon is unsatisfactory to any of them, all of them will refuse. This means, we assume, a Holy Alliance for Default.

It is a rather amazing position for England to take, but if she wants to make that kind of a bed for herself she will have to sleep in it.

An individual has 10 debtors. One is utterly without funds; another has funds, and can pay by cutting down his own expense for hunting trips; another can easily pay, and, indeed, is rich. The creditor dealing with these would give a postponement to the first and merely demand payment from the third.

But they get together and the agreement is reached that if anything is done for the first that is not done for the third, none of them will pay. We wonder what would happen with that agreement in a court of justice.

But that, according to the report from Paris, is what the debtor nations have determined upon.

Nothing Could Be Lovelier

We read further that the plan of the conspirators to transfer the debts from the people who owe them to the taxpayers of the United States, through the none too honorable process of default, is to be advanced with the threat of scrapping the Lausanne agreement and "putting the responsibility on the United States." Nothing could be lovelier.

The Lausanne agreement did not spring from an generosity of heart on the part of the debtor nations. These had taken from Germany everything they could pick up. They took her territory and divided it among themselves. We got none of it and asked none.

They destroyed the trade of Germany and took it themselves.

They stripped Germany of everything necessary to make possible the payment of the most outrageous reparations in history.

Then for years they collected these reparations—of which we got none.

When Germany had been drained white, and could no longer pay, and when further pressure would have brought revolution and chaos, and possibly communism, which would have spread the German boundaries, they reduced the reparations—because they had no choice.

They cannot go back to the barbarous reparation figures—and know it.

* * *

Up Against the Old Game

Again Mr. Hoover's administration apparently has given the debtor nations the impressions that we have agreed to further reductions in the debts, which means a further acceptance for our own taxpayers of the burdens of the taxpayers of other nations. The more we observe the trend of the attacks upon us in Europe the more the conviction grows that, behind our backs, we have, somehow, been betrayed by either official or unofficial spokesmen.

And the more we read in American newspapers the more we are impressed with the fact that never in our history, with possibly two exceptions, has this country been so deluged with foreign propaganda.

In the first days of the republic when Europe was warring with itself, and France and England were heading the fighting forces, anyone reading the newspapers, as I have, would have been forced to the conclusion that this paper was English and that one French, and that scarcely any of them were American.

In the period between 1915 and 1917 before the United States entered the war, the agencies of publicity in America reeked with foreign propaganda. The purpose was to get us into the war; to get our boys on European battlefields; to get our money.

We are up against the old game again; this time to transfer the debts from the nations that borrowed the money and used it for their purposes, to the people here who loaned the money. But America has been disillusioned on many things.

* * *

American Propagandist With Us Again

The propagandists were not foreigners entirely by any means. How many times in those days have we heard Americans denouncing their own country because it would not help England or would not help France! The foreign propagandists did not denounce us express contempt for us, for that would have defeated their purpose. They left that to the American propagandist who did his work with zest

Today the American propagandist is with us again. But now even they do not go beyond the foreign propagandist in bitter denunciation of the American point of view.

And so we have often wondered in the last two years if we did not blunder seriously in going into the war at all. After all, it was a European quarrel; we know it now. We went in to advance certain ideals. We were to end war. We were to put a period to the competitive building of armament which endangers peace. And an agreement actually was reached when Germany was disarmed that the other nations in Europe would greatly reduce their armament.

They have done nothing of the sort.

They are spending so many billions preparing for war that they cannot afford to pay their debts.

By keeping faith, and reducing their appropriations for war purposes ever so little, all of them, with the possible exception of a few of the weaker nations, could easily pay their debts.

But they don't want to keep their word. They do not want to reduce their war budgets. And so they want us to pay their debts so they will have more or as much, to spend in preparing for the next war.

And they tell us we are a race of Shylocks, ungenerous despite our appalling concessions, ignorant, selfish, vicious, hateful; and the Foreign Legion of the Propagandists among Americans join heartily in their opinions.

We hear so much about the common interests and ideals of the English and the Americans; but the English evidently have an understanding with France against the Americans. When we expressed sympathy with the special problems of the English, and our public men began to talk of some concessions to them, the English respond they will accept no concessions unless we make more concessions to prosperous France.

Let no one tell us now there is no understanding, very definite in nature, between England and France, to make common cause against the United States.

For Europe must go on bleeding its people white for money for purposes of war, and must not be bothered about mere debts. The pledges to the millions who died for the alleged ideals of the war are forgotten except when gentlemen in High Hats, and with nothing in their hearts, put flowers on the Unknown Soldiers graves. Indeed we are convinced that one of the purposes of the proposed transfer of the debts is to sack the living in America to betray the dead of the world.
